Hosea was commanded by God to take an unchaste woman to be his wife. While this was a strange act, yet it was right, for it was commanded by God, and its motive was the elevation of the woman to the prophet's moral plane. It was designed to show God's wonderful condescension and love in entering into covenant relationship with a nation of such immorality. The nation had no more to commend it when God chose it than this unchaste woman when Hosea contracted marriage with her.

2. The unfaithful wife (ch. 2).

Notwithstanding the wonderful condescension on the part of the prophet in contracting marriage with this woman, Gomer, the unfaithful wife, departs from him to consort with her former base lovers. This shows Israel's base ingratitude in their departure from God to go after idols. Sore chastisement fell upon her for her unfaithfulness.

3. Illustration of Gomer, the unfaithful wife (ch. 3).

This illustrates God's undying love for Israel. The motive governing the prophet's act was love. God's love for Israel is just as real. His grace will yet move Him to take back that nation to Himself.

II. God's Love for Israel (Hosea 11:1-4, 8, 9).

1. Its beginning (v. 1).

It began when Israel as a nation was in its childhood. God loved the nation even while in Egypt.

2. "Called my son out of Egypt" (v. 1).

God called Israel out of the bondage of Egypt and brought them into Canaan, the land of freedom—flowing with milk and honey. Such love and favor placed Israel under peculiar obligation to God.

3. "Taught Ephraim to go" (v. 3).

In spite of Israel's backsliding (v. 2), God is represented as teaching Israel how to walk, even as a father taking up his child in his arms. God watched over them as parents watch over their children by night.

4. "I drew with cords of a man (v. 4).

Observe that His drawing was not with a stout rope as used with an unruly heifer (ch. 10:11), but a cord such as a man could bear. God's wonderful love in Christ should constrain us to obey and serve Him.

5. Took off the yoke from the jaws and placed food before them (v. 4).

The figure is of a husbandman lifting the yoke from the oxen so that they could eat.

6. Unwillingness to give them up (vv. 8, 9).

In spite of all Israel's sin, God was unwilling to destroy them.

III. God Pleads for Repentance (14:1-8).

Notwithstanding their awful sins, God urged Israel to turn unto Him. He is doing the same to backsliders today. He made promise unto them.

1. "I will heal their backslidings" (v. 4).

This on the condition of frank and full confession.

2. "I will love them freely (v. 4).

This is characteristic of God. Only God can express unmerited love.

3. "I will be as the dew to Israel" (v. 5).

God will refresh the nation as dew does the parched grass.

4. Growth promised (v. 5).

5. Beauty assured (v. 6).

6. Pleasant fragrance (v. 7).

While this is a picture of the restored nation, something similar may be seen in the fragrant, fruitful lives of men and women who have sinned and come back to God.

Lutheran Church Rededicated.

Rededicatory services were held in the Lutheran church here on Sunday. Because of the wintery weather, the attendance was small, but the congregation and its pastor, Rev. S. D. Sigler, are happy with the results achieved. Three services were held during the day. Dr. L. P. Young, of Salisbury, a former pastor during the building of the present edifice, was in charge of finances throughout the day.

Rev. E. E. Oney, of Pittsburgh, a former pastor also, delivered the morning sermon; Rev. J. Luther Frantz, of Meyersdale, delivered the afternoon sermon, and Mrs. Frantz sang. The evening sermon was conducted by the Rev. William I. Good, of Johnstown, Pa., president of the Allegany Synod, of which the church is a member. Following the sermon, Mrs. Good sang. The choir rendered a number of special selections during the services of the day. The altar was beautifully decorated with autumn leaves, ferns and chrysanthemums.

The total cost of the improvements amounted to $10,300, of which $4,500 was paid before dedication day; $3,100 was raised at the services of the day, leaving a balance of $2,700 to be financed.

The original building was erected in 1913 at a cost of $8,000. It is of brick with beautiful stained windows. The improvements recently made provide a large basement room for social and Sunday School purposes, a kitchen completely furnished with running hot and cold water, a range, cupboards and serving tables; two comfort rooms and a furnace room. The assembly room has a stage with adjoining dressing rooms and an adequate lighting system. There was a new approach provided from the street which makes entrance to the building much easier than formerly. The entire structure was repainted, revarnished and the floors finished in stain with rubber matting in the aisles. The visitors were much pleased with the fine appearance of the completed structure and expressed themselves as being delighted with the additions. A reception was held for the public on Monday evening and was well attended.

Hallowe'en Party.

The members of the Bridge Club and some of their friends gave a most pleasant Hallowe'en Party and surprise shower for Mrs. C. J. Clock, nee Miss Maud Bevans, a former member of the club, at the home of Miss Ruth Stanton at Little Crossings, on November 1. All the guests arrived masqued and were received by a ghost, who gave each guest an appropriate name and conducted them through "spookland" and succeeded in making them feel at home in their new surroundings. This experience was followed by guessing games and spook stunts for which three prizes were given, Mrs. A. C. Stanton receiving the first, Mrs. B. T. Keller, second, and Mrs. T. B. Maurer, the third. Refreshments were served in the dining room which was beautifully decorated. The table decorations were of a huge jack-o'lantern, autumn leaves, pine cones and crepe paper and concealed the shower of gifts given Mrs. Clock by her friends. The refreshments were salad in jack-o'lanterns, sandwiches and cocoa.

ENGLISH ENGINE RETURNS HOME FROM B. & O. EXHIBIT

The "King George V," powerful locomotive of the Great Western Railway of England, which arrived at the Locust Point piers, Baltimore, on August 22nd, subsequently taking such a prominent part in and adding so much interest to the Baltimore and Ohio Centenary Exhibition and Pageant held at Baltimore, September 24 to October 16, left from the Baltimore and Ohio piers at Locust Point aboard the S. S. "Chicago City," Tuesday November 8, for its homeward journey to Cardiff, Wales. It is going back on the same vessel which brought it. The "King George V" was accompanied by the reconstructed "North Star," of 1837, also belonging to the Great Western Railway of England, which too was exhibited at the Centenary celebration.

The "King George V" will be shipped back to England the same as it came, in three parts, consisting of the undercarriage, 55 tons, the boiler and cab, 25 tons and the tender, 22 tons, while some miscellaneous small parts will be crated. The dismantling and preparations for shipment were made at the Baltimore and Ohio Mount Clare shops.

On October 17th, the day after the close of the Baltimore and Ohio Centenary Exhibition, the "King George V" made a test trip from Baltimore, Washington, Philadelphia and return, demonstrating that it is a wonderful locomotive and should give a good account of itself when put into service in England for which it was constructed. It is a remarkably smooth riding locomotive and its performance was very fine in every respect.

With the departure of the "King George V," ends a very pleasant visit of "a distinguished envoy" to the Centenary celebration of railroad history in the United States.

"I earnestly ask all our citizens to renew their membership in this legion of mercy" - -

A message to YOU from

CALVIN COOLIDGE

FROM the White House, President Coolidge has issued an urgent appeal to every citizen of the United States. He says:

"The American Red Cross has a foremost place in the ranks of distinctive American institutions which we honor and loyally support. It has become an intimate part of our every day life. To it we turn instinctively and confidently when sudden calamities occur.

"We have frequent occasions to witness its readiness for instant and effective response at the call to duty.

"We have tested the Red Cross in war and in peace. It has never failed us. It never will so long as it holds your support.

"As President of the United States and as President of the American Red Cross, I earnestly ask all our citizens to renew their membership in this legion of mercy." CALVIN COOLIDGE.

The Red Cross has never failed. And as President Coolidge says, "it never will so long as it holds your support."

But the Red Cross must have constant support to carry out the work described below. Read the many activities of this great legion of mercy. Can you think of a better way to spend a dollar?

In earthquake, tornado, explosion—in all forms of human disaster

In the past 46 years, the American Red Cross has expended $59,859,237 for relief work following disasters. During the current year in this country it has directed or participated in relief work in 75 catastrophes.

Service to Disabled Veterans of World War and to Men of the Regular Army and Navy

Since the Armistice it has expended $62,388,978 for services to the disabled veterans of the World War and to the men of the regular Army and Navy. It is now assisting an average of more than 73,000 disabled veterans and their families each month.

To more than 225,000 soldiers and marines on active duty it continues to give the same supplementary volunteer relief and Home Service it gave during the war.

Activities are varied and almost countless in helping humanity

The Red Cross has in reserve 44,000 nurses available in emergencies. It has trained 67,000 women and girls in home hygiene to care for the sick during the past year. Through its Nutrition Service, it has taught 115,000 children and 12,000 adults the importance of the proper use of food. 19,000 persons completed the Red Cross course in first aid since the beginning of the last fiscal year, and through the Junior Red Cross of 5,000,000 children, is taught the value of service to others.

THURSDAY, NOVEMBER 10, 1927

"LEST WE FORGET"

November 11, 1918, was a day of joyous celebration. The greatest war the world had ever known had come to an end The intense suffering that had been caused by the war was to be alleviated and gradually to disappear entirely. Everyone was glad—the parents with the right to wear the gold star, parents of boys whose fate were unknown, parents of boys who would return again to them—all rejoiced.

There was determination in the heart of all who were left behind to celebrate this day forever out of respect to those who were lying on the battlefield or who had literally been shoveled into shallow graves—unidentified and lost forever to this world. They would never return. The situation was not exaggerated by the ones at home. Was not the loss of hundreds of thousands of lives of sufficient importance to remember eternally by a holiday designated for that purpose?

But the world in general is beginning to forget. "What does it matter whether hundreds of thousands of lives were lost?" people say. There are others who will take their places and carry on perhaps better than the ones before. In this day of activity and bustle, that is merely an excuse to ease one's conscience. Business, business! There is no time out for a thought and silent prayer for the saviors of our nation. Nobody has time, it seems.

Is it a human characteristic to think lightly of favors? Responsibility for the end of the great war can certainly be laid to the determination of these men who fought. They fought for the betterment of humanity, and all nations are indebted to them for this supreme deed. Is this favor being appreciated today?

The Civil war happened over 60 years ago, yet the nation still celebrates the occasion by a general holiday. Neither does The Republican want to detract from this celebration, but rather would encourage its observance indefinitely. The World War, largest and most destructive conflict in the period of man, ended just nine years ago tomorrow. It was a nation-wide struggle and involved the United States just as much as did the Civil War, more lives being lost than ever before.

Let Armistice Day continue to be celebrated in a class with December 25, the birth of Christ; the last Thursday in November, Thanksgiving Day; July 4, the signing of the Declaration of Independence; May 30, Memorial and Decoration Day for veterans of former wars.

Do not forget so soon, but how like human nature it is to soon forget. The participants in the war were the heroes of the hour, the idols of every body eight years ago. Everyone has a hero or heroine in the moving pictures, on the football field, in a community, but how long do they last? Who was the outstanding figure in the United States ten years ago? Red Grange was the hero of football last year, but he will be forgotten in ten, and war veterans are being forgotten in nine. Don't let them become erased from memory. Think of them tomorrow as we and the nearby communities celebrate the day of Armistice, and join in the celebration with all the enthusiasm that people had nine years ago. They are worth the effort now as much as they were at the end of the war.

MODERN DANGERS

In spite of all efforts of the community to make life less dangerous, yet every age develops its own perils. We spend millions of dollars to separate railroad crossings from the street grades, and thereby save some from being run over. But meanwhile the streets become congested by automobiles, and the accidents resulting therefrom are far more fatal than those that ever happened as the result of grade crossings.

Medical science makes steady progress, and many of the perils due to contagious diseases, lack of sanitation etc., are avoided. But meanwhile a large part of our people live at a high rate of speed, and wear out by overworking their vital organs.

Yet people can not be thinking of perils all the time. Some fret so much over remote dangers, that they thereby create still greater perils. Some nervous people will worry every night about the danger of burglars, and that some intruder will get into their home and perhaps turn on them and shoot them. The danger of such a result is very trifling. Meanwhile these nervous folks get so uneasy about it that they lose sleep and thereby lower their physical vitality, and they are more likely to be unable to resist the attacks of disease.

If people will use common sense, avoid needless risks, take plenty of time to do things, and avoid destructive haste and hurry, the average person should live considerably longer than would have been possible years ago.

Dangers like the automobile peril can be reduced to the minimum by careful driving, by taking one's time when one wants to cross a street. Needless hurry causes a large part of our misfortunes. The one who gets smashed up in an automobile accident is usually the one who could not wait a few additional seconds for safer conditions. ----Cumberland Evening Times.

ARMISTICE DAY

Nine years ago the world's greatest war came to an end. Mother's began to hope; wives could once more expect the return of their husbands. The war to end war had been such a strain as none could appreciate; now one could look forward to reconstruction.

First the people took stock. The war had cost the lives of between nine and ten million soldiers, the finest young men of the fighting nations. It had also cost the lives of twice as many civilians, old men, mothers, babies.

Two things became clear. Modern war involved the whole nation, not merely the soldiers. In the past it had been possible to protect one's home and loved ones. One could retaliate by dropping bombs on enemy babies, but one could not prevent the enemy from bombing in his turn. Warfare was directed chiefly against civilian population. The death lists proved it.

Armistice Day is a special day of remembrance for the young men who laid down their lives in the "War to end war." They have handed on to us the torch of their young idealism. It is for every one of us who remain to carry on and complete the work.

In spite of the complexities of the technical questions of disarmament and arbitration, every one of us has his opportunity. We cannot conduct the negotiations, we cannot make the treaties, but we can make up our minds that our country's foreign policy shall be based on friendliness and fair dealing. Bad governments cannot override public opinion that demands peace and fairness in their dealings with other nations. Good governments cannot do the things necessary to secure peace, and fairness unless supported by their people.

Therefore, every single individual citizen has his share of responsibility for completing the work of building lasting peace which was the dream of those who sacrificed their lives in the war that ended on the first Armistice Day. ---The Friends' Peace Committee, of Philadelphia, Pa.

"ABIE'S IRISH ROSE" AT THE MARYLAND NOV. 15

Play Will Be Presented One Night Only

With its excellent cast and production, direct from its phenomenal runs of twenty-nine and thirty weeks, respectively, at Pittsburgh and Cleveland, Anne Nichols famously successful appealing comedy, "Abie's Irish Rose," will be presented by the world-famous author-producer for an engagement of one night only, Tuesday, November 15, at the Maryland Theatre, Oakland, this is the same company that is playing at Cumberland this week.

Unless all signs fail, Oakland will be another city to be added to the long list of successful records established by this truly remarkable play, which has been the cause of more discussion than any play written since the Bard of Avon started writing.

"Abie's Irish Rose" is not only brimful of good, clean, wholesome comedy, there being a hearty laugh in almost every line, but in its unfolding discloses one of the prettiest little love stories ever told, which in its simplicity is at once winning.

Miss Nichols has written all told seventeen plays. She was also responsible for "Just Married," which is still playing throughout the country with great success, also "Linger Longer Letty," in which play Charlotte Greenwood, the elongated comedienne, scored her biggest hit. However, it was "Abie's Irish Rose" that placed Miss Nichols name in the hall of fame for having written a play that has unprecedented engagements in New York—now in its sixth year at the Republic Theater. It has also broken all long records in Chicago, Pittsburgh, Cleveland, Philadelphia, Cincinnati, Montreal, Toronto, Washington, Baltimore, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Atlanta, New Orleans, etc., etc.

DISEASE AMONG RABBITS DISCOVERED, IS REPORT

Is Claimed To Be Fatal To Human Beings, Said

The reported discovery of tularemia, a dreaded disease among rabbits and claimed to be fatal to human beings, in Franklin county, Pa., across the Mason and Dixon line from Hagerstown, is creating alarm here as the fall hunting season opens. Numerous inquiries have been received by Dr. H. W. McComas, local physician, concerning its fatality to human beings.

Sportsmen in Franklin county say they have found the tell-tale white spots on livers of rabbits they have killed in the last week.

The disease, according to scientists who have been endeavoring to find a remedy for it, can be contracted by persons who handle rabbits, and it is known to have proved fatal in several cases.

The disease derived its name from Tulare county, Cal., where it was discovered first among rabbits and squirrels. Since that time it has spread eastward, several cases being reported from Virginia. Two cases were reported last year from Pennsylvania.

In human beings, if there is an abrasion or cut on the finger, it sets up inflammation, chills, fever and a high temperature with symptoms much like typhoid fever. In from four to six days, the glands under the arms and in the groin begin to swell. The disease lasts about three weeks.

DIED

CATHERINE BIGGS JOHNSON.

Mrs. Catherine Biggs Johnson, wife of the Rev. J. E. Johnson, died at her home in Grantsville at 3:30 o'clock Monday morning, following a period of invalidism which began in Bruceton Mills, West Va., on September 26, 1926, when she fell and suffered a broken hip, not having been able to walk since that time and being confined to her bed during the past twelve weeks. She was a most patient sufferer, bearing her part in a most heroic manner and able to smile through it all.

Funeral services were conducted on Wednesday morning from the Methodist Episcopal church at Grantsville, with the Rev. Dr. William M. Shultz officiating, with interment made in the Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. Johnson was a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. William Biggs, of Mountain Lake Park, and was born May 8th, 1871, being aged 56 years at the time of her demise. She is survived by her husband, the Rev. J. E. Johnson, pastor the the M. E. church at Grantsville; by two sons, W. A. Johnson, owner and manager of the NuWay Laundry in Oakland, and Harry D. Johnson, of Cumberland, employed by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad company as ticket agent for their Cumberland office. She is also survived by a daughter, Alice, who is at home and who most tenderly and patiently cared for her mother during her disability and illness. A sister, Mrs. W. R. Smith, of Grafton, W. Va., and two brothers, M. C. Biggs, of Grafton, and A. L. Biggs, of Mt. Lake Park, also survive, as do eight grand children.

She was married in 1897, and with her husband engaged in home mission work and since that time in the active ministry, she being a co-laborer with her husband in the work. She joined the M. E. church at the age of 10, and was a life member of the M. E. Foreign Missionary society, an honorary member of the Ladie's Aid at Grantsville and a member of the Rebecca Lodge, I. O. O. F., at Bruceton Mills, West Va. She was well and favorably known throughout the county, having been identified with the work of her husband in their various fields of service.

WILLIAM H. SHAFFER

William H. Shaffer, father of Homer Shaffer, of Crellin, died at his home at Crellin, at 5 a. m., Sunday, November 6, aged 80 years. Mr. Shaffer was born in Preston county and has lived his entire life nearby. He married Miss Julia Nordeck, also of Preston county, who preceded him to the grave three years ago. One son, Ernest Shaffer, also died about one year ago. The children living are: Mrs. Grace Gilmore, Mrs. Lawson Knotts, Lester Shaffer and Homer Shaffer, of Crellin, Md., Charles Shaffer, of Ruppert, W. Va., and Rev. Ray N. Shaffer, of Clarksburg, W. Va. Funeral services were held at Crellin, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Fultz, of Mt. Lake Park. Interment was made at Terra Alta, West Va.

JAMES LLOYD M'ROBIE

James Lloyd McRobie died at his home at North Glade on October 31. He was born March 4, 1855, in Garrett county, living his life as a farmer in these parts, having lived on the farm where he died for 44 years. He was also justice of the peace for a number of years.

The deceased was twice married, his first wife dying eleven years ago. His second wife, Mrs. Lena Knox McRobie, still survives, also one daughter, Mrs. Newton Merrill. He had two brothers and ten sisters, all of them dead.

His life was a healthful one until about two years ago when he was paralyzed and was confined to his bed until death came. He was a good neighbor and was always ready to do his part in time of need.

TUBERCULOSIS SEAL SALE TO BEGIN NOVEMBER 24

Mrs. C. Milton Sincell is Chairman for Garrett County

Announcement has been received from the offices of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, Inc., at Baltimore, of the appointment of Mrs. C. Milton Sincell, of Oakland, as Seal Sale Chairman for Garrett county, for the twentieth annual Tuberculosis Seal Sale campaign which will open on Thanksgiving Day and continue until Christmas.

Mrs. Sincell, commenting on the coming sale, said, "It is our desire this year to put over a banner Seal Sale so that we may continue our county health work on a larger scale than in the past. Every one will be given an opportunity to purchase seals, and have a part in the prevention and detection of Tuberculosis in our county. The work that has been accomplished by the Seal sale in the past twenty years is stupendous. Twenty years ago there were more than 200 deaths in the United States from Tuberculosis. Today this has been cut down more than half. Now is the time to step up or relinquish our gains. We need to increase our health work and the Tuberculosis work so that we may finally and forever be relieved in the state of such scourges as Smallpox."

Mrs. Sincell has received the Seal Sale posters and advertising matter which will be displayed throughout the county in the interest of the sale. This year as in the past 70 per cent of the funds raised in this county will be used to finance county health work. Of the 30 per cent which will be sent to the State office, 5 per cent will go towards financing the National Tuberculosis program. The 25 per cent which will remain at the State office will finance field work, educational program, supplies, and other service for this county.

Thirty-nine Seals, totaling more than seven thousand dollars have been sold in Garrett county, Maryland.

Instead of a Letter.

A gentleman in Nebraska or someplace sends fifteen subscriptions of his home paper to fifteen of his close friends and relatives, and says it is cheaper than writing letters and besides no time is required and more news is conveyed than this letters would contain.

That isn't a bad idea according to Scoop's way of thinking. This sheet carries all the news of the county while it is news, and would be a real weekly letter to your close friends. Send in your subscriptions and try it out.

Tough Luck.

A 32 year old diner lost out in his struggle with a tough piece of steak, according to a recent news item, causing the man's death. "This steak is plenty tough," the man told his dinner companion. "Why don't you pick it up and eat it like a sandwich?" was the suggestion of his companion. The man acted on the suggestion and with the first bite choked. He died on the way to a hospital. The question is whether the man's family could sue the hotel or restaurant keeper for serving a piece of steak so tough that it caused choking. A decision in favor of the family in this case would certainly eliminate a lot of trouble at eating places.

Harry Columbus Rumers vs. Tabitha Rumers.

No. 2787 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree a vinculo matrimonii, divoreing the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states that the plaintiff was married to the defendant in Allegany County, Maryland, and that they resided together as man and wife, in Garrett County, Maryland, until the 27th day of December, 1923.

The Bill further states that the conduct of the plaintiff toward the defendant has been kind, affectionate and above reproach, and that the said defendant, without just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three ycars, and that the separation of the parties is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

That while said defendant has travelled about from place to place since such abandonment, the plaintiff is informed, and believes that at this time she is living and residing in the State of Pennsylvania.

That no children were born to the said plaintiff and defendant as a result of said marriage.

The Bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii, and for such other and further relief as the nature of his case may require, and also for the order of publication.

It is thereupon, this 29th day of October, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 10th day of December, 1927, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor on or before the 26th day of December, next, to show cause, if any she had, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

And it is further ordered that in lieu of such publication a copy of this order may be served personally upon the said defendant, Tabitha Rumers, on or before the 17th day of November, 1927, in accordance with Section 142 of Article 16 of the Code of Public General Laws of the State of Maryland, warning her to appear and show cause as aforesaid.

And a "Dictator" closed model—a strictly stock Studebaker—covered 1480 miles in 24 hours—averaging over 61 miles per hour! This is a record for cars listing at under $1400—an achievement worthy of a place alongside that of the high-priced "Commander" model.

And, once again, AMOCO Products—AMOCO-GAS and AMOCO Motor Oil—were used by the Studebaker factory representatives.

English Obtained Hold In America Near Same Time In Virginia and Massachusetts

BY CLIFFORD RAYMOND

The English obtained foothold in America almost simultaneously in Virginia and in Massachusetts.

The first seetlement in Virginia is now a grave, beautiful and solemn memorial of the past, the revered ruins of a church tower in a Druidic grove by the broad waters of the James.

That and the added restoration of the nave of the church with graves, tablets and monuments indicates the fragments of the birthplace of the English civilization in North America.

It is but little more than remains to show where Sir Walter Raleigh's Lost Colony passed from the knowledge of men in 1587 on Roanoke Island in North Carolina.

The threat of the Spanish Armada kept England's sailors at home after Raleigh's third expedition had planted a colony between Albermarle and Pamlico Sounds.

When England again had freedom of the seas and could send relief to the temporarily abandoned colonists they had disappeared, leaving the record of conjecture whether they had been the victims of hostile Indians or had wandered off with a friendly tribe and had been absorbed in it, an imaginative legend of cryptic signs and Indians with Nordic features are English words.

The Massachusetts settlement now exists at Plymouth in a brisk, modern city in which Pilgrim relics are preserved as great-grandfather's furniture in a new house. Jamestown is extant in the way that Stonehenge is extant, and the difference of 2,500 years is of consequence only as they represent different ages of men.

The English heritage from exploration was neither Virginia tidewater nor New England bays, but the St. Lawrence. That was what John Cabot opened up to them when he reached Newfoundland or Labrador in 1497 under the patronage of the English crown.

But, although the Devonshire sailors generally dominated the fishing on the Banks and the fish curing and wool and silk trading in the turbulent settlement of St. John's Newfoundland, where they were rivalry or trafficking with Basques, Normans, Spanish, etc., the English did not get behind the island, through the gulf and into the river which would have opened up the interior to them as it did for the French.

Cabot's work in the last of the fifteenth century waited for Cartier's in the sixteenth to produce colonies, and then they were French and not English.

It was too cold for the English at the gateway of the St. Lawrence. Even the New England coast was regarded as forbidden and between the settling at Jamestown and the settling at Plymouth it was touch and go, whether it be French or English or Dutch along Massachusetts Bay and the Kennebec and Connecticut rivers.

When the settlements along the James and on the New England coasts had proved that they could survive their first problems of adjustment—disease, lack of food and Indian contacts—purposes had become fixed, the three great rivals, England, France and Spain, were definitely set for what they could accomplish, and the colonists had the gates of the future open for whatever roads they were strong enough to travel.

Virginia and Massachusetts had early experiences in common. The considerable fifference in locale did not at once deflect them from parallel lines.

Tobacco soon was to give the people of the great Southern estuaries a different economy, social structure, domestic national policy and individuality from what was to prevail in the North, but at first they and their Puritan compatriots had a common lot in contest against want, Indians and disease. They had their starvation times, pestilence and intervals of Indian friendliness and hostility.

They were to be forbears of frontiersmen, but they themselves were not. They learned, but they began as children in the wilderness. The Spanish and the French, both of whom were to lose control, had more original adaptability than the English. They were better in penetrating the wilderness and the wastes. The Spanish had more power in meeting the natives as enemies. The French had greater genius in meeting them as friends.

Both the Spanish and the French were immediately in contact with powerful Indian nations, the Spanish with the Aztecs and the French with the Iroquois. It is doubtful if the English settlements could have sustained the hostility of either.

Probably the English were in the beginning the worst equipped to survive of all that undertook colonization. If they had not been better on sea than they were on land, they might have been confined to their island while France and Spain fought it out for the new lands.

In spite of the settlers' lack of knowledge of how to subsist in the not unfavorable country in which they found themselves, the English sailors were able to save them, and Virginia and Massachusetts were able to get up before the count of ten after several knockout blows.

In infancy the two colonies ran along somewhat parallel lines of experience in their struggle for existence, continuance and growth, but as they neared and went into maturity their histories in this respect became strikingly divergent. It is not explainable by the characteristics of the people and hardly by their geographical position although it is in part.

National struggle for existance, acquisition or continued possession, for better resources, richer fields, etc., generally takes the form of war. The aborgines for the most part did not give up their land without a fight, and the definitive agreements of the whites were made by muskets.

From the conclusion of King Philip's war, about a half century after the settling at Plymouth and a century before the Revolution, Massachusetts has furnished the ground for only one major conflict. Virginia battlefields cover the great State and its historic memorials mark the conclusion of the two American wars of exhaustion, the Revolution and the Civil War.

A day's automobile ride will take one from Yorktown to Appomattox, from the tidewater of Washington and Cornwallis to the Piedmont of Lee and Grant.

Tidewater Virginia saw the culmination of these consequential struggles of the American nation to form and hold itself. Massachusetts has an unscarred surface. It is not quite true but it is virtually true, that Massachusetts heard the last of guns when Howe turned his ships away from Dorchester Heights in March, 1776, and sailed out of the harbor, taking his army from the evacuated city of Boston.

Thereafter in the war its ravages swept New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Virginia, Delaware, Maryland and North and South C[illegible] and touched New H[illegible] necticut, Rhode Island and the Independent State of Vermont, but Massachusettes was virtually undisturbed.

Massachusetts has fought wars, protested against wars and opposed wars, but when one has traveled the short distance from Concord to the Charlestown peninsula he has covered the noted battlefield of the Bay State and that field is of one great event.

Virginia has offered its breast to the deadliest of America's encounters. It is a striking difference of experience.

When geography enters as an explanation it does not at first explain. Virginia had buffer colonies between itself and the Spanish on the south and the French on the north. The Spanish proved non-aggressive. The French fought the English every step of the way.

In this conflict Massachusetts was a border State. Its citizens gained their military experience in these French wars, but the battles were not fought in Massachusetts. They were fought in Nova Scotia and along the St. Lawrence, in what is now Maine; in New York and Pennsylvania, in the Shenandoah, by the Scotch-Irish and Germans on the Virginia, Maryland and Pennsylvania frontiers, on the Ohio river and the New York lakes, but not in Massachusetts.

After Braddock's defeat the Shenandoah frontier of Virginia was bloodied in Indian raids which required all of Washington's stanchness to fight off and control. The earlier years of the Revolution left Virginia as peaceful as Massachusetts, but when the war was carried south, Virginia was made acquainted with Tarleton and Arnold, then a renegade, burning the Virginia cities. Richmond suffered this.

North and South Carolina and Virginia had their Revolutionary experiences when a great deal of the chivalric generalship had disappeared out of the British camp and the bitterness of Tories and Loyalists dominated. A dead Tory was a good Tory and a dead rebel was a good rebel.

When Cornwallis came to the opinion that Virginia would furnish the decisive field he was right. He ceased the Carolina marching, which must seem aimless in spite of his purposes, and came north, cutting his road from Wilmington, N. C., to Charlottesville, Va., with Greene and Lafayette feinting, withdrawing and threatening.

Geography probably had something of inevitability in giving Virginia the scars, the culmination and the end of the Civil War. The Army of the Northern Virginia and the Army of the Potomac had the center. Their flanking movements could be in Tennessee and Georgia, or down the Atlantic Coast, but they must pound each other in the tidewater, the wilderness, the mountains and valleys.

It might be in Maryland, Pennsylvania or Virginia, but the stronger resources back of the fighting lines would, in common rule, count enough in spite of generalship and valor to keep the fighting in the opposite territory. And so it was whether the Northern failures were led by McClelland, Pope, Burnside or Hooker, or whether the final Northern success was led by Grant.

The great military decision of this nation has been found in the first colony and many of the governing motives have come out of the second.

Card of Thanks.

I take this method of expressing my sincere thanks and appreciation to the many friends and neighbors who so kindly assisted during his illness and after the death of the late James T. Gower. I desire also to thank those for the floral tributes and those who offered the use of their ears at the funeral.

A Local Industry vs Empty Houses in Oakland.

How hard we have tried to bring an industry to Oakland. An industry with a monthly pay roll of from $500.00 to $300.00 per month is much to be desired by our community. Fellow citizens this industry is here. Are you doing your bit toward supporting it, or are you helping bring empty houses to Oakland by denying employment to its residents?

Are you permitting our local dealers to fill your bin with foreign coal, when local coal of equal quality, can be supplied for less money? Is this policy keeping the home fires burning in Oakland? Have you lost your faith in the coal resources of our community?

Boost your community by keeping your dollars in the old home town. Specify Finkey Coal, eliminate clinkers and live in comfort. $2.00 per ton at the mine.

THE LOGICAL PLACE TO BUY GAS APPLIANCES

DURING THE GLACIAL PERIOD

(©, by D. J. Walsh.)

AFTER her husband went downtown to his work Miria Cottrell sat down with her aching head and her scarcely less polgnantly paining henrt. To have a cold and n sense of wrecked happiness at the same honr!

For a long time all had not been well between her and Kent. They did not quarrel, they simply grew cold to each other. Miria's first thought had been that her husband had ceased to love her. Such things happened even after a couple had lived together for eleven years. She thought perhaps he blamed her for the child's dying, but she had done all she could and she could not tell him that she hnd known even before the doctor had confirmed her fears, that if the little fellow hnd lived he would never have been just normal. Love, even mother love cannot bear a tragedy of that sort.

But now when the little boy with his weak back and head had been gone three years Kent was colder to her than he had been at the start. Aud she was colder toward him. She could not help it. She felt that way and conld not hide it. Yet it was only her resentment that tinctured her words, her actions. She loved her husband as much as ever, and in her heart hung waiting upon a sign from him which would restore so much that at present seemed lost. It was not enough that Kent's business was incrensing, that he had thrice increased her allowance until now she had her own little bauk account and need not ask him for money if she wanted a new dress or n few extras. It was not enough either that her home was the prettiest on the street and that outwardly they were a charming, respectable, financially-lucky pair. All these were common things besides the one greatest of all—loving sympathy.

She cried as she sat in the deep chair. And when her little mauve-bordered handkerchief had become a mere sop which could contain no more tears she swallowed back her sobs and went to wash her blue breakfast set, usually a task she loved, for the china was new. Kent did ont come home to lunch, and she was going out that day to lunch at Mrs. Blagham's with a bridge party nfterward. Bridge parties nnd luncheons were frequent with Miria and becoming a trifle stale, she felt now. Or nt least she realized that it was going to take a tremendous effort to get to Mrs. Bingham's. But of course she would have to go. She wanted to go anyway, for she had a new gown to wear—a delightful brown crepe faced with orchid, and so becoming.

However, even the brown crepe failed to carry the thing off. The alligator-pear salad and chicken a la king were dust and ashes in her mouth. That nasty Mrs. Jaynes remarked on her high color—"n trifle too much rouge, dear." As if she ever used rouge! But her cheeks were flaming and she felt hot and burny—and queer, sick at the stomach, too, and her eyes did not "track." When it came to the bridge she simply could not bring herself to stay a minute longer, but had to excuse herself. Even then she came near creating a sensation by nearly toppling over, and Mrs. Bingham had ordered a taxi.

Miria was never so thankful for anything in her life ns she was to get home and out of her party dress and upon the davenport with a blanket over her. In spite of her heat she felt a succession of icy little curls chasing up her spine. She must have been a bit flighty, too, for the things in the room looked queer and out of perspective. Suddenly she found herself langhing with a sofa cushion in her hands.

"A Dutch cheese!" she exclaimed.

Then suddenly the door opened and Kent limped in. He threw his hat and cont aside, dropped into a deep chair, took his head between his bands and groaned. This brought Miria to herself.

"Oh, Kent! Are you sick, too?" she cried.

He looked at her. Then, still silent, he went to the telephone and called the doctor.

An hour later a trained nurse was in charge while Kent lay in one twin bed and Miria in the other. Ontside the door had been placed n red card—"Quarantine."

After the first dreadful confused night they could talk to each other across the big intervening space.

"Where do you suppose we caught it?" Miria asked.

"Search me! Picked up a germ somewhere. What does it matter where we got it? Pretty caper to cut, I call it."

"I'm sorry for you, Kent."

Kent groaned.

The nurse was purely technical, and the wretched pair were obliged to turn to each other for sympathy and diversion. They could not read, they could not sleep, so they were forced to talk. Like a pair of children undergoing punishment, they besought understanding and pity. After a time they made a kind of game of counting those dreadful red spots which were the signmnnnl of their affliction.

In time they were able to sit up. Then the nurse, who had been besought, brought the checker board, nnd, with it resting between them upon their knees, they played hour after hour, taking time to make herself pretty for the occasion. A knot of crimson ribbon at the throat relieving the somber hue of her black dress, and a gold chain and locket Jim had given her. The biscuits were baked to a beautiful brown, the cake was waiting on the table. Everything was ready but the tea. She never put the tea to steep until Jim came. Baby Jim was nodding sleepily. She must lay him in his crib. This done, she sat down in the rocking chair by the window to watch for Jim.

How beautiful everything looked, even to the purple chrysanthemums in their cut-glass bowl in the center of the table. Jim's slippers were beside his chair, ready to put on the moment he came in. "He is late," she whispered, with a forlorn attempt at a laugh.

She sat very still, her mind wandering back and forth from the present to the past, from the past to the present. Whether she dozed for a few moments she never knew. She was aroused by the sound of footsteps—brisk, energetic, familiar—moving quickly along the sidewalk. They passed through the front gate nnd nround the side of the house, pnusing for a moment outside the kitchen door. Maria trembled violently. Was she awake or dreaming? The footsteps crossed the kitchen floor, the hall, and stopped in the doorway. She was afraid to look up, but did at last manage to raise her eyes.

"Well, Maria, here I am at last," said the big mnn who stood looking down at her. "Supper 'most ready? Here's your melon."

Maria had risen to her feet. One glance in the man's face and she dropped down upon the lounge in a dead faint. The basket dropped from Jim's hand. The melon rolled under the table. Jim knelt by the lounge and took his wife in his arms. "I ought to have written!" he told himself accusingly. "I ought not to have taken her by surprise." It was relief unspeakable to him when she opened her eyes.

"Jim!" she uttered, imploringly. "Oh, Jim, you are not dead! I thought you were dead!" Her eyes demanded an answer.

"Not me!" declared Jim ungrammatically. "In fact, I'm very much alive. That confounded boat went off and left me staring at it like a fool from the dock. Great Scott! What's this?"

Little Jim as enterprising as his father had learned a new trick. Roused from his nap by the sound of voices he had managed by considerable ingenuity and a great determination to get one fat leg after the other over the top of his crib. From that perilous position he descended to the carpet with a soft thud. This accomplished, he started on a tour of investigation.

"Pa-pa? Pa-pa?" he was lisping interrogatively, his blue eyes staring up at those so like his own.

"Good heavens, Maria, is it true?" demanded Jim in an awed whisper, staring as if fascinated at that telltale mole.

Maria nodded, her eyes filled with blissful tears, while both hands clutched the sleeve of Jim's coat as if she feared he would disappear as suddenly as he came.

"Well, all I've got to say is this," said Jim, gathering baby and mother in a huge, engulfing embrace, "you've played a mighty mean trick on me Maria."

Women of South Seas Have Many Liberties

Despite the fact that the inhabitants of the Pacific archipelago are of much the same race or races—light brown, straight-haired Polynesians or dark brown, frizzly-haired Melanesians—their customs vary from group to group. And while exceptions must be made here or there, in most of the islands—and particularly in Tonga, Samoa, nnd Fiji—feminine virtue is nnd always has been as highly prized ns anywhere else in the world. In a few of the more cosmopolitan ports—such as Apia or Suva or Pagopago—there may be some women who take theirs lightly, hut they are a limited minority and quite n recent institution stimulated almost invariably by an acquired fondness for the ribbons and trinkets of civilization.

In these islands—although the woman has never enjoyed the unrestricted liberty of her Marquesan sister—her position is a fairly happy one. Of course, as in many parts of the world, she is regarded as belonging to a somewhat inferior sex; throughout Polynesia she waits until the men are served before she thinks of dining herself; but this seems to cause her little concern. She appears to accept it philosophically, as though to say, "Let them strut and cherish their petty vanities; I'll assert myself whenever I want anything very badly." And in all practical matters, she undoubtedly commands respect.

In Tonga—the only independent nation in the South seas—a woman actually occupies the throne. Her majesty, Queen Salote, is absolute boss, too, not only over her subjects but over her prime minister, who happens just incidentally to be her husband. Even in Fiji, where the people are of the kinky-haired Melanesian race, converted within the last fifty years from cannibalism, the women enjoy considerable independence.—Harry L. Foster, in the Independent, Boston.

PEOPLE NOT RESPONDING TO RED CROSS ROLL CALL

Less Than Twenty-five Have Enrolled as Members in Annual Drive of National Society

The drive for members of the Red Cross in Garrett county, so far, has been all but a failure, Mrs. E. Z. Tower, chairman, stated this morning, less than twenty-five persons having paid in their dollar at Hamill's Stationery Store on Alder street, in Oakland. As the annual roll call ends next Thursday it will be necessary for many more to enlist if Oakland and Garrett county's enviable record in years past is to be maintained.

Hamill's store is the only place in Garrett county where headquarters have been established and where members may enroll, but it is not necssary for one to appear there personally. Those who cannot come to Oakland may mail their dollar and their button and receipt will be returned to them by mail.

Two hundred and fiftey members in Garrett county are wanted.

Governor's Proclamation

WHEREAS, The eleventh annual roll call of the American Red Cross will be conducted from Armistice Day, November 11, to Thanksgiving Day, inclusive.

AND WHEREAS, This period has been set aside to give everyone an opportunity to enroll or renew membership in the Red Cross, and the President of the United States has issued a proclamation calling upon the people to join this legion of mercy.

NOW, THEREFORE, I, Albert C. Ritchie, governor of Maryland, do hereby urge all the citizens of Maryland to respond promptly to this call. Red Cross service is being given efficiently to our State, and it is the duty of all to help keep this organization, which has made such a splendid record in peace and war, active and able to answer the demands constantly being made upon it.

I hope that all Red Cross members in Maryland will renew their membership and will make an effort to enroll additional members. I am confident that Maryland will not fail to show its appreciation of what has been done by the American Red Cross. We must do our part in assisting it to continue to serve mankind.

ALBERT C. RITCHIE.

THEATRE FILLED TO HEAR FRED. N. ZIHLMAN SPEAK

Many Others Attend Shoot and Benefit Picture

With a packed house at the Maryland Theatre in the afternoon of Armistice Day, Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman of the Sixth district, spoke on an appropriate subject in the feature of the all-day entertainment arranged by Proctor Kildow Post of the American Legion.

Musical numbers were also rendered by boys who had received "A" for their work in music for the past month under the instruction of Miss Kay Stenholm, of the Oakland high school faculty. Those boys were Harley Dawson, Edward Hinebaugh, Harry Hinebaugh, Robert Lohr, Richard Roy, Walter Shreve, Donald Stemple, Joseph Sollars and Wayne Wolf.

The banks were closed all day and stores were closed from noon on, thus giving everybody ample time in which to enjoy the clay bird shoot and stationary target matches at the Fair grounds, the entertainment in the afternoon and the benefit picture in the evening.

The American Legion has requested The Republican to extend its thanks to all those who helped in any way in contributing to the success of the day's celebration.

To Hold Dance November 23.

Placards are now out advertising the fact that there will be a dance on Wednesday evening, November 23, at Naylor's Hall, for the benefit of the Legion. Ronald McIntire is chairman of the dance committee. La Manca's Little Italy orchestra, which has been engaged to play during the showing of the Big Parade at the Maryland Theatre, will furnish the dance music.

Oakland Bowlers Lose to White Elephants.

The White Elephants of Frostburg defeated the Oakland Collegians three straight games for a total of 289 pins on the Majestic Alleys last week. Following the contest members of both teams, with their friends, attended a banquet at the National Inn, Frostburg. The address of welcome to the Garrett countians was made by William Jenkins, captain of the victorious team. The response was by Joe Hinebaugh, captain of the local team.

Those playing for Oakland were Fred Peddicord, Wade Mason, Alva Gortner, Joseph Hinebaugh, "Dutch" Walter and Arthur Hinebaugh.

AUTOMOBILE IS WRECKED BY HIT-AND-RUN DRIVER

Kingwood Party Skids Into Bank on Northwestern Pike as Result

The three occupants of a Hudson sedan, driven by Fred. Koch, Kingwood, W. Va., were injured Saturday evening when the car was sideswiped and wrecked on the Northwestern Turnpike, about seven miles south of Oakland, near the Red House, in this county.

Those injured were Mr. Koch, who received a severe cut on his forehead; Bud Hayes, who suffered a bad cut on the top of his head, and Earl Bell, who collapsed and had to be revived by artificial respiration.

Mr. Koch, who was enroute to Rowlesburg from Oakland, whence he had driven previously during the day, said his car was sideswiped by another automobile, which did not stop and because of this mishap his car skidded into a steep bank.

Following the accident, Messrs. Bell, Koch and Hayes were picked up by a passing automobile and taken to Rowlesburg, where Dr. H. M. Proudfoot rendered medical and surgical aid. Later they were taken to their respective homes in Kingwood, arriving there early Sunday morning. The car is said to be an almost total wreck.

UNLAWFUL TO SHOOT DEER AND TURKEYS IN GARRETT

Failure to Include Proviso Clauses in Last Thursday's Article Causes Indecision

An addition of 327 hunting licenses has been made during the past week to the number previously issued during the period from November 1, according to Court House officials, bringing the total for the present season up to more than 1300—1327, to be exact.

This number compares favorably with the number issued last year, and will in all probability exceed that of last year before the season ends, according to the information obtained at the license clerk's desk.

Correction Made.

Last Thursday, in giving the bag limits for hunters, it was not mentioned that this was for the entire State and not especially for Garrett county. There are several proviso clauses in the game law pamphlet relative to Garrett county and other political divisions of the State, which read as follows:

"Provided, however, it shall be unlawful to hunt wild turkey in Garrett county until November 10, 1930," and "male deer may be killed only in Allegany county and in Washington county on property enclosed with fence not less than 7 feet in height, from December 1 to December 15, inclusive."

Failure on the part of The Republican to include the proviso clauses in last Thursday's story of the hunting licenses has caused several inquiries to be made at The Republican office from hunters anxious to take a shot at turkeys and deer.

Bag Limit.

The bag limit for Garrett county for hunters, exclusive of the wild turkey and deer limits, is as follows: Wild ducks, 25 per day; geese, 8 per day; rabbit or hare, six; squirrels, ten; English or Mongolian pheasant and ruffed grouse, two, and not over six per season.

Charles W. Ream to Address Rotary Club Friday Evening.

Rotarian Chas. W. Ream, of Crellin, will address the weekly meeting of the Oakland Rotary Club at the William-James Hotel tomorrow evening on "My Own Business." Mr. Ream is a coal operator and has been eminently successful in that business.

Honorable David J. Lewis, of Cumberland, former Congressman from the Sixth Congressional District of Maryland, who may be an opponent of Congressman Frederick N. Zihlman in the next general election, was the principal speaker at the meeting of the club last Friday evening. His topic was the "World Court." He also carried a similar message to the regular weekly meeting of the Knights of Pythias lodge in Oakland where he was enthusiastically received.

The election of Rev. Charles A. Shilke as a member of the Rotary Club was announced at the meeting held Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Stanton entertained a number of their friends at their home on Fourth street Monday evening in honor of their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary.

ORTHOPEDIC CLINIC HAS AIDED TWELVE IN COUNTY

Crippled Children Have Received Treatment in Baltimore Hospital Since May 28.

Since the first orthopedic clinic in Garrett county on May 28, when Dr. George Bennett, orthopedic specialist, examined a number of cases at the Court House in Oakland free of all charges, twelve persons from the county have been treated in Baltimore hospitals, several of whom have been practically cured of their troubles and others greatly benefited.

Under the direction and help of Miss Rhesa M. King, public health nurse, the County Commissioners, the Oakland Rotary Club and the Oakland Civic Club, all these children who were unable to pay their expenses to Baltimore and return were helped by a fund provided by these organizations. A benefit picture at the Maryland Theatre also assisted in raising a fund to care for the traveling expenses.

Owing to the indecision on the part of the parents of several of these little cripples, there are still some in the county who have not been cared for, according to Miss King. When they finally made up their minds to send the children to Baltimore for treatment, the vacancies had already been filled by children from other counties of the State. As soon as possible, it is said, the remaining children of the county will be taken care of in the hospial and the schools in connection therewith.

A feature of the children's hospital, Miss King said yesterday, was that school work and classes continued the same as if the children were in the public schools of the State.

Several Children Return.

Among those who received treatment and have returned to Garrett county, are: Dailey, Orville and Inez Hershman, are now able to walk with casts on their legs and were discharged from the institution as very much improved; Fenton Platter, crippled leg and foot, has been back twice since June, greatly improved; Iva Klotz, of Grantsville, discharged as greatly improved about two weeks ago; Virginia Duke, Oakland, improved greatly; Peter Lohr, Accident, now home, hand improved; Madison Tucker, Steyer, home since June, hand improved; Maxine Mason, Oakland, hip improved, and will return home this week; Marie Schroyer, Friendsville, improved and will be able to walk in a year; Walter Wisseman, Grantsville, spine condition, discharged as greatly improved.

KITZMILLER, ELIGIBLE, LOSES TO WESTERNPORT

Garrett County Champs Defeated at Frostburg Saturday.

Becoming eligible to compete in the inter-county soccer clash, Kitzmiller High School booters were defeated by Westernport High School 6 to 1, after the Garrett county boys had held the lead at the close of the first half 1 to 0, at the Frostburg ball park, a neutral field, Saturday afternoon. About two hundred fans witnessed the contest.

Kitzmiller Leads Early.

Favored with a strong wind and a brilliant running attack, Kitzmiller played the Westernport eleven off its feet in the opening half. Bruce High played a ragged brand of soccer and time and again its goal line was threatened by the speedy little forwards of the opposition.

Frank Long, Kitzmiller forward, booted a penalty kick to take the lead 1 to 0.

Those playing for Kitzmiller were Beals, Pritts, Burrell, Burns, Ridder, Strachan, Sapp, Long, Walker, J. Sullivan, Malouse.

Several days before the game word was received from W. S. Pitman, P. A. L., field leader of Baltimore, to the effect that Kitzmiller was ineligible to play on account of having several players over the 21-year age limit. The same condition, in so far as one player is concerned, existed in the Oakland line-up. This order on the part of the league president was rescinded when he wired Referee Fitzberger that Kitzmiller was o. k. and that the game should be played as per schedule.

Card of Thanks.

FATHER AND SON BANQUET HELD BY AGRICULTURISTS

Local High School Club Tenders Parents and Friends Real Dinner and Entertainment

Eighty-seven persons were present at the first annual Father and Son banquet, held under the auspices of the Agriculture Club of the Oakland High School in the auditorium Tuesday evening.

L. S. Hartley, agricultural agent of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, spoke on opportunities made by their road for boys to do club work, and J. D. Blackwell, director of vocational education in Maryland, spoke on vocational education in agriculture in the State.

Mr. Blackwell said that over one thousand boys are enrolled for instruction in agriculture in Maryland and explained the purpose of project work in which each boy studying agriculture is required to do correlated farm work at home Fathers were urged to arrange that each boy might own and manage an acre of potatoes, corn or a similar project and that he might receive the returns.

Other addresses were made by Mr. F. E. Rathbun and J. L. McGlone. Music was furnished by the Oakland Quartet, composed of Wade H. Hinebaugh, Reeves Blandford, Cecil Smith and Jesse J. Ashby, accompanied by Wm. Gibson. Several selections were also played by Messrs. Thomas and Abel Browning, fiddlers, accompanied by Fred Shank, auto-harpist.

Wilbert Ridder, president of the Agriculture Club, made the introductory address and then turned the meeting over to Mr. Graser, who presided as toastmaster.

Mr. Loraditch presented Charles Dodge with a check for $10 as a prize in judging Jersey cattle at the Frederick Fair.

Fathers Like Idea.

Rev. F. L. Fultz responded for the fathers with the opinion that the banquet idea was a splendid means of securing co-operation between the home and the school. W. Tarbell, Accident; J. Carter, Friendsville, and Emerson Bishoff, Grantsville, all agriculture instructors in their respective schools, were introduced and spoke briefly.

Truly a Stag Affair.

The menu consisted of oyster stew, reamed chicken, peas, mashed potatoes, slaw, rolls with butter and jelly, celery, pie, cake and coffee, all donated by boys of the club and cooked by Wm. Turney, giving final proof that the banquet was strictly a stag affair.

Forty-two of the 47 boys regularly enrolled in agriculture were present, and 27 fathers or friends of the boys, namely: Jack Stevenson, Daniel A. Smouse, Wm. Hauser, U. Ford, Ernest Ridder, W. E. Spoerlein, Wm. DeBerry, D. Spiker, J. Dodge, B. Friend, T. Glotfelty, W. Sanders, W. Davis, O. Riley, O. Turney, A. Lawton, C. Kelly, W. Reith, A. Welch, M. Riley, M. Calhoun, N. Gnegy, C. Upole, G. White, C. Newman and A. Beckman.

The serving was done by boys from the club under the direction of James Dodge, head waiter.

The club wishes to thank all who contributed to the success of the banquet, especially to those who contributed the music; to H. Weber & Sons Co. for flowers; Oakland Hardware and Furniture Company for dishes; to those who spoke at the banquet and to the K. of P. Lodge and American Legion for dishes and chairs.

Pastors Requested To Make Appeal for Near East Relief.

An urgent request to the pastors of this community to make an appeal on Thanksgiving for the 33,000 orphans under care of the Near East Relief and to take a collection for them and for refugee mothers also under care of the relief organization is made by Harold F. Pelligrin, Potomac Division Director, of the relief organization, in a letter received by The Republican a day or two ago.

Mr. Pelligrin says: "This season offers no greater opportunity to give greater happiness than by giving generously on Thanksgiving Day for the support of the orphan children in the Bible lands and for refugee mothers in the Near East. Lives barren, bleak and devoid of the barest comforts may be made happier by these donations. I appeal to all pastors to make an appeal for these children and mothers, to take a special Thanksgiving offering for them and to send the donations to the Potomac Division headquarters, 1334 Connecticut Avenue, in Washington, D. C."

ANNUAL THANKSGIVING SERVICE WILL BE HELD

Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, will read the scripture lesson and lead in the devotions. Rev. A. D. Craig, of St. Paul's M. E. church, will preach the sermon. Other features will be added to the service which will make it a real thanksgiving service.

An offering will be taken which will be devoted to some benevolent cause. The offering should be liberal.

Everybody in the community is invited to be present and join in the service.

SAVE-A-LIFE CAMPAIGN ENDED SATURDAY NIGHT

Total of 1,003 Care Inspected by Six Oakland Garages—Fifty Per Cent Receive O. K. Mark

A total of 1,003 cars were inspected by six Oakland garages during the Save-A-Life campaign which closed at midnight on Saturday.

The State-wide campaign, which lasted from October 24 to November 12, found many in Garrett county taking advantage of the free inspection.

Figures from garages in other parts of the county are not now available.

Letters have been received by the local garage men requesting that the reports of the entire number be returned immediately, if they have not already been sent in.

A tabulation of the complete results will not be available until the end of the present week, but it is expected that when the final tabulation is made, the survey will show that seventy per cent of the automobiles in the State were inspected.

The Oakland garages which made inspections were Kerins Brothers, Evans, Oakland Garage, Houck, Treacy and Standard, which reported that about fifty per cent of all inspected cars were O. K. Others had trouble with brakes and lights.

63 Per Cent in State O. K.

A report to the effect that the free inspection would continue another three weeks was not confirmed by the local inspection stations. Of the 62,150 vehicles of the entire State on which detailed figures were available on Tuesday, 63 per cent were in perfect condition. Included among the remainder were 735 on which the steering apparatus required immediate replacement.

Other reports of the inspectors included brake relining, 2,714; light adjustments, 8,422; burned out bulbs, 2,298; cars without horns, 382; horns requiring adjustments, 1,858; trucks operating without mirrors required by law, 367.

Members of Church Basketball League To Hold Meeting

A meeting of managers, members of teams and friends of the Church Basketball League will be held tonight at 7:30 o'clock, it has been announced, to arrange a schedule of practice evenings and perfect other plans. The games will be played, it is said, in Naylor's Hall on Third street, and preparations to get the hall in shape immediately are now under way, according to the interested parties.

Messrs. Jess Jackson and Asa Shay, of Kingwood, were here yesterday en route to the Canaan Valley to participate in a bear hunt.

Write Your News Early

Being only human, the editor, his associates and employes, all are desirous of spending the day of Thanksgiving as other people spend it, and that means that The Republican will be published on Wednesday, November 23, one day earlier than its regular publication date.

For that reason it is requested that all correspondence, and news and advertisements for the Thanksgiving issue be in this office one day earlier than usual to insure their publication.

FIFTH COMMUNITY SALE WILL OCCUR DECEMBER 6

Oakland Merchants Arranging for Another Sales Day—May Have Two Specials to Offer

That the fifth community sale, in which practically every merchant in town will participate, would be held on Tuesday, December 6, was decided at a meeting of the managing committee of the community sales of the Oakland Commercial Club last Thursday evening. The sale will begin with the opening of business on December 6 and continue throughout the day and evening, as it has become the custom for the merchants to keep their stores open during the evening hours for the benefit of those people who cannot take advantage of the sales if the stores close at the usual time of six o'clock.

A page advertisement announcing the sale will appear in The Republican and The Mountain Democrat in the issue of December 1. "Bil" Gibson, solicitor, appointed by the committee, has been calling upon the merchants of town, and it is the desire of the committee and solicitor to complete their work as soon as possible.

Each merchant, according to the rules governing this sale, is given the privilege of advertising one or two articles at special prices for the sales day, and every merchant will make preparation to have an abundance of the advertised articles in stock in order that they may have sufficient for their trade.

Oakland's four other community sales were considered successes, bringing a large crowd of shoppers into town who returned to their homes with bargains.

WARING THOMAS, FORMER OAKLAND LAWYER, DROWNS

Discovered In Sea At Point on Shore Between New York and Boston—Police Puzzled.

A belated report of the drowning at sea of Waring Thomas, former Oakland lawyer, was recently received in Oakland. Mr. Thomas left here in the year 1893 and for many years thereafter his whereabouts were unknown, even to his most intimate acquaintances.

The account of Mr. Thomas' death at sea appeared in the Baltimore Sun under a Boston (Mass.) date line, and is as follows:

"The death of Waring Thomas, formerly of St. Mary's county, Md., and an uncle of Edward M. Thomas, of Baltimore, is being investigated by New York, Bristol, R. I.; Fall River, Mass., and Boston police.

"Mr. Thomas died after being taken from the water near Bristol eight hours after a New York-Boston vessel, which reported in Boston with one of her passengers, registered under the name of Thomas, missing had passed near the spot. The books of the steamer showed that Mr. Thomas had engaged a stateroom out of New York for Boston the night preceding.

Stateroom Found Empty.

"When the steamship, the Providence, reached its destination, Mr. Thomas' stateroom was found to be empty, but for some clothing, papers and a brief case. The ploice are working on the theory that Mr. Thomas either jumped or fell from the vessel.

"The Providence passed Bristol Ferry, about a mile from Mount Hope Bay, early in the morning and about eight hours later three boys who were fishing, saw the man struggling to keep afloat about 300 yards from the shore of the bay. They summoned Paul Herzig, captain of a ferry boat, who brought the unconscious man to the shore. Efforts to resuscitate him were unavailing.

"Whether Mr. Thomas fell from the steamer or jumped is not known. The investigators, however, are puzzled in considering how a man nearly 60 years old and with one leg shorter than the other could keep swimming for eight hours and why, if he had swum all that time he had not reached the shore, which was near by.

"Mr. Thomas maintained offices in both Boston and New York and had his residence in New York. He was connected with two corporations with headquarters in Boston.

"He is survived by his widow and a daughter and by other relatives residing in Baltimore.

Funeral services were held at St. Andrew's church, St. Mary's, Md."

MICAH CHAMPIONS THE OPPRESSED

LESSON TEXT—Micah, chs. 2, 3 and 6.

GOLDEN TEXT—What doth the Lord require of thee, but to do justly and to love mercy and to walk humbly with thy God.

PRIMARY TOPIC—What God Wants Us to Do.

JUNIOR TOPIC—What God Requires of Us.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What God Requires of Us.

YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Prophetic Interpretation of Religion.

Micah prophesied during the reign of Jothan, Ahaz and Hezekiah, in Judah, but his message largely concerned Israel. He is called the prophet of the poor. He proclaimed impending doom upon the workers of unrighteousness and heralded the coming of the Messiah.

I. Evil Workers Denounced (2:1-3).

1. How they worked (v. 1).

Their evil work was not a matter of impulse, but of deliberate purpose.

(1) It was conceived in their mind. They gave themselves to the devising of wicked schemes.

(2) They worked evil upon their beds. They used the quiet hours of the night while honest people were sleeping for planning ways to work out their schemes.

(3) They executed their plans in the morning light. Having power to carry out their schemes, they did what their wicked minds devised.

2. What they do (v. 2).

(1) They covet fields (v. 2).

In this they violated the tenth commandment.

(2) They violently take fields and houses.

A covetous spirit will eventuate in such deeds unless restrained.

(3) They oppress a man and his house (v. 2).

By house is meant a man's descendants, the inheritors of his property.

3. Their punishment (v. 3).

Against such evil doers God is devising a righteous retribution which will fall upon them with such weight as to humble them.

II. Upon Whom Judgment Shall Fall (3:1-12).

1. The unfaithful rulers (vv. 1-4).

Because of love for the evil and hatred for the good the rulers mercilessly destroyed the people.

2. The false prophets (vv. 5-8).

They served for hire. As long as supplied with food, they prophesied to please the people.

3. The judgment which is to fall (vv. 9-12).

Jerusalem was destroyed because of the sins of the people. Just as the righteous retribution fell then, we can be assured that there will be no escape from the coming judgment for those who destroy the people.

III. God's Controversy (6:1-13)

Wicked men may go on to a certain time with their schemes, but eventually the Lord's requirements shall be met.

1. The hills and the mountains called to bear witness against Israel (v. 2).

The people had turned a deaf ear to God so that inanimate creation was called upon to witness against them.

2. The guilty party left to state the case (v. 3).

The King of the universe abdicates His rights and allows His sinning people to make charges against Him.

3. God recounts His mercies unto the people (vv. 4, 5).

Having paused for the charge and none having been brought, the Lord thrust home upon their conscience the memory of His great mercies.

(1) He brought them out of Egyptian bondage (v. 4).

He has done even more for us who were under bondage to sin and Satan.

(2) Sent before them a trio of leaders (v. 4).

Moses, the lawgiver; Aaron, the high priest, and Miriam, the prophetess, were sent to bear witness.

(3) Turned Balak's curse into a blessing through Balaam (v. 5).

4. God's requirements (vv. 6-13).

(1) The great question, "Wherewith shall I come before the Lord?"

The Jews could not deny the charge brought against them by the Almighty.

(2) The complete answer (v. 8).

a. "To do justly." Strict equity was to characterize all their dealings with their fellowmen.

b. "To love mercy." The heart was to be diligently set to do good to our fellows.

c. "To walk humbly with thy God." This means to recognize that we are sinners before God, with no claim upon Him except His pardoning love.

Spiritual Power

Spiritual power is developed in action, just as muscles are developed. The more we try to help others, the more firmly shall we be established and the more we shall grow.—D. L. Marvin.

To Regenerate the World

The only way to regenerate the world is to do the duty which lies nearest to us and not to hunt after grand, far-fetched ones for ourselves. —Charles Kingsley.

When Maryland Belonged To Arcady, People Then Moved With Leisure

(By ALBERT K. WEINBERG, In the Baltimore Sunday Sun)

There has recently come to Baltimore the German moving picture Metropolis, the theme of which is the spiritual dearth and joylessness of modern urban life with its passion for machine-made efficiency and materialistic accumulation.

While it is a far cry from present-day Baltimore to the wildly exaggerated metropolis of the picture—exaggerated in both its technical inventiveness and its iniquity—yet the theme of the picture is one that for Marylanders lies very close to home.

For Maryland, more so than any other American State, is an instance of the supersession of a simple rural society by modern industrialism, Marylanders more than others must face the question whether the values of today's metropolis are really worth the giving up of the simpler and possibly more wholesome values of the past.

The social life of Maryland up to only a few generations ago was dominated by an almost completely Arcadian quality. By this it is not meant that it was primitive or poverty stricken; neither was the life of Arcady. It is meant rather that its elegance and wealth were that of the country and small town measure, lacking in urban artificiality and immoderateness.

The society of Maryland has always commanded leisure and comfort, but it has been a society of lords of the manor and of country squires. The leading people of Maryland first lived on manors, vast and well-organized estates that gave their stamp of both fine living and country simplicity to Maryland's social life for two ensuing centuries.

The life of these people was charming but simple. Today, for all our Maryland agriculture, the people who give the dominant tone to our social life reside in a great metropolis. Their life is complex—but is it as charming?

Those of the present generation cannot regret a past they have never known, but as late as 1876 plaintive voices were raised by Baltimoreans who had lived on into a different age. Dr. Oldboy, speaking to the interviewer from "Appleton's," then said:

"Manners and people have lost their careless ease, their good nature, their punctilious courtesy. We know more and we want more a thousandfold, and our knowlege—at least so it appears to me—brings us discontent, and our multiplied wants increase the difficulties of living and keping up social appearances.

"We did not know so much in those days of which we have been speaking, nor were our wants very many, but we knew enough to be aware that happiness was to be found in quietude and hospitality and neighborly feeling, and not in restlessness and 'push' and 'enterprise,' absorbing every faculty and drying up the life blood in the veins."

What were those days to which Dr. Oldboy wistfully referred? How did our ancestors, from the first settlers to our very grandfathers, work and play in that alleged golden age, It may be well to answer somewhat this query in pondering whether the metropolitan life of this vast Baltimore is worth the candle. At least it is possible to review quickly the main features of that idealized—perhaps over-idealized—country life.

First of all it must be known how Maryland came to be this State of manors with its society of noble country gentlemen. When Sir George Calvert, the first Lord Baltimore, asked for a part of the unsettled region to the north of the Potomac he received from the king the grant of Maryland in the form of a charter.

This charter erected Maryland into a palatinate, equivalent to a pricipality under the sole supremacy of the crown, with the right in the hands of the proprietor not only of giving small farms to simple settlers, but also of creating manors and all their dignities for those of higher social status and greater wealth.

Under the allurement of rich lands and manorial dignities finely blooded colonists rapidly settled the State, filling it with manors that were like feudal estates with their system of dependents or "retentioners," their subservience to the "lord's" interests, their agricultural mode of life.

There were no real towns in those early times. There was no reason for their establishment—all natural conditions were against them. Agriculture was the basis of life—specifically the raising of tobacco. The Chesapeake Bay and its innumerable river mouths, coves, creeks and inlets gave the agriculturalists a system of intercommunication which touched almost every manor and made towns or villages as facilities for shipping and business unnecessary. Ships brought wares to the planter's very door.

In St. Marys, courts were held and public business transacted, but there was nothing more. Planters were their own shippers, sending their tobacco themselves to their London agents; all necessary work was done by the dependents on the farms, even to the blacksmithing, and every manor was complete in itself.

For 150 years after the two ships, the Ark and the Dove, sailed into the Chesapeake, there was scarcely a town of any note with the exception of tiny St. Mary's. Annapolis superceded St. Mary's as the capital and put on much more of a front.

As for Baltimore, "Baltimore town" at the Revolution did not contain more than 8,000 inhabitants. It came into prominence at the time of the Revolution, when, being the city most securely defended against the British, many people came down from the invaded North, established themselves and built up the city residentially and industrially.

Thus can be understood the importance in Maryland's history of this manorial life. It continues down to the rise of Baltimore in the nineteenth century as a business center, and even down through most of the century as an influential tradition.

It is a long and continuous tradition. It can be separated into three fairly distinct periods: the early Colonial, the late eighteenth centry when Annapolis entered upon the scene and lent its aristocratic town to the social life, and the nineteenth century, when Baltimore became the center of a group of estates no longer manorial, but still distinct from the urban life of which they were the elegant fringes.

In the first place the life of the early planters was the life of those who are monarchs of all they survey, but whose realm was opulent only with the largesse of nature itself. Wealth in the modern sense they did not have; their houses were, even at best, two-story brick affairs, the material for which was dug from near-by clay pits.

Their multitudinous acres were filled with cows, horses, roaming wild hogs, featherde game and waterfowl that frequented the creeks and inlets as "millionous multitudes."

There were innumerable servants and helpers to organize this natural opulence—slaves and the so-called redemptioners who paid for their passage from the Old World with several years of service.

There were no real troubles with the Indians as in other American colonies. There was abundant drink to crown it all—cider and perry, imported rum, brandy, matheglin, elaret, "Fayal," or canary, and saek

The mental counterpart of this life of natural abundance, so different from the harsh conditions of the New Englanders, was a geniality which diffused men's spirits and manners. One could be opulently hospitable—there was never a shortage of food to worry about with the unexpected guest.

There was a merry out-of-door sport life—hunting, fishing, racing, cock-fighting, boating. Saddle horses and barges—carriages there were none—put every planter in touch with his neighbor and enabled abundant social life in the large dance room or at the hearth of blazing logs.

Nor was the cheerfulness of life confined merely to the externals. As we have said, there was a real kindliness which dominated the essential relations of men, both between equals and between masters and their servants.

The lords of the manor who never adopted the formal titles which Lord Baltimore had the right to grant them were democratic in their relations with their dependents and servants. They were religiously tolerant to a degree which is nowhere else exhibited in early Colonial history. They were punctilious in honor and honesty.

George Alsop, one of the redemptioners who spent four years on an estate in Baltimore county after coming in 1658, published on returning to England his "Character of the Province of Maryland" as a highly fulsome and poetic tribute to the land to which he induced others to emigrate.

"I think," he says in the opening paragraph, "there is not any place under the heavenly altitude, or that has footing or room upon the circular globe of this world, that can parallel this fertile and pleasant piece of ground in its multiplicity, or rather Nature's extravagancy of a superabounding plenty. * * So that those parts of the Creation that have born the Ball away (for many ages) for a vegetable plentiousness, must now in silence strike and vayle all and whisper softly in the audital parts of Mary-Land that none but she in this dwells singular."

Getting finally down to details, he speaks mainly of the plenteous victuals, among which venison was so common a meat as to be in disfavor; also of the hospitality, the tolerance, the absence of crime.

This was Arcady at its truest, but the Annapolis period, which forms the second stage, did not really degrade the moral and social qualities of the original manorial life.

Annapolis, indeed, was only a small town that was important because it was the capital; quite a number of the squires built their homes there, but they retained their manorial residence and only removed to their town homes for intervals.

Particularly after the Puritan element had lost its control of our politics the planters gathered at the little provincial capital during the session of the General Assembly. There was a real display of social cultivation. Manners and dress became, in keeping with the times, always ceremonious, but it was the ceremoniousness which is so solemn and extreme that it is really the height of naivete.

It is difficult to realize what a richness was brought into life out of so simple elements. This richness of life is enhanced in our eyes because there was no price of long slaving years which one had to pay to business to achieve it.

One was either wealthy by God's grant or one was not; and if one was not, well, one could have a share of the good things without working too hard. Of course, many of the features of those times sound antique and quaint enough to us.

Winston Churchill's novel tells of curious conveyances like chariots and coaches and fours; of musical instruments called spinets; of houses built with curving stairs and wide front verandas—"those Marylanders never admitted to themselves the cold weather;" of costumes made up by black satin breeches, peach-colored coat and waistcoat, shoes with pinchbeck buckles—and with the women by wide calashes and wider hoops; of breakfasts composed of sweet ham and venison, hot breads and sausages; of Negroes who sang carols on the lawn to "de quality" amidst serving of eggnog and punch; of festivities such as that of St. Taminas, May 1, when the young men dressed up as Indian bucks and danced about the May-pole on the town green or burst in at the "Coffee House" and made those within give them a shilling or even a crown in deference to the occasion.

The period seems far enough off, but so also does that third period in which the growing Baltimore became the center of our aristocracy—the center in the sense that their estates surrounded the city, and in that sense only.

These families looked toward the city; they saw it as the place of their newly established businesses, but they remained superciliously apart from its urban courseness. They lived in a semicircle of hills around the newly incorporated city—the merchants whose families had first come to Bltimore during the Revolution to establish businesses that would be safe from military disturbances.

There was the Patterson house, well known through the marriage of Elizabeth Patterson to Jerome Bonaparte; there was Green Mount, the home of Robert Oliver, another wealthy merchant, right next to it; still further westward was the mansion built by Col. John Eager, called Belvedere; Beechwood, the estate of Robert Gilmor, was on the west of the city and commanded a view of the Patapsco; a mile beyond the eastern boundary was Homewood, given by Charles Carroll to his son, and at the entrance of Green Spring Valley another fine mansion was the residence of his favorite daughter, Mrs. Caton, whose daughter wedded into the English peerage.

There were also innumerable other finely built country houses with large estates, so that for all the persistence of the country life in the rest of Maryland it might be said that our main aristocracy was in the hills around Baltimore.

Real manors there were no more; but all through the greater part of the nineteenth century the gentle tradition of that original country life persisted with not many modifications as the typical strain of Maryland culture.

The coat became larger and squarecut; the hooped petticoats gave way to more modern gowns, girdled under the arm-pits; pomatums and powdered and puffed hair finally took their place among the antiques.

But the manner of life was still leisurely and ceremonious—the manner of the lumbering times, "when, methinks, there was more of goodwill and less of haste in the world."

"Conversation then was a part of education. When social habits were so closely interwoven in the life of the people, to talk well was of itself a distinction. Not a week passed without a formal dinner party at some of these spacious country seats, and guests would frequently ride twenty miles to attend them."

To such people as Dr. Oldboy, in love with the past, Baltimore of today would be monstrous enough.

Yet, judged alongside of other cities, it is surely a place of a certain quaintness, quietness and oldness reflecting the manorial past of its state.

MT. LAKE PARK.

A special meeting was begun at the Pleasant Valley church on Monday evening which is being conducted jointly by Revs. Fultz and Middaugh.

Mr. Lee Hayden, of Roanoke, Va., was summoned here last Thursday evening on account of the very serious condition of his mother, Mrs. James A. Hayden, who is gradually growing weaker as the result of her continued illness.

Mrs. Neata Kline, of New York, has recently returned to her home here and I am informed will remain in the Park for an indefinite period.

Mrs. Wylie Falkenstine leaves today for Cincinnati to spend the winter with her son, who is engaged in evangelistic work in the central west.

The Park has two resident artists who are doing excellent work in their line. They are Mrs. Kneass, who has been here for many years, and Rev. A. Bailey, who is an adept on landscape work. He is now engaged in envangelistic work at Patterson's Creek,

J. A. Enlow has on hand quite a supply of telephone wire and fixtures which may be bought very reasonably.

This splendid weather is enabling the work of improvement to go right on here in the Park.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

Now You Tell One.

Those who read the two-column story on the eigth page of last Thursday's Republican on "During the Glacial Period" and couldn't follow the story from one column to the other, were perfeetly sane in their judgment, for it couldn't be followed. But those who thought that this was a mistake aren't so sane in the anatomical viewpoint. This was just a trick of getting people interested in both stories so that when they were run correctly they would be read by the paper's many readers.

P. S.—This was the make-up man's foolishness, and nothin' else but. Just when the corrected stories will be run again, Scoop does not know; indeed nobody knows, but what nobody is ken to won't hurt nobody, so why should anybody worry.

It Happens In All Families.

Once upon a time there was a young bride who asked her husband to copy off a radio recipe she wanted. The lad did his best but got two stations at once, one of which was broadcasting the morning exercise and the other the desired recipe.

"Hands on hips; place one cup of flour on the shoulders, raise knees and depress toes and mix thoroughly in one-half cup of milk. Repeat six times. Inhale quickly one-half teaspoon of baking powder; lower the legs and mash two hard-boiled eggs in a sieve; exhale; breathe naturally and sift into a bowl.

"Attention! Lie flat on the floor and roll the white of an egg backward and forward until it comes to a boil. In ten minutes remove from the fire and rub smartly with a rough towel. Breathe naturally, dress in warm flannels and serve with fish soup."

One Way of Doing It.

Early Saturday morning robbers entered the store of W. R. Hartman, two and one-half miles west of Kingwood, on the Tunnelton pike, and carried away a safe weiging 500 pounds and took it a distance of 150 yards down the hill where they sawed off the door hinges and pried the safe open and took several hundred dollars from within it.

The State and county officers are working on the case, but the miscreants were given so much time to cover up their work that it is not expected they will be apprehended.

The safe was stolen during the wee small hours of Saturday morning, and the loss was not discovered until about noon of that day, when it is said, the store keeper was wont to do his daily task of oiling the hinges. Otherwise, it is possible a week's time might have elapsed before the discovery.

But such is life in the wrlds of our neighboring county.

The Boss Returneth.

The boss got back from a two-weeks' visit to points in Florida last Thursday night. Of course he had to drift in just when the others in the plant had experienced a hectic week's work in getting out T. R. He had nothing much to say about his trip but what he said about a few slight typographical errors, made by Scoop, and appearing in the paper that day was a-plenty and more than made up for what he didn't tell us about Florida and intermediate stations. Otherwise the boss is a pretty good scout—if you happen to know him and he leaves his disposition at home or placed on a shelf not handy to reach.

MAKING THE FARM TRACTOR EARN ITS "KEEP" IN WINTER

In Winter While the Horse is Standing in His Stall, This Fordson Tractor is Kept at Work.

THE tractor costs considerably less to keep than the horse during the winter period of comparative inactivity, hut even during that period it can be put to a fairly active routine of work that will more than pay for its "keep".

On most farms there is wood to be hauled, sawed and stacked and, of course, the tractor in this case can do the work of several teams and many men—and do it in the face of such difficultiea as snow and sleet.

But more and more the progressive farmer is finding other important work which his light tractor can perform in the winter time and thus make use of much of the time which used to go to waste on the average farm.

The Agricultural Department of the State College of Pennsylvania, is now conducting a series of experiments which are developing new uses for tractors on the farm and is making investigations to ascertain how farmers in various sections of the country are employing their farm power units. In this work, the State College has found that a great many farmers are employing some of their winter time for the threshing of grain and here, of course, the tractor has been found invaluable. Many farmers also use their tractors for operating fodder chopping machines and for furnishing power for home grist mills.

Then there is always a certain amount of road work in the country districts in winter and many of the most progressive farmers have found that they can put their farm tractors to work for the county and state governments in scraping, rolling and repairing country roads. The work of clearing snow from the highways in winter also offers opportunities to the farmer to make his tractors work for the upkeep in winter.

So, the "power farmer" is keeping himself and his equipment busy in winter—much busier than he was when he depended upon mules and horses.

We Mean Just what We Say---Two Falls To Pay

Several years experience in the Tractor business and our contact with Fordson owners thorougly convince us that a Fordson will quickly pay for itself

Over 500,000 Fordsons have been sold to farmers and quite recently the U. S. Government purchased several hundred Fordsons to assist in fighting the corn borer. Such an endorsement is a tribute to the sturdy and dependable Fordson which has done so much to remove drudgery from the farm and cut production costs. The Fordson is a sound investment and as such we do not hesitate in offering terms which NOW make it easy to own one.

We hear so much today concerning relief for the farmer and assure you that any sound move in this direction will receive our hearty support. On the other hand we believe that practically every farmer can bring about his own relief to a certain extent by cutting production costs, as thousands and thousands of other farmers have done with their Fordsons. Farming after all is manufacturing and just as the manufacturer has adopted the most modern equipment available to speed up and lower his production costs, so of necessity the farmer should adopt Fordson equipment, which is generally recognized as another step forward in progressive and profitable farming. The sooner, the better.

We cordially recommend the purchase of a Fordson on the Two Falls to Pay Plan and—remember—you can pay for a Fordson out of the increased earnings.

HELP THE RED CROSS

The annual Red Cross campaign for members has been open since last Friday and to date less than twenty-five persons in the county have shown their interest by enrolling as members of this great mercy bestowing organization. This statement alone should and probably will make all want to either go to the local headquarters (Hamill's Book Store) and deposit a dollar or send that amount by mail.

Garrett county is expected to enroll only 250 members. During the war 1500 members were Garrett's quota and the people did not fail. Now, with only 250 members as the quota less than 25 have been obtained during the first week.

But there is a week yet in which to keep the faith and clear our record. If it is not possible to go to the headquarters in person, send in the dollar by mail.

Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover, who directed the relief operations of the American Red Cross and the agencies of the government in the Mississippi Valley floods, declares that five million members should be the very minimum of the expression of the confidence of the people in their Red Cross.

He continues: "The American Red Cross is charged by the Congress of the United States with the responsibility of continuing and carrying on a system of national and international relief in time of peace and of applying the same in mitigating the suffering caused by pestilence, famine, fire, floods and other national calamities, and of devising and carrying on measures for the preventing of the same.

"If the American Red Cross had not already given conclusive proof in the past decade of its ability to fulfill these obligations, it amply demonstrated its fitness to serve as the Nation's agency for providing the services of rescue and relief in disaster during the months the Mississippi River and its tributaries were creating the greatest catastrophe in our history."

Taking a more recent disaster, there is the New England flood and numerous other occasions when this organization rose to the responsibilities confronting it. Need any more be said?

Lutherans to Form Young Peoples Organization.

Ten or more young people, representatives of the local Lutheran congregation, together with Pastor Shilke will go to Fairmont, West Va., tomorrow afternoon where they will participate with representatives of the other Lutheran churches of the West Virginia Synod in forming an official young people's organization, which will link them with the Luther League of America, which is the outstanding and official young people's society of the United Lutheran Church in America.

Rev. Robert Wolfe, of Philadelphia, who is secretary of the Intermediates of the League, will be present and aid in forming the organization.

The young people of the Fairmont church will tender a banquet to the visitors and attending pastors. Mr. W. E. Yutzy, president of the local organization in St. Mark's church, will be one of the speakers.

When this organization has been formed it will represent about thirty-five congregations with an approximate membership of two thousand young people.

RABBITS WITH DISEASED LIVERS SEEM TO BE SCARCE

Health Department Issues Warning—Local Hunter Says Rabbits Always Had Small Spots

No further reports concerning the diseased livers of rabbits (white spots on that organ) have been received, according to Dr. Henry W. McComas, health officer.

One veteran sportsman of Garrett county is quoted as having said that the rabbits of this section, and presumably of other sections, always had the little white spots on their livers and which are being taken into account so much in the present day.

It has been reported, however, that several of the animals shot had livers seriously diseased and containing pus in quantities. No cases of illness in the human family have been reported following the consumption of the rabbit's meat, Dr. McComas said. The resultant disease is said to be contracted by humans through abrasions or cuts in the skin when contact is made with the fur or other parts of the body of the hares.

Many inquiries have come to the health department in regard to safety in eating rabbits where the liver has been found to be diseased. To answer these inquiries fully, the department is issuing the following warning:

"Rabbits or squirrels found with diseased livers are suffering with a disease called 'tularemia.' Animals suffering with this disease should not be used for food. Many of the wild rabbits in this territory are believed to be suffering with tularemia. Various parts of the body besides the liver are likely to be infected. Even if the liver has been removed other parts of the body may show the typical white spots as manifested by the disease.

"Tularemia is caused by the bacterium tulerense. The infection is insect borne, but man usually contracts the disease by handling infected animals or carcasses of animals. The infection enters the body through an abrasion or opening or cut in the skin. The disease will appear from two to five days after the infection enters the body through the skin.

"The meat and carcasses of animals suffering with tularemia should not be handled except with rubber gloves. To be on the safe side, do not eat rabbits or squirrels this season," the health department warning concludes.

Oakland High Wine One First Place In State Fair Meet

Charles Dodge, about 16 years of age, and a member of the second year class of Oakland High School, was presented with a check for $10 at the Father and Son banquet held Tuesday night at the local high school, for having won first place in the judging of Jersey cattle in the State-wide contest at Frederick on October 19. The announcement came as a complete surprise to the winner and those present upon the occasion. The presentation was made by H. A. Loraditch, president of the Board of Education. The check was given by Frederick Agricultural Society. Dodge was one of four Oakland boys who represented the high school in the State contest.

Oakland has been rather fortunate in winning prizes in State contests since agriculture has been taught in the local school. In 1924 Elwood Hauser and Charles Warren won second in the State in cattle judging and young Hauser took third place on the State team representing Maryland in the National Fair held at Indianapolis in October, 1925, and which won second in the United States.

In 1925, Dale Sanders won $10 as first prize in judging Holstein cattle, and in 1926 William DeBerry won $10 as the best judge of white corn.

Graham Brothers Truck Orders In October Set Year's Record

Orders for Graham Brothers trucks, commercial cars and motor coaches during October totalled 6,212, breaking all previous monthly records for the year, according to an official statement from the truck division of Dodge Brothers, Inc. This represents approximately $7,300,000 worth of business at retail values for the single month, the statement points out.

The October record shows an increase of eleven per cent over the number of orders in September and shows the constantly increasing demand for Graham Brothers trucks since the introduction of a complete new line in August. Factories are working at capacity to meet the demand.

Dodge Brothers dealers who sell and service Graham Brothers trucks thruout the world report enthusiastic reception of the new one-half ton delivery car which was announced October 30th as an addition to the line of three-quarter, one ton and larger vehicles manufactured by the company. The new delivery car is smart in appearance and capable of very fast service, according to the makers.

WILL DISTRIBUTE THIRTY MILLION SEALS IN STATE

T. B. Association Office Is Now Miniature Mail Order House

With a corps of trained workers typing two hundred thousand envelopes which will carry approximately thirty million Christmas seals to every corner of the State, the offices of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association at Baltimore have taken on the appearance of a miniature mail order house.

On Thanksgiving Day, throughout the United States, the Tuberculosis Christmas Seal will make its twentieth appearance. The seal this year is printed in four colors, the Christmas greens and reds predominating. Santa and his sleigh full of good things are shown drawn by four prancing reindeers, dashing over the snow covered landscape. In the upper right-hand corner is the double-barred cross, the emblem of the National Tuberculosis Association in its fight against the white plague. At the bottom of the seal is the caption, "Christmas Greetings and Good Health.'

Twenty years ago the Christmas Seal was unknown in this country as a means of raising funds for health work, and the deaths reported from tuberculosis in the United States that year were over 300,000. Contrast that with the number of deaths from the disease in the United States last year. Records show that after nineteen years of efficient health work, made possible by the little seal, and official and voluntary health organizations, that the death rate has been cut by more than half. "This means," said Dr. Martin F. Sloan, president of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, "that our work is only half done."

Mrs. C. Milton Sincell, of Oakland, seal sale chairman for this county, is now organizing the seal sale committee which will assist in what is hoped will be the most successful campaign for health ever launched in Garrett county.

Thirty million Christmas Seals have been supplied for Maryland, and on Thanksgiving Day they will fall like snow covering every hill and dell, spreading their message of health and good cheer. They will sell for one cent each.

DIED

DEATH OF AN INFANT.

Frederick Earl, aged nearly two months, infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Fields, of near Oakland, died on Friday evening, November 11. Funeral services were held Sunday afternoon at the home of the parents. The remains were taken to Herring, W. Va., the same day where interment was made, Rev. C. A. Shilke conducting the services both at Oakland and at Herring.

MISS MARY LOUISE COGLAN.

Many are the beautiful and fragrant tributes of affection that have been laid upon the last lone resting place of the late Miss Mary Louise Coglan. She was the eldest child of Mrs. Rose W. and the late Wm. R. Coglan, of affectionate remembrance. She was an innocent, natural fun-loving little maid. She was a bright, obedient student, unconsciously gifted, especially in music. Her voice had that drawing, endearing quality and strength which gave great promise.

She was aged twenty-one. Besides her widowed mother she is survived by two brothers, William R. and Francis Connell Coglan, and three sisters, Dolores, Dorothy and Regina.

In the springtime of her young life her ambitions, her hopes and her plans to enhance the happiness of her dearest ones, God's angel stole in with silent tread and laid the holy seal upon her pure brow and called her dead.

She died in Asehville, N. C., on Monday morning, October 31. The remains were brought to Oakland for interment in God's acre. The Mass of Requiem was sung by Rev. Father William McVeigh. The organist was Mrs. James P. Treacy. At the ending of the mass the choir sang the hymn, "Take Me, My Jesus, to Heaven," a special favorite of the departed. On this date 23 years ago, Mrs. Treacy presided at the organ on the occasion of the wedding of Mrs. Coglan.

Dear young Oakland friends of her happy chiidhood days, let us lift our tearful eyes beyond the stars and try to comprehend her present perfect bliss. All the tenderest emotions, all the richest love which has pulsed human hearts, cannot exceed in holy sweetness the unspeakable sublime reward of a deserving soul.

The flower girls at the funeral were Misses Monica Maroney, Mary Faherty, Sarah Catharine Stanton, Rosemary Maroney, Bernadette Maffett and Bernadine Canty. The pall bearers were Messrs. Leo Helbig, Richard Maroney, James Hart, Robert Maroney, James Kerins and John Maroney.

Stolen Car Recovered.

Carl A. Dodge, while on business in Oakland on Tuesday evening of last week, parked his car in front of the Evans garage. When he was ready to return to his home in Terra Alta he was unable to find the car. Wednesday evening he came down to Oakland and found his car parked on another street. The supposition is that the car had been used by joy riders.

Oakland High School News.

On last Thursday evening a very successful Parent-Teacher meeting was held in the school building. Rev. C. A. Shilke gave a splendid talk on cooperation between teachers and parents.

The Seniors, under the direction of Miss Kay Stenholm, presented a play entitled "Jumbo Jum," which was quite enjoyable.

An election of officers of the Parent-Teacher Assocition was held and the following persons were chosen:

President, Mr. Harry Porter; vice-president, Mr. A. S. Ours; secretary and treasurer, Mr. Arthur Humbertson.

The students and faculty hope that the parents and friends of the school will visit the school often and by their cooperation and good will make this the most successful year ever.

Keep in mind the big High School play coming on December 15. Save your pennies! It's going to be a good one!

Was the stag dinner, given by Mr. Graser's agriculture boys on Tuesday night a success? Well, we guess it was! Just ask the guests.

The Sophomore class is planning a party to be given in the school auditorium, Friday night, November 21. It is expected to be a very attractive affair. Guests are by invitations. At eleven o'clock the curfew will ring and all guests are invited to go home.

PLEA IS MADE TO ASSIST IN PROGRESS OF BOYS BAND

Organization Expected to Make Its First Public Appearance the Latter Part of December

"The Oakland Boys' Band will make its first appearance in public about Christmas time," R. R. Gilbert, director, said yesterday. "If the same improvement is shown by the boys from now on as they have shown up to the present time, they will make a creditable showing and will greatly surprise those who have evinced an interest in them financially and otherwise."

Assisting the band in every way possible is the Ladies' Auxiliary, composed of the mothers and friends determined to make this band a success.

On September 28 a card party was given as an aid to this cause, which netted the sum of $78.82. Since then checks for music, music racks, heat, light and instruction books have been issued, amounting to $8.45. Cash donations have been made by the following persons:

J. E. Harned, $10; Bittner & Stahl, $2; W. E. Shirer, $2; James Bell, $1; The Republican, $5; Dr. B. F. Selby, $5; J. S. Tucker, $1; C. N. McIntire, $5; D. E. Offutt, $5; F. A. Thayer, $5; Cecil Smith, George Littman, Reeves Blandford, Delbert Davis, Elmer Haulenbeek, S. O. Swan, Mrs. Elwood Offutt, $1 each; A. D. Naylor, $5; Dr. M. C. Hinebaugh, $2; Garrett National Bank, $5; Dr. W. Ravenscroft, $2; J. C. Renninger, Dr. W. W. Grant, C. J. Newman, Carroll A. Elliott, $1 each. The total amount collected and deposited to date is $144.82.

To Hold Food Sale.

The women of the Auxiliary are arranging to conduct a food sale in the offices of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company on Saturday, November 19, and are in hopes that the amount realized from this sale will enable them to have purchased one alto horn and one bass horn.

President Asks For Support.

Mrs. Ralph Weber, president of the Auxiliary, makes a plea for the financial and moral support of the band in the following:

"Each boy playing an instrument pays fifty cents a month, but the eighteen able to afford instruments cannot cover all expense. Why should Oakland have to send out of town when we could have our own Boys' Band? Most of these boys are under high school age and sons of permanent citizens. That means at least four years in Oakland. Do we want our boys idling around the streets? Or will you insist that they become worthwhile citizens? The reason that our other bands have been failures is because our citizens promised to back them; some few did far more than their share, others did nothing.

"Some members of the old Oakland band appreciate the help so much that they are now trying to repay by attending the practice nights and assisting Mr. Gilbert free of charge. Chief among these is Russel Brown who has been a constant help in the practice hall and in giving private lessons at his home.

"Lend your hand, not by criticising their first attempts, but by encouraging them. Things worth while cost something; a band will cost you money, but when you have done your part you will have a right to expect them to make good."

Donations Exaggerated.

There seems to be some mistake, or at least a great exaggeration as to the amount donated to the last band in Oakland, according to Mr. Gilbert, and he is now engaged in listing a financial statement of that organization from the time of its formation on August 28, 1925, to July 13, 1927.

There was received, for services rendered, $440.20; advanced by R. R. Gilbert, $7; donations by Dr. McComas, $5; by Joseph E. Harned, $10; Biggs reunion, $20.22; donated, $25. Total receipts, $507.42. There was paid out: for instruments, music, light and heat, etc., $507.15.

Mr. Gilbert wants anybody who has made donations to the band between the dates above mentioned and who is not listed, to have it brought to his attention and added that the books will be open to inspection.

"If you have made donations prior to August 28, 1925, we are sure they were appreciated," he said, "and the money was wisely spent. However, that money will not help the boys that are now giving their time and money to have a boy's band in Oakland."

Order of Publication

Harry Columbus Rumers vs. Tabitha Rumers.

No. 2787 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree a vinculo matrimonii, divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states that the plaintiff was married to the defendant in Allegany County, Maryland, and that they resided together as man and wife, in Garrett County, Maryland, until the 27th day of December, 1923.

The Bill further states that the conduct of the plaintiff toward the defendant has been kind, affectionate and above reproach, and that the said defendant, without just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years, and that the separation of the parties is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

That while said defendant has travelled about from place to place since such abandonment, the plaintiff is informed, and believes that at this time she is living and residing in the State of Pennsylvania.

That no children were born to the said plaintiff and defendant as a result of said marriage.

The Bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii, and for such other and further relief as the nature of his case may require, and also for the order of publication.

It is thereupon, this 29th day of October, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 10th day of December, 1927, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor on or before the 26th day of December, next, to show cause, if any she had, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

And it is further ordered that in lieu of such publication a copy of this order may be served personally upon the said defendant, Tabitha Rumers, on or before the 17th day of November, 1927, in accordance with Section 142 of Article 16 of the Code of Public General Laws of the State of Maryland, warning her to appear and show cause as aforesaid.

William S. Harvey vs. Morris Sisk and ——Sisk, his wife; Bessie Wright and —— Wright, her husband, and the unknown heirs of William C. Sisk, late of Garrett county, deceased.

No. 2789 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County, Maryland.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree for the sale of certain real estate situate, lying and being in Garrett county, to satisfy a certain vendor's lien on same.

The bill states that on November 4, 1922, the plaintiff sold to one William C. Sisk certain real estate situate, lying and being in Garrett county; that on the same day he executed and delivered a deed to the said Sisk for said property, and therein retained a vendor's lien to secure the unpaid purchase money on said property.

That some time in the year 1924, the said William C. Sisk departed this life intestate, leaving said purchase money unpaid, and that the whole of the same, together with the interest thereon, is long since overdue and unpaid.

The bill further states that the said William C. Sisk was unmarried, but left as his heirs at law one Morris Sisk, a brother, and a sister, Bessie Wright, and certain nephews and nieces, children of a deceased brother and sister, and possibly another brother, as his only heirs at law, but the name of said last named brother, and whether he is living or dead, is unknown to the plaintiff; and that the names, ages and places of residence of said nephews and nieces are unknown to the said plaintiff.

The bill then prays that the said unknown heirs of the said William C. Sisk may be treated and proceeded against as non-residents, that the writ of subpoena be granted to the plaintiff for the known resident heirs and for an order of publication for the unknown heirs.

The bill then prays for a decree for the sale of said property and for other and general relief.

It is thereupon, this 25th day of October, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court for Garrett county, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in Garrett county once in each of four successive weeks before the 25th day of November, 1927, give notice to the unknown heirs of the said William O. Sisk, of the object and substance of this bill, warning them to appear in this Court in person or by solicitor on or before the 12th day of December, next, to show cause, if any they have, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed. TIME IS SHORT FOR VETS TO DRAW COMPENSATIONS

Applications Will Not Be Received After January 1st of the Coming Year.

The time is short for the World War veteran to get his Adjusted Compensation.

Not only on Memorial Day, but on every day in the year taps is echoing throughout the United States and Legion firing squads are rendering final salutes over new graves. With 3,300,000 World War veterans holding adjusted service certificates (the so-called bonus certificates) 33,160 payments had been made to beneficiaries of certificate holders up to the middle of 1927, and the amount paid had reached the total of $33,890,593.

Certainly these figures prove that the overwhelming majority of World War service men appreciated the Adjusted Compensation Law sufficiently to take advantage of its provisions. Mothers and fathers, widows and children of more than 33,000 men already have benefitted by the thoughfulness which inspired applications for the certificates. That fact should be an urgent reminder to 700,000 service men who so far have not applied for their adjusted compensation certificates, most of them because of ignorance of the conditions under which applications for the certificates may be made, or indifferencee.

Those who have not applied should do so now as a duty to their dependents if not to themselves. The time to do so is short. January 1, 1928, is the last day on which applications may be filed.

The man who has not yet applied should be reminded that the adjusted compensation certificate is a fully paid-up endowment insurance policy. If the holder of the policy should die before the end of twenty years his beneficiary would receive the full sum in cash which the policy holder himself would have received had he lived.

In case a veteran dies without having made an application, his beneficiaries may apply, but they can receive only about one-third of the amount to which they would have been entitled had the veteran himself applied.

Not only is adjusted compensation the absolute and well-earned right of every veteran of the World War for himself, as a part of the pay he earned in service, but it becomes a sacred duty for every man with dependents to make his application and make it at the earliest possible moment.

The American Legion post in Oakland and elsewhere has the forms and will be glad to fill them out for you if you will only get in touch with them, as it is their duty to all World War veterans to help and assist them at all times without charge.

DON'T BE A TRANSMITTER

If You Have a Cold, Keep It To Yourself.

"If you have a cold, keep it to yourself. Don't broadcast your germs. Sneeze into your handkerchief. Cough behind your hand—and don't shake hands with anybody until you have washed your hands thoroughly. Keep a plentiful supply of paper handkerchiefs on hand and destroy them as you use them."

These were some of the dos and don'ts suggested by Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, as a means of decreasing the annual crop of so-called "colds." Continuing, he said:

"Colds are among the penalties of civilization. Living as we do in constant contact with other people, it is hard to keep out of reach of other people's germs. We can avoid colds to a certain extent by keeping as fit as possible—by eating nourishing foods, dressing according to the weather, getting as much fresh air and sunlight as possible and having plenty of sleep. But if the person who works next to you, or who sits near you at school, or at church, or at the movies, or at any other place where humans congregate, sneezes or coughs in your face, or shakes hands with you after coughing behind his hand, you have to be very 'fit' to resist the onslaught of his germs.

"There are other disseminators of the common cold that have been duly outlawed and that should be avoided—but they still bob up even in civilized society. I mean the common drinking cup, the common towel and the common wash cloth. This latter is especially likely to be found where there are a number of little children in a family and where cups and towels and wash cloths have a way of getting passed around."

He paused for breath, and then asked: "Did you ever see a mother or a big sister moisten her handkerchief and use it to clean up a baby's face? Did you ever see a father give a precious baby a taste of something off the grown-up's plate, on the fork or the spoon he has just taken out of his own mouth? Neither of them would intentionally harm the baby, but when they do things like that they are being germ transmitters.

"If you contract a cold, the quickest way to get well is to go to bed, send for your doctor and follow his advice."

VOLUME 52. OAKLAND, MARYLAND, NOVEMBER 24, 1927 NUMBER 40.

CHICKENS TO FLY WHEN COMMUNITY SALE IS HELD

Will Be Loosed From Roof of First National Bank Building Afternoon of December 6.

Chickens and turkeys will fly from buildings in Oakland during the afternoon of Tuesday, December 6, the day set for the fifth community sale, and anybody fortunate enough to catch one of the fowls will be just that much better off, according to the Oakland Commercial Club, which has been managing the sales in the past.

The fowls will be loosed from the top of the First National Bank building about three o'clock, according to those having charge of the sales and publicity of the Club.

The community sale will begin with the opening of business on December 6 and will continue throughout the day and evening. A page advertisement announcing the sale will appear in The Republican in its issue of December 1. Col. William Gibson, solicitor, appointed by the committee, has been calling upon the merchants and it is expected that enough advertising matter will be secured to fill more than one page of the paper, according to the solicitor when he was seen yesterday.

Each merchant, according to the rules governing this sale, is given the privilege of advertising one or two articles at special prices for the sales day. There will be an abundance of the article advertised, according to the merchants participating in the special sale for the day.

Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church, will read the scripture lesson and lead in the devotions. Rev. A. D. Craig, of St. Paul's M. E. church, will preach the sermon. Other features will be added to the service which will make it a real thanksgiving service.

Everybody in the community is invited to be present and join in the service.

These weekly addresses are a series of talks which will be made at different times during the winter by members of the Rotary Club.

Methodist, Rotary Gortner and Crellin were successful in winning the majority of their games, while the losers, who won one game out of the three were the Presbyterians, Lutherans, Printers and the Ramblers.

Two games will be played on each night of entertainment, it was decided.

Practice will begin the early part of next week.

GRANTSVILLE COUNCIL DECIDES ON NEW LIGHTS

Will Be Four Times Amount of Light Now Supplied on Street

By G. W. Diefenbach

Improved Street Lights Coming.

The Town Council met in special session on Monday evening to consider an improved street lighting system proposed by the Associated Maryland Electric Power Corporation, being a subsidiary of the Associated Gas and Electric Corporation of Johnstown, Pa., which company is now serving the town with electrical energy. A representative body of citizens were also present to hear the proposals, which were looked upon with favor generally, and culminated in the Council entering into a contract with the power company to furnish fifteen of the latest type street lamps for the main street of the town instead of eleven now used. The proposed installation will furnish four times the amount of light now being supplied. The power company will erect and maintain the system in every particular, thus relieving the council of much annoyance and oversight as is the case at present. There has been considerable complaint from users of electric current about not being able to operate their appliances to full capacity due to lack of energy. The representative of the company assured all that the lines will be renewed and put in such shape that an abundance of energy can be supplied at all times.

The Council fixed the annual tax rate at 30 cents on the one hundred dollars of taxation; that being the rate in effect for a number of years.

The curfew ordinance, which has not been enforced since the death of policeman Nicholas Murphy about eight years ago, was repealed, thereby relieving the town authorities of the responsibilities imposed.

Miss Gingerich Married.

The following news item appeared in the Frostburg column of the Cumberland Daily News, of November17. Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gingerich, Broadway, announce the marriage of their daughter, Vilda Pearl, to Edgar Henry Frank, a son of Henry Frank, of Hoffman, the marriage being solemnized at 7:30 a. m., Thursday at Zion Evangelical church with the Rev. Arthur Sinninberg, officiating. The attendants were Mr. and Mrs. James Close.

The birde was attired in dark sand colored flat crepe gown with hat and slippers to match. Mrs. Engle wore tan satan back crepe. Following the wedding ceremony, a breakfast was served at the bride's home on Broadway after which the bridal couple left for Washington, D. C., and Baltimore, where they will spend their honeymoon. They will reside temporarily with the bride's parents until Spring, when they will move into their own home on E. Union street, extended, where the groom is now having a beautiful residence erected.

Mr. Frank is a prominent young man of this community and a member of the Church Council of Zion Evangelical church. His bride, for several years, has been a sales lady at Wittig Confectionery, and is well and favorably known in this community as well as in Grantsville, where she resided before coming to Frostburg.

Selbysport Girl Wins Second Prize in Contest

Young Mary Frazee, of Selbysport, won second place in the Cleveland, Ohio, district cream contest for Blue Valley boys and girls, the little lass has been notified. Accompanying the letter was a check for $10, which represents the second prize in the district contest.

The first prize of $25 in the Cleveland district contest went to Ivan Skiff, a farm boy of Sand Lake, Pa.

Close to six thousand boys and girls in seventeen states took part in the general contest, which embraced entries from 22 districts. One thousand eight hundred one cash prizes in all were distributed between the winning boys and girls. Rena Proell, of Sauk Center, Minn., was awarded the grand prize.

RED CROSS DRIVE HERE IS TERMED MISERABLE FLOP

Less than One-Seventh of Entire Quota Is Subscribed—Thirty-five Dollars Donated.

With one day left in the drive for members of the Red Cross in Garrett county, the amount turned in is not expected to be more than one-seventh of the quota desired. At noon Wednesday there had been $35 turned in at Hamill's Book store, headquarters for Garrett county, and a membership of 250 was desired.

Forgetfulness is given as the main cause of the drive's dismal failure here. There was but one station in the entire county and no personal solicitation, and it is assumed that people were busy with other things.

One dollar, sent to headquarters, either by mail, carrier, or taken in person, would have enrolled one in the annual membership drive, but according to Miss Frances Hamill, there were no applications received by mail.

This is the first year that Garrett county has not subscribed her entire quota, according to Mrs. E. Z. Tower, chairman for the county. During the war Garrett county subscribed over $1500 in one drive, but the present figures for the past two weeks show less than $40.

"With the tremendous amount of good work accomplished by the Red Cross," Mrs. Tower said, "it seems strange indeed that more have not come forward voluntarily and paid their dollar."

Friendsville K. of P's. Hold Interesting Meeting.

Youghiogheny Lodge, No. 134, Knights of Pythias, held its regular meeting Friday night, November 18, with four candidates waiting for the third degree. Quite a few members from Confluence and Addison Lodges, as well as one member of the Oakland Lodge, were present.

The four candidates were given the rank of knight and all were served refreshments, following the business session.

Those who were absent certainly missed a treat. To make our order a success, every member should be present. Come to meetings and see what you are missing, for one never knows what is coming. To make our order successful, there must be cooperative work with every one of the members.

In the near future the lodge is planning for another class.—C. W. W.

F. F. NICOLO ADDRESSES MEETING IN PITTSBURGH

Prominent Citizen Spends Summers in Garrett County

F. F. Nicolo, a leader among Pittsburgh real estate men, addressed the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board Tuesday, November 22, at the William Penn Hotel, following the annual Thanksgiving luncheon of the board. Mr. Nicolo is well known in Allegany county, having constructed a large number of the homes in Cumberland erected when the Kelly-Springfield Tire plant came to that city. His summer home is at Rock Lodge, Garrett county, Md., about ten miles from Oakland, along the shores of the new lake.

Mr. Nicolo, since establishing himself in Garrett county, has done much toward the development of that section, paying special attention to forestry matters. Several years ago he planted thousands of pine trees, on land which he owns, as an object lesson as to what good could be done in the matter of reimbering the country.

Mr. Nicolo achieved a notable success in Pittsburgh with the development of the Schenley Farms district, the growth of which into the Pittsburgh million dollar civic center, stands out as one of the achievements in real estate in the country.

On Sunday, November 20, Rev. W. E. Waybright, pastor of the Eglon Lutheran charge, was formally installed into his office of the Gospel ministry, at St. John's Lutheran church. The Rev. W. P. Cline, Jr., president of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of West Virginia, preached the sermon to the charge and to the pastor. Rev. Cline also held the installation service.

He told the charge that the future for the Eglon charge looks bright. However, there is much work to be done by the people as well as the pastor, he said. A large audience was present at the service.

CHRISTMAS CLUB SAVINGS CHECKS TO TOTAL $15,500

Distribution to be Made by Local Banks on December 1—Many to Receive Benefit

Approximately $15,500 will be distributed on December first from the Christmas Savings Clubs of the Garrett National and First National Banks of Oakland, it was announced today. The total will be given out to about 250 depositors, it is said.

The Christmas Savings feature was established in Garrett county about two years ago by the First National Bank and last year this policy was introduced by the Garrett National Bank of Oakland, and the First State Bank at Grantsville.

While many of these checks will find their way into the stockings of many Oakland residents, a goodly number will be cashed and immediately used for Christmas shopping.

By depositing small amounts each week those who have taken advantage of the Savings Club now have at their command just at this time, when demands are made for funds with which to buy Christmas remembrances, money sufficient in many cases to meet these demands without having to wait for th enext pay day.

Both the First National and the Garrett National Banks will begin next year's Christmas Savings accounts on Monday, December 12, and they will take care of as many as may choose to take advantage of the opportunity of creating a fund for the Christmas shopping of 1928.

TUBERCULOSIS SEAL SALE TO BEGIN THANKSGIVING

Seventy Per Cent of Fund Goes For County Health Work

With every available medium of publicity and distribution functioning, the twentieth annual Tuberculosis Christmas Seal sale, sponsored by the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, opens on Thanksgiving Day throughout the State.

Approximately 200,000 mail sale letters were sent out, containing the Christmas Seals and information bearing on the prevention and the stamping out of tuberculosis in the State.

Seventy percent of the funds raised in each county will be used to finance county health work; five per cent will be sent to the National Association to assist in carrying on the nation-wide fight against the disease, and twenty-five per cent will be sent to the State Association to be used to help defray the expense of supplies, field service, publicity and education.

The county organizations that depend upon the sale of Christmas Seals for their support are: "The Miracle House" at Clairborne for undernourished and undersized children, chest clinics, child health education, nursing service, education and publicity.

TWO RAIDS MADE DURING WEEK RESULT IN 1 ARREST

Kempton and McHenry Scenes of Raids By Officers.

Two places, raided during the past week by local and Federal officers, netted one arrest and very little "evidence," according to Sheriff Casteel, who participated with the group of officials in staging the raids.

Tuesday, the house of a man by the name of Kabinsky was raided by Federal Agents Hubb, Seymour, and Deputy Sheriff Cole, which netted them one barrel of mash. The man escaped.

Last Friday, Constable Shartzer, Sheriff Casteel and Federal Officers Loeker, Jack and Barr, raided a very recently erected still near McHenry and confiscated some whiskey, sugar and several gsa burners. The still had been in operation oly a short while. A man named Schroeder, of New York, was arrested and was accorded a hearing before Justice W. A. Gonder, who held him under $500 bond for his appearance in the local court next month. The man gave a number of "aliases" concerning his true name.

Little Girl Has Nose Broken.

Little Viola Shipley, the 3-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Shipley, of Mountain Lake Park, had her nose broken Tuesday afternoon when it is thought the boards of a rope swing struck her after she had fallen from the swing backward. She was in the yard of a neighbor at the time of the accident.

MARGARET ORENDORF DIES FOLLOWING AN OPERATION

Was Daughter of County Commissioner and Mrs. Orendorf

Funeral services for Mary Margaret Orendorf, aged eighteen years, youngest daughter of County Commissioner and Mrs. Daniel E. Orendorf, of near Oakland, who died in Hoffman Hospital, Keyser, West Va., on November 20, following an operation for appendicitis performed about four weeks ago, were held Tuesday afternoon at two o'clock in St. Mark's Lutheran church, Oakland, the Rev. Charles A. Shilke, pastor, officiating, being assisted by Dr. R. T. Vorberg, pastor of Trinity Lutheran church, Keyser, West Va. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

The deceased was a seeond-year student at Potomac State College, Keyser, where she was a prime favorite of the student body and members of the faculty.

She was born near Oakland on July 15, 1909, and attended the Oakland High School for four years, graduating with honors.

Besides her grief stricken parents, she is survived by one sister, Mrs. E. A. Bay, and one brother, Max Orendorf, of Oakland.

SAWMILL FOUND IN ASHES WHEN MEN START TOWORK

Plant of Friendsville Company Entirely Destroyed.

Going to work in the morning and having no place to work, was the predicament confronting the employes of a saw mill owned and operated by Messrs. F. G. Fox & Son, of Friendsville, early on Tuesday morning, for upon arriving at the scene of their daily labors the mill was in ashes, fire having destoyed the mill sometime during the preceding night and between 30,000 and 40,000 feet of manufactured lumber stacked near the burned mill was in flames.

Aid was summoned from Friendsville and a call was sent in to the Oakland Fire Department for help. The local company responded with one of the trucks and four firemen, Lawrence Fraley, George Kerins, Emroy Bolden and Percy Frantz, but nothing more could be done than to check the flames which were eating their way rapidly into the piled lumber. This was accomplished in a very few minutes as water was handy and with the pumping arrangement of the fire truck a stream was soon playing on the flames.

The mill, which was located on the Bear Creek road between Friendsville and the State road leading to the National Highway six miles from the town of Friendsville, was a total loss, the owners having earried no insurance on the property.

The lumber was said to have been owned by former State Senator J. W. McCullough. The origin of the fire is unknown.

Garrett Countian Wants Warden To Wake Up Along Border.

To the Editor of The Republican:

Dear Sir:

The Game Law seems to be very much one-sided along the border of Pennsylvania and Maryland. The people in Garrett county have to abide by the law and the outsiders or people residing in Pennsylvania can come in, shoot whatever is in season by the Pennsylvania laws and recross the line into Pennsylvania with the game they have killed in Maryland.

Pretty soft for the Pennsylvania boys; but where is the game warden down along the line? Better wake up.

Wants Road Boosted.

What should the people in the Youghiogheny valley say? Say, onto the Pennsylvania State line with a macadamized road from Selbysport. It is only about three miles. Be a booster for this road and it will open up more trade than any other three miles in Garrett county.

Let every man and woman start boosting the Selbysport-Somerfield river level road. Yours truly,

Charley Frazee.

Selbysport, November 22, 1927.

Card of Thanks.

We desire in this manner to express our sincere appreciation to our many friends and neighbors for their kind assistance and help following the death of our daughter and sister, Mary Margaret Orendorf. We also wish to thank those who gave the many beautiful flowers and those who donated the use of their cars for the funeral.

WHAT'S THE MATTER?

The Red Cross is the only wide-world, international organization of pure and simple mercy on earth, the only flag which all nations acknowledge as their own. There are a hundred religions, more or less antagonistic to each other, but there is only one Red Cross, only one symbol that makes the whole world kin. It is the only agency that knows no north, no south, no east, no west; which recognizes no geographical divisions in calamity; of which Europe, Asia, Africa, America and the islands of the sea are all members of one family, all next-door neighbors whenever humanity is stricken and cries out for help in an hour of agony and despair.

That's the reason why its annual appeals have always received glad and generous responses, why people have considered it not merely a duty but an honor to enroll in this international organization of rescue and pity, why it has rarely been necessary to do more than remind the public that it was ready to receive free-will offerings. This year, for some reason, Baltimore has seemed, up to this time, to have become a little deaf, to have failed to hear the voice that few ever before heard with indifference. Possibly the apathy is partly due to the unfortunate refusal of the local Red Cross management to make the campaign a part of the Community Fund campaign. In addition, with Thanksgiving and Christmas expenditures close at hand, the ordinary contribution to this cause seems to many a little more burdensome than usual.

But whatever the reason, the Red Cross should not be allowed to suffer through Baltimore's slackness, and Baltimore should not advertise itself as falling away from the greatest of humanitarian services. One dollar from only half the voters in Baltimore would carry the Red Cross far over the top. Let us all "choose to run" to the help of the Red Cross.—Baltimore Sun.

AS we join in the home-comings and feasting of this season, we can give thanks that the understanding established between the friendly Indians and the Puritans more than three centuries ago is duplicated in the trust and confidence between men of all sections, occupations, and positions today.

Every one has something for which to be thankful. So the day of turkey and cranberry sauce, of pumpkin pie and luscious fruits is a welcome festival.

As we review the record of the year past—we know that growing accounts are cause for thanksgiving by many customers. If you're not one of those who gained—make a fresh start now! We're here to help.

In observance of THANKSGIVING DAY, this institution will not be open Thursday, November 24th

The high and public schools of the county will close for the Thanksgiving vacation this afternoon and will reopen on Monday, thus giving the pupils a short rest from their studies and an opportunity for the instructors to visit their homes and friends.

The Republican today contains the financial statement of the county for the fiscal year ending July 30 last. Not anticipating the fact that the statement requires nearly six pages for its accommodation, the mangement is rather reluctant to send The Republican out as it appears today, it being long on advertisements and short on news, but tomorrow being Thanksgiving our readers will have little or no time to devote to literary pursuits along with their turkey and its trimmings, hence we ask the indulgence of the readers of T. R., promising them that next week's issue will more than make up for the laxity of today's paper.

Order of Publication

Harry Columbus Rumers vs. Tabitha Rumers.

No. 2787 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree a vinculo matrimonii, divoreing the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states that the plaintiff was married to the defendant in Allegany County, Maryland, and that they resided together as man and wife, in Garrett County, Maryland, until the 27th day of December, 1923.

The Bill further states that the conduct of the plaintiff toward the defendant has been kind, affectionate and above reproach, and that the said defendant, without just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years, and that the separation of the parties is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

That while said defendant has travelled about from place to place since such abandonment, the plaintiff is informed, and believes that at this time she is living and residing in the State of Pennsylvania.

That no children were born to the said plaintiff and defendant as a result of said marriage.

The Bill then prays for a divoree a vineulo matrimonii, and for such other and further relief as the nature of his case may require, and also for the order of publication.

It is thereupon, this 29th day of October, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 10th day of December, 1927, give notiee to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor on or before the 26th day of December, next, to show cause, if any she had, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

And it is further ordered that in lieu of such publication a eopy of this order may be served personally upon the said defendant, Tabitha Rumers, on or before the 17th day of November, 1927, in accordance with Section 142 of Article 16 of the Code of Publie General Laws of the State of Maryland, warning her to appear and show cause as aforesaid.

AMOCO GAS

Puts The Erskine Six ahead in remarkable 24 hour test

Studebaker "Erskine Six" Refuses To Take A Back Seat—

When the Studebaker "Commander" and "Dictator" were making and breaking records at the Atlantic City Speedway.

So an Erskine Six was sent out to make a record of its own for cars listing under $1000.

And with the aid of AMOCO Gas, a stock Erskine Six established a 24-hour average of better than 54 miles per hour! Just think of that pace for 1300 miles by a car costing less than $1000, proving the speed and endurance of "The Little Aristocrat."

We Are Not Advertising Studebaker Cars, But We Are Advertising—

And selling thousands of gallons of—AMOCO GASOLINE, and our point is this—Amoco will do as much for your car as it does for others. Try it and enjoy the difference it makes, the sensation is astounding. Promise to fill your tank with Amico the next time you need gas.

Amoco makes starting easy in cold weather

AUTO LICENSES FOR 1928 ARE NOW BEING SENT OUT

Maryland Commissioner Starts Distribution on Monday

Automobile license plates for 1928 are being mailed by Col. E. Austin Baughman, State commissioner of motor vehicles, the distribution being started on Monday. The new tags with white numbers on a blue background, may be placed on cars December 15 instead of January 1, as in the past.

The additional sixteen days time will permit car owners to display their tags before the first of the year and will prevent a last-minute rush for markers. More than 300,000 applications for plates were placed in the mails Saturday. The usual line-up at the commissioner's office failed to materialize on Monday.

An estimate of 285,000 licenses issued in the state this year was made while the tentative figure for 1928 has been fixed at 300,000.

EXTENSION SERVICE NEWS TELLS OF DAIRY SPECIAL

Tour Recently Completed Considered Most Successful of Any Yet Undertaken

One of the leading news stories printed this month in the Extension Service News, published at the University of Maryland in the interest of Extension work in agriculture and home economics, is the successful tour which the last dairy special of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad recently completed, and gives much space to the day spent in Oakland on November 1. The article in part is as follows:

"Making but three stops in Maryland, the Dairy special, operated by the Baltimore and Ohio railroad, October 31, and November 1, nevertheless succeeded in placing in the hands of the dairy farmers twenty-one purebred bulls with such production records back of them that herd improvement should be sure to follow.

"All in all, the train was probably the most successful one of its kind ever operated in the State. There have been previous dairy specials covering more territory and consuming more time but it is doubtful if sales records have ever before measured up quite so well or if attendance and interest have averaged quite so high.* *

Oakland Crowd Big

"At Oakland, Garrett county, the following morning, the reception accorded the train was typical of the interest shown by Garrett county people in enterprises of this character. By 9 o'clock the leeture car of the train held a capacity audience and talks on dairying were given by County Agent J. L. McGlone and J. A. Conover, dairy specialist for the University of Maryland Extension service.

"Three Guernsey and two Jersey bulls were selected and purchased by Garret county farmers.

"The train remained in Oakland for an afternoon session to accommodate those who were unable to hear the morning lectures.

"Dr. R. A. Pearson, president of the University of Maryland; Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the University of Maryland Extension Service, and M. M. Stewart, secretary-treasurer of the Maryland Farm Bureau Federation, were aboard the train at Singerly and Aberdeen and were called upon for short talks. Other speakers were J. A. Conover, dairy specialist for the University of Maryland Extension Service, and O. K. Quivey, agricultural agent for the Baltimore and Ohio railroad.

"The train was operated in cooperation with the University of Maryland Extension Service and the American Guernsey Cattle Club, the Holstein Friesian association, and the American Jersey Cattle Club.

"County Agents T. H. Bartilson, Cecil county; H. M. Carroll, Harford county, and J. L. McGlone, Garrett county, were largely responsible for advertising the train in their respective counties and in getting out the crowds.

"The bulls distributed were all picked with eare from the herds of well-known breeders and had good production records back of them. A Holstein brought the highest price among the animals sold in Maryland, being purchased for $350."

Union Thanksgiving Service was Well Attended by Oaklanders

The people of Oakland and the surrounding community enjoyed an unusually fine union Thanksgiving service on last Thursday morning, which was held in the Presbyterian church. Rev. A. D. Craig, Methodist minister, delivered the address. Rev. W. B. Brock and Rev. C. A. Shilke also participated in the services. The offering, which amounted to $37.04, will be placed at the disposal of Miss Rhesa M. King, public health nurse, who will use the fund for the relief of the poor of the community.

The music was played by Mrs. H. A. Loraditch while the choir was composed of members of the various church choirs. The service was quite well attended.

High Wind Does Damage.

A falling tree, uprooted by the extreme high wind last night about nine o'clock, damaged the porch roof at the home of Miss Sarah Hayes on High street in the east end of town. The wind also carried a tree down at Mountain Lake Park which in turn put the electric current out of commission at that place.

STOTLER'S SLAYER'S TRIAL SET FOR EARLY DECEMBER

Noted Dry Agent Was Well-Known in Garrett—Was Killed Near Hagerstown

The State has arranged to take up the trial of Reginald E. Walters, undercover man for dry agents, early in December at Hagerstown, Md., on a charge of shooting and killing his chief, Hunter R. Stotler, prohibition agent for this district near Boonsboro, last July, it has been announced.

State's Attorney Harper Balientine of Washington county will be assisted by Saul Praeger, of Cumberland, who has been engaged by Stotler's widow, in the prosecution of Walters.

Walters was arraigned with about forty other prisoners in Hagerstown before Judge Frank G. Waggaman, and through former State's Attorney E. R. Roulette, one of his attorneys, he entered a plea of not guilty.

Walters has been in jail in Hagerstown since his arrest a short time after the murder. The accused man is in good spirits according to jail officials, and apparently confident of an acquittal.

Walters, it is said, is relying upon the testimony of his wife, who, according to her statements made to the police, was intimate with Stotler while he was staying at their home.

Prior to Stotler's death, he made frequent trips to Garrett county with other Federal agents and helped to round up many liquor law violators in this section.

MANY PERSONS HAVE BEEN SENT SEAL SALE LETTERS

Christmas Seal Drive Is On For Twentieth Time.

There are probably but few people in the State of Maryland who have not been apprized of the Twentieth Annual Tuberculosis Christmas Seal sale which was started on Thanksgiving Day and will continue until Christmas.

Throughout the State more than two hundred thousand Seal Sale letters have been sent to individuals, asking them to buy the enclosed seals. Through the medium of the press, the movies, bill-boards, magazines, posters, etc., the residents of this county are being told that tuberculosis is preventable and curable; that the death rate has been reduced in twenty years by more than half. "All of this has been made possible by the little Christmas seal," advises Mr. William B. Matthews, managing director of the Maryland Tuberculosis Association, at Baltimore. Mr. Matthews stated that even though all possible means are being used to acquaint the people with the Christmas seal, that there are so many who inquire each year as to how the Christmas Seal funds are spent. Mr. Matthews, therefore, has compiled a brief list of the activities, both county and State-wide, which have been made possible by the sale of the little "Christmas Seal," which include The Miracle House, a preventorium located at Claiborne for undernourished and under-privileged children of Maryland, tuberculosis clinics, nursing service, child health education, industrial service, education and publicity.

Oakland Musician Is Winner

Abel Browning, of Oakland, past 80 years of age, won the old-time fiddlers' contest staged at Kingwood, W. Va., with Thomas Dillon, of Erbacon, W. Va., as his opponent, last week. Each played six selections.

The judges were Abel DeWitt, of Oakland; Edward Greaser and L. S. Bucklew, of Kingwood. After the contest Dillon gave a clog dance, a trio composed of Mr. Browning, Fred. Browning, violin, and Fred Schenck, zither harp, furnishing the music.

LAST MINUTE RUSH MAKES ROLL CALL SATISFACTORY

Local Headquarters Kept Busy Thursday and Friday.

The last day of the Red Cross Annual Roll Call in Garrett county brought in more members than all the other days of the drive combined and the final result has been most satisfactory.

Immediately following the publication of last week's Republican letters were received by Miss Fances Hamill, who operated the headquarters in Oakland, with money enclosed for membership from various points in Garrett county, and from more distant points within and without the State. Since the close of the two weeks' drive Mrs. Tower, county president, has received several additional letters and it is now thought that the total will be approximately one hundred.

"This is quite satisfactory," Mrs. Tower said, "considering the large sum of money donated to the Mississippi flood fund, and to other special needs, and the final showing has made the campaign more successful than last year."

LOCAL FORD DEALERS TO GIVE DETAILS ON FRIDAY

Elaborate Plans Are Being Made Here and at Grantsville Garage

All the details of the new Ford car, which have been a matter of speculation for months, will be given Friday, December 2, at the E. S. Evans Garage in Oakland, according to Charles Reckard, local manager for Mr. Evans, and the Motor Service Company, Grantsville, according to Harvey Gortner, manager. A public reception will be held at the same time that similar gatherings are being held by Ford dealers in all parts of the United States, and at which time prices and all details of the car will be explained.

Mr. Evans was in Pittsburgh, Pa., on Saturday, making arrangements for the shipment of Ford cars at the earliest possible date, and as he has been rated the biggest dealer in the Pittsburgh District for the past two or three years, it is reasonable to assume that the first carload sent to this district for distribution will come to Mr. Evans.

Mr. Evans has expressed his delight over the appearance of the new Ford and the details of its construction and feels confident that Ford sales will increase rapidly from this date.

The show room of the local dealer has been rearranged by Mr. Reckard, Ernest Hardesty and Stanley Stahl to take eare of the great volume of business expected to follow the early delivery of the new machines. The entire place has been put in shape to accommodate the hundreds of visitors expected there on Friday.

Messrs. Gortner and Floyd Diehl, of the Motor Service company, who have distributed a large number of Fordson tractors throughout their territory reecntly, have arranged their show room for the expected arrival of the latest Ford product and are prepared for the expected rush tomorrow by information seekers.

Ministers and Laymen To Lay Plans for Raising Fund.

Ministers and laymen of this district of the Eastern Division of the West Virginia Synod of the United Lutheran Church in America will meet in Oakland next Wednesday morning and afternoon to make plans for the 1928 campaign to raise $4,000,000 as a pension fund for her aged ministers.

Rev. W. P. Cline, Jr., of Fairmont, president of the Synod, will be present, as will also a member of the board from Philadelphia. About 25 ministers and laymen will be included in this group conference.

The week of February 5 has been designated as the week during which the every member canvass will be made wherein every member of the church will be asked to make a contribution towards this fund.

Death of An Infant.

Charles Edwin Nair, aged 4 months and 18 days, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Nair, of Oakland, died Sunday morning, November 27, and was buried from the home Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery. The twin brother of this infant died when it was aged two weeks. Rev. C. A. Shilke conducted the funeral services Tuesday.

James A. Lee and McClelland Dixon, students at Maryland University, were visiting their homes during the vacation period of last week.

PETTY THEFTS IN OAKLAND RESULT IN ARREST OF TWO

Minors Being Held For Action of Grand Jury—Warrants Out For Several Other Youths

Harry Kimmell and Glenn ("Pistol Pete") Tasker, both of whom are minors, were arrested Tuesday night by Sheriff Wm. D. Casteel and Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith following various reports of petty thieving and the issuance of warrants for their arrest.

The thefts have extended over a period of several weeks. The two boys in the warrant are charged with larceny and are being held in the County Jail for the action of the grand jury when it convenes on Monday.

The stolen articles were taken from stores, garages and warehouses, the greater portion, it is said, coming from garages and automobile accessories stores.

Warrants for the arrest of several other youths are out and it is expected that they will be apprehended within a few days. It is also said that in all probability others will be arrested upon information furnished the authorities by the two boys now in jail.

Since the first report of the petty robberies a month or two ago, Sheriff Casteel has been working quietly to cateh the eulprits and with the assistance of Mayor Fraley, his deputies and several others it was found that other youths were implicated in the seemingly systematically planned robberies.

The activities of the State officers culminated Tuesday night in the arrest of the two boys, who, although they are said not to be the ringleaders are said to have confessed to their part in the gang's work.

In addition to the theft from garages and other buildings, chickens and turkeys were also attached to the list of stolen articles, and Sheriff Casteel has been informed that Raymond Houck's cub bear was to be the next piece de resistance upon which the boys and their invited guests were to feed. According to the Sheriff, it is now possible that other arrangements may have to be made in regard to the disposition of the bear.

Another Youth Taken In.

Jonas Peck, aged 15 years of age, of Sand Flat, was brought to Oakland last night and lodged in the County Jail charged with larceny. He is alleged to have broken into the hen house of Harry Paugh, near Sand Flat, and stolen some articles. The youth was taken into custody by Deputy Sheriff Griffith and he is being held for the action of the grand jury.

Savings Checks Being Mailed Today By Local Banks.

Both the First National and the Garrett National Banks will begin next year's Christmas Savings accounts on Monday, December 12, according to officials of those institutions.

Meeting To Decide Date for the Opening of Basketball League

A meeting of the basketball managers of the Church League teams will be held in Naylor's Hall on Friday evening at 7:30 oclock. At this time the exact date of the opening of the league games and the schedule will be arranged. The tentative date set for the opening games is on Friday, December 9. The four teams who will compete on that night will be picked by drawing numbers.

The court will be lined off tomorrow evening and practice will begin in earnest on Monday. Preliminary practice periods have been held during the present week.

Car Collides with Telephone Pole

Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Davis and children, Miss Beryl Davis and the children of Mr. and Mrs. S. D. Whipkey, of Oakland, were all bruised when the Willys-Knight car in which they were riding collided with a telephone pole at a point on the Oakland-Accident road north of Oakland on Thanksgiving afternoon. No one was seriously hurt in the accident, which wsa caused by reason of a faulty steering gear. The fenders and running board on the left side of the machine were badly damaged.

MARRIAGE LICENSES TOTAL FOR 1927 REACHES 1200

December List Is Expected To Bring Year's Total to 1325—Biggest Year Ever.

Another month's record for marriage lieenses last year was broken this month when at noon Tuesday 107 applications for permits had been made at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court in Oakland. This number breaks last year's record by one, but does not endanger the all-time record for November, which is 126.

Aecording to present figures the total number for the year 1927 will surpass any previous year by more than 200. Up to the present time there have been 1,200 marriage lieenses for the year 1927 issued, while the total number for last year was only 1,111. At this time last year the total was 993.

Nine of the eleven months this year have broken last year's record, while four of the months, April, June, August and October, have made new records for all time.

During the past two weeks, ending at noon Tuesday there were 57 licenses issued, nine of which were marked "don't publish," and two were refused licenses because of being under the required age.

A WAYSIDE SERMON

Those who bring sunshine into the lives of others can not keep it from themselves.
—Sir James M. Barrie.

LATE MAIL.

Uncle Sam has done as much as is humanely possible to insure delivery of Christmas packages and mail before Christmas this year. And to those few tardy ones who will not get their mail to the postoffice until on Christmas eve, the Mountain Echo has no sympathy.

The government has gone so far as to send out literature on the "preparation for Christmas mailing." The rules are brief and simple, and may be summed up in the phrase, "Do your mailing early."

The suggestions posted by the local postmaster are given below in concise form:

Wrap securely.

Certain articles should be specially prepared for shipment.

Special delivery stamps should be used for perishable articles and "Perishable" should be written on the package.

Addresses MUST be complete and should bear return address.

Early mailing. During the holidays the mail increases 200 per cent and the ordinary force finds it difficult to handle this unusual excess. Packages should be mailed at least ten days before Christmas, and Christmas cards should be mailed two or three weeks in advance! They may be endorsed: "Please do not open until Christmas."

Valuable mail should always be insured or registered.

The rules are clear and easy to understand. And there will be 25 per cent of the people who will fail to comply and who will cuss out the local postmaster, Harry S. New and Calvin Coolidge on Christmas morning.

Just one month until Christmas. Start mailing these Christmas cards within the next ten days.—Mountain Echo, Keyser

Oakland High School Notes.

Parents, are your children studying? Now is the time to see what your children are doing. Are they studying two hours outside of school every day? This is necessary for the success of the child and for satisfactory work in the school room. If your children are not passing work, find out the reason now. In June it will be too late.

Last Thursday afternoon in Miss Stevenson's Civics class the pupils organized a Civics Club. They elected officers as follows: President, Mary Louise Helbig; vice-president, Rosella Hinebaugh; secretary and treasurer, Hasaleah Yutzy. The purpose of the club is to introduce the honor system in the school and to help the school to be orderly in every way.

The Sophomore party last Friday night was a success. The school auditorium was decorated in the class colors, blue and gold. The orchestra was composed of Mr. Gilbert, Mrs. Treacy, Mr. Russell Brown and Mr. Henry McComas. The Sophomores wish to express their deepest appreciation to the members of the orchestra for giving their time and services for the party's success. Games were played followed by delicious refreshments.

The high school girl's declamation contest will be held some time after Thanksgiving.

Do not forget the high school Glee Club's big play, under the direction of Miss Kay Stenholm. On Friday, November 18, "Jumbo Jum," a one-act play, was rendered by the same cast in the Senior class for members of the Knights of Pythias. Those in the cast were Lavona Blamble, Ardith Shaffer, Irva Ashby, James Dodge, Roland Ready, Kenneth Stahl, Robert Stemple, Wilmer Brown, Elwood Hauser and Alvin Ream.

All pupils were dismissed Tuesday afternoon to see "The Big Parade." Five cents on each ticket sold was donated to the school by the management of the theatre. Thank you, Mr. Gonder, and be sure to give the school an opportunity to make some money again soon.

The Athletic Association will hold a food sale at Fraley's store on December 10. There will be wonderful eats and beautiful fancy work to tempt you. Come and buy! Help the O. H. S. Athletic Association.

Please do not forget the O. H. S. Glee Club play, Kentucky Belle, to be here December 16. Shown at Maryland Theatre. The admission will be 50 cents

Theodore Marley, a member of the Senior class, is a patient at Johns Hopkins Hospital.

Rabbit Clinic For White Spots.

Due to the fact that rabbits this year seem to be suffering from "tularemia," or white spots on the liver, which disease may be contracted by human beings who handle them, Scoop has decided to have a clinic conducted on Saturday, December 3. All rabbits who think that they have this disease will be examined free of charge by "Doc" Melody, veteran veterinarian of Oakland and who is now located at Uniontown, Pa. Doc Melody comes here at considerable expense which is being borne exclusively by T. R.

Any rabbits, upon examination, that are found with defects will be presented with a sign which may be hung on their cotton-tail to warn hunters.

In this way Scoop thinks county physicians will not be "snowed under" with rabbits' livers and requests to examine them and see if they are diseased, and he also feels that in this way, with the signs exposed by the retreating rabbits that an unnecessary number of gunshots at the unfortunate rabbits suffering from this disease will be averted.

Nobody wants to shoot white-livered rabbits nohow, according to Garrett county's veteran hunters—Jim Painter, Bill Browning and various others who have arrived at the age to become veterans. Don't forget the date, rabbits, Saturday, December 3, at the Court House lawn.

* * *

Just So No Cows Fly.

Fowls will be loosed from the top of the First National Bank building at about three o'clock on Tuesday, December 6, the afternoon of the community sales day, according to an article appearing in this sheet last week. Outside of the fact that two people might get hold of the same "chieken" and cause a "shootin'", there shouldn't be much danger.

Scoop is certainly glad that they don't expect to shoo cows off the roof instead of chickens.

Onto His Job.

Quick Time for Giles.

Giles made his perfect three-point landing at San Francisco at 3:20 o'clock this afternoon, eight hours before he had hopped from Mills Field, in a perfect hop-off.

* * *

Omission Number Two.

Scoop was omitted last week for the second time, but this time it was Scoop's own fault. He didn't write anything, and anyway he knew if he did write, there wouldn't be room for it, so he never bothered.

What causes that? Well, there wasn't room for anything in last week's issue of T. R. when the annual financial statement of Garrett county had been put in the columns. And besides, it was Thanksgiving and Scoop had to go to see his dear old Alma Mater lick Wash-Jeff at Morgantown, but why bring that up? Needless to say, with the appearance of Scoop again the readers of The Republican will forget all about last week.

"Such a paper as last week," said the boss yesterday, "makes a pay day possible," and Scoop has reason to believe this statement, for he participated.

* * *

Something Big in News.

Due to the scarcity of news stories in the community, Scoop asked one of the associate editors the first part of the week for some BIG news, or to suggest an idea for a BIG story. He said to tell the readers the story of an elephant, that was the biggest thing he could think of.

The Willing Workers' Sunday school class of the Methodist church will hold their annual bazaar in connection with a cafeteria supper, in the M. E. Parish House on Tuesday, December 13. The bazaar will open at three o'clock and the serving of supper will begin at 5:30 o'clock.

DR. M'COMAS ADDRESSES THE ROTARY FRIDAY NIGHT

Disease Extermination Basis of Talk—Reviews Accomplishments and Future Hope

The extermination of disease, what has been done and what can be done to attain this much sought after end, were brought out last Friday evening by Dr. Henry W. McComas, president of the local Rotary Club before the weekly meeting of that organization at the William-James Hotel.

Dr. McComas' address was in keeping with the general program of winter talks that are being given by the various members of Rotary on their business or profession. His address follows:

Some have insisted that Shakespeare must have been a physician for the reason that he shows such knowledge of medicine, of the symptoms of disease and death; because he was so familiar with the brain and with insanity in all its forms. I do not think that he was a physician—he knew too much. His generalizations were too splendid. He had none of the prejudices of the profession in his time.

If you are so foolish as to make yourself sick, that would certainly be a laudable enterprise and the physician would thrive beyond the thrift of the butcher, baker or banker.

If medcine were a business and the medical profession were a trust, the plague, cholera, smallpox and diphtheria would be rife and feeding fat the doctors' wallet. But one by one the medical men have learned the cause of the disease and applied the means of prevention.

Smallpox, while not a scourge of the first rank, like the plague or cholera at the outset of the nineteenth century, variloa was one of the most prevalent and dreaded diseases of that period. Few reached adult life without an attack. Today, though outbreaks occur, it is a disease thoroughly controlled by vaccination. The protective power of the inoculated cowpox is not a fixed and constant quality. The protection may be for life, or it may last only for a year or two.

The all important fact is this, that efficiently vaccinated persons may be exposed with impunity and among large bodies of men (the German army for instance, in which revaccination is practiced), smallpox is not known.

In one hundred vaccinated persons exposed to smallpox, possibly one might take the disease in a mild form; of one hundred unvaccinated persons so exposed, one alone might escape, and from twenty-five to thirty would die.

To be efficient, vaccination must be carried out systematically, and if all the inhabitants of this country were revaccinated at intervals smallpox would disappear as it has from the German army and the necessity for vaccination would cease. The difficulty arises from the constant presence of an unvaccinated remnant by which the disease is kept alive.

Until the middle of the nineteenth

Lookin' at Thanksgivin' from the turkey's point of view,
Is it any wonder that the turk is feeling blue?
While the public goes on feasting on dainty pies and truck,
The sacrificial turkey is the bird that is out of luck.

Mrs. Jacob Wiley and daughters, of Keyser, were visiting relatives in this village, last Sunday.

Walter Fazenbaker, the veteran hunter of this section, killed two foxes within half a mile of this village one afternoon last week, and by the irony of fate twenty-seven plump young chickens were taken from the poultry house on the Asa Bittinger farm on the borders of the village the following night. From indications the thief was a fox, but one that was white, on the outside, at least.

The annual thank offering service, held in the village church last Sunday evening, by the local Women's Missionary Society, was a very satisfactory success, and resulted in the gathering of $56 for the missionary cause.

Oliver Beachy and son Elsie, who are employed at Hickeyville, Pa., spent Sunday at their home here.

Mrs. Lydia Wiley and Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buckle, of Grantsville, spent Sunday here.

Miss Ruth Brenneman, of the high school at Grantsville, spent Sunday with her parents here.

A special Thanksgiving service was held in the Glades Mennonite church last Sunday evening, which was a very pleasant and successful affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Fortney and children spent the early part of last week with relatives at Lumberport, West Va.

Disease Extermination Basis of Talk—Reviews Accomplishments and Future Hope

century typhus fever prevailed widely in most of the large cities, particularly in Europe, and also in jails, on ships, hospitals and camps. It was more widely spread than typhoid fever and much more fatal. Acute infection dependent upon filth and unsanitary conditions was the cause.

With the gradual introduction of drainage and o good water supply and the relief from overcrowding, the disease has almost disappeared and is rarely mentioned now in bills of mortality.

In 1892, only 137 died of typhoid fever and only three of typhus fever per million of living, while in 1838 in England 1228 persons died of fever per million living.

While preventive medicine can claim a great victory in typhoid fever, it is less brilliant, since the conditions favoring its prevalence are not those specially relating to overcrowding as much as to imperfect water supply and the contamination of certain essential foods, such as milk. It has been demonstrated in our own little city that pure water and good drainage has almost or practically eliminated typhoid fever within its corporate limits.

Cholora, one of the great scourges of the nineteenth century made inroads in Europe and America from India, its native home. We have, however, found the germ, found the conditions under which it lives and it is not likely that it will ever again gain a foothold in this country or in Great Britain. Since the last epidemic in 1873, the disease, though though brought to this country on several occasions, has always been held in at the port of entry.

It is communicated almost entirely through infected water and the virulence of an epidemic in any city is in direct proportion to the imperfection of the water supply.

Since the discovery of the germ of diphtheria and our knowledge of the conditions of its transmission and the discovery of antitoxin, there has been a great reduction in its prevalence and an equally remarkable reduction in the mortality.

While there has been a remarkable dimunition in the prevalence of pneumonia, it is the one disease that not only holds its own, but seems to have increased in its virulence. In the mortality bills, pneumonia is an easy second to tuberculosis. Indeed, in many cities the death rate is now higher and it has become, to use the phrase of Bunyon "the captain of the men of death." It is the natural end of old men in this country. It is not associated with much pain, except at the onset. The battle is brief and a great many old persons succumb to it easily and peacefully.

Among the most remarkable of the modern discoveries is the cause of malaria fever, one of the great maladies of the world and a prime obstruction to the settlement in tropical regions. Until 1880 the cause was quite obscure.

The venereal diseases continue to embarrass the social economist and perplex and distress the profession. The misery and ill-health which they cause cannot be over estimated, and the pity of it is that the cross is not always borne by the offender, but innocent women and children share the penalties.

Since the discovery of the germ of leprosy, systematic efforts have been made to improve the state of the victims and to promote the study of conditions under which the disease prevails. The problem has an additional interest since the annexation of Hawaii and the Philippine Islands, in both of which dependencies leprosy prevails extensively. By systematic measures of inspection and the sagregation of affected individuals the disease can readily be held in check.

There is a distinct relationship between the health of the individual, the family welfare and happiness to the community, to industry, to government and to the future. Lack of wisdom on the part of the physician can force on the public the support of weaklings, cripples, human culls and dependents.

Skill in service and in giving advice may increase the happiness and progress of those about him and lessen the burden of all his neighbors. His relationship to the economies of modern life have become significant.

One of the great questions constantly brought to the physician is whether he is his own master or a servant of his patients, of the public and perhaps of the State. Nevertheless, in all of the changes that have come with the division of labor and with specialization, the old fundamental phases of the principles of ethics still hold good.

If there is a joy which man should prize it is the joy of relieving distress. There is hut one greater, and that is preventing disease. The life of the physician is suent in the midst of both of these and he should be the most blessed of men.

During the evolutionary progress of medicine there will always be an important mission for the doctor. He will have less and less to do with the care of the sick and more and more with the prevention of sickness.

When the relative proportion of doctors become less, the importance of the individual doctor becomes greater. One physician as sanitary commissioner at the head of a community ean prevent an epidemic of typhoid fever which would demand the activities of a thousand doctors once it is started.

The physician exercising the preventive function is to be the important man. Not only as the community adviser but as the family and individual adviser as well. Common sense and the present tendency of scientific work declare that it is better to exercise endeavors to prevent disease than to cure it.

As the official and public duties of the physician increase and disease becomes less, there will continue to be a demand for men who are learned in human biology perhaps as great as at the present time.

The field of sanitary engineering is beginning to be developed. The medical men will be required as educators. All great undertakings, involving human lives, will be advaneed under medical supervision.

The value of medical supervision is demonstrated at Panama, when two continents were cut in twain. The operation to be well done, or, indeed, to be done at all, required the physician.

The most fertile lands on the green earth have not yet been made the abode of man. He has tended to grow away from them and into the eold and uninviting north, because he could eke out a living where bacteria could not live, and where bacteria were everywhere he perished.

Medical science is destined to banish the infectious disease of the leper and to open up for human habitation rich lands where the date and banyan now grow unseen by the human eye.

It is destined to give mankind a new world, equal in size to that which he now inhabits and many times more fertile, where grain will wave and roses bloom the whole year through and children wax healthy and merry in lands now pregnant with disease.

It is making life more livable in shielding man from the unseen enemies which prey upon the body in preserving his family and in completing his mastery over the malignant powers of nature.

The medical profession is engaged in carrying on a propaganda of destruction of the neeessity for its own existenee. It lives by the presence of disease which it is striving to make extinct.

As a business it puts aside business principles; as a profession it is the most beneficent force at work at the present time for the improving of the conditions of human life.

If it were a business it could properly say: We will make ourselves as competent as possible to heal your diseases if physical misfortune overtakes you.

MT. LAKE PARK.

The splendid spring-like weather continues, thus shortening the winter just that much.

Thanksgiving Day was well observed in a union service. Rev. F. L. Fultz preached a splendid sermon to an appreciative audience.

Garrett county's annual shooting match was held here on Thanksgiving Day and was well attended by men from a distance as well as nearby. Some of those present who won prizes were L. C. Yutzy, Mr. Pike, Mr. Mason, C. S. Woods, H. L. Bittner, G. M. Weeks, M. C. Clayton, E. Landis, J. S. Landis and Irvin Mace. The radio set was awarded to Darwin Martin. Everybody seemed to enjoy the day despite the rain. Lee Spiker was the manager.

Eight of our local nimrods are in the Pennsylvania woods this week, expecting to bag some of the fine deer in that section. They prepared a light house, mounted on a truck, in which they will cook their meals and sleep at night. We wish them real success.

The community union Thanksgiving services will be held in the U. B. church here on Thursday morning at 10:30 o'clock.

Mrs. Bussell closed the Allenhurst one day last week and went to her winter home.

Mrs. Hill leaves us teday, she being the last of the summer residents to take her departure.

Mr. George Stevens, of Fairmont, West Va., has rented the Maryland Inn for a year, for the benefit of Mrs. Stevens, who has suffered a nervous breakdown. This makes six new families who have moved in for the winter. We now have eighty-four families in the Park.

Mr. and Mrs. John Stevenson have moved to the Park for the winter, but I am informed that they have rented their farm, so we are hoping they will continue to live with us here, as it is more convenient for the children of this excellent couple to attend school.

The speeial meeting at Pleasant Valley is to continue this week.

Mr. J. A. Enlow has just returned from a trip to Randolph county, W. Va., where he was looking after the interests of the John Enlow heirs' land in that county.

NOTICE TO ALL DELINQUENT TAXPAYERS

This is to notify you that all delinquent taxes must be paid without further delay. So far I have been very lenient with you, but the State and the county are demanding collection of all delinquent taxes.

Changes in the assessment cannot be made by the Treasurer. If any assessment is incorrect the matter should be taken up with the County Commissioners.

A great many persons complain because their property is advertised for delinquent taxes and say they are put to a great deal of expense and humiliation on account of same. Remember, if your property is advertised for delinquent taxes it is your fault and not the fault of the Treasurer. Pay up your taxes in full on or before the first day of January of each calendar year and your name will never appear on the delinquent list.

I want to be of the greatest service to you and help you all I can, but I can not help you much unless you try to help yourselves by being prompt in the payment of your taxes and giving me all the information you can.

Never allow more than one year's taxes to be upon you at a time; if you have been in the habit of allowing your taxes to double up, be sure to get rid of that habit at once, as it is not fair to me nor best for yourself and cannot be permitted longer.

If you find anything wrong come in and see me and talk the matter over before complaining or mentioning it to others.

Your very sincerely,
ALBERT L. LEE, Treasurer,
Garrett County, Md.

BROADFORD.

MERCHANTS ARE PLEASED WITH SUCCESS OF SALE

Many Special Bargains Were Offered by Business and Professional Men of Oakland.

"Well pleased" and "the best yet," is the way each merchant expressed himself on the outcome of the fifth community sale, which was held in Oakland on Tuesday of the present week at which time special bargains in new and seasonable goods were offered by many of the business men of town.

Weather conditions were favorable and throughout the day many people thronged the streets and stores buying the bargains offered specially for that day.

Chickens Are Caught.

At the appointed time of 3:30 p. m., but from the third floor of the Hinebaugh bilding instead of from the roof of the First National Bank building, sixteen hens were tossed to the waiting crowd below and several of the fowls carried tickets entitling the one who caught them to special prizes from a few of the merchants of town.

The stores were comfortably filled with shoppers during the entire day and fairly well filled in the evening. Many things aside from the "specials" were bought, according to those who participated in making the sale the success it proved to be.

One year ago today the first community sale was held in Oakland. This was a successful one as have also been each succeeding one. The Oakland Commercial Club sponsored every one of these special efforts on the part of the merchants and they will continue to do hercafter, except upon a larger scale if plans now under consideration work out.

Sales Began In Small Way.

The community sales inaugurated in other towns were begun in a very small way. At first circulars only were used to announce them. Later a page in the weekly newspaper published in the town was used. This later in some communities has developed into such a large undertaking that two or more pages of the newspapers of the towns where the sales are to be held are used at stated intervals.

That they have been very successful where cooperation and good business judgment has prevailed is very evident, else they would not be continued from time to time.

NEW FORD MODEL IS VIEWED IN OAKLAND TODAY BY MANY; WILL BE EXHIBITED AT GRANTSVILLE FRIDAY

All Features of New Car Are Inspected—Test Run at Morgantown Proves Road Qualities

Quite a large number of persons living in Oakland and from various parts of West Virginia and Garrett county are inspecting one of the new model Ford cars being shown for the first time at the Evans showrooms on Second street today, according to Mr. Charles Reckard, local manager of the Evans Garage. The number inspecting the car compares favorably with those who came in last Friday to learn of the details and construction of the new car, which according to Ford owners and admirers, far exceeds the expectations of their fondest hopes.

The model being shown here today is a Tudor sedan of dark green finish. The Lincoln type radiator with nickel finish, the engine with new ignition and distributor system, the special wire-type wheels, the dashboard with its speedometer, gasoline gauge, ammeter and switch, the more luxurious upholstering, the more fashionable fenders and the graceful body lines were some of the features seen in the new car.

In all its general aspects the new Ford has been redesigned with the idea of producing not only a better automobile but a bettr looking automobile at Ford prices.

The model, one of fifteen allotted to the Pittsburgh District, was exhibited Tuesday at Morgantown, yesterday at Terra Alta and will be shown at the Motor Service Garage, Grantsville, tomorrow afternoon and evening.

For a short time on Tuesday a roadster model from the Pittsburgh branch of the Ford works, was in Oakland and drew interested crowds when it was parked for a short time outside the Evans Garage here. E. S. Evans, as a passenger in the roadster Tuesday came up Caddell mountain, between Cheat River and Terra Alta, in five minutes, topping the mountain at a very good speed.

Test Made in Morgantown.

In Morgantown on Tuesday, where a test was made, the new car did 63 miles an hour on level ground and proved its four-wheel brakes to be all claimed for them by being brought to a dead stop within 15 feet while going 40 miles an hour. It was also throttled down to five miles an hour in high for a slow test. Amoco gas was used on the run.

The much advertised absence of vibration in the new car was verified on the run during the high speed tests.

No prediction as to when deliveries can be expected would be given out by the Ford dealers.

SEAL SALE PROGRESSING; CHAIRMAN IS SATISFIED

Exact Report Is Not Possible Until After Holiday Season.

The sale of Tuberculosis Seals is going forward nicely in Garrett county, according to Mrs. C. Milton Sincell, chairman for this county, but it will not be possible to give the exact results until after the Christmas holidays. The chairman has sent seals to many teachers in the public schools of the county and to many of the county's citizens with requests that they dispose of them, if possible.

The school teachers, in turn, have asked their pupils to sell as many of them as possible, and in this way the seals are expected to be pretty well distributed over the county. Two hundred thousand seals were received this year by the chairman, which is far above the number that are expected to be disposed of.

The campaign, which closes on Christmas Day, has been carried on at this season of the year for twenty years and the world is being asked to buy the seals so that the unceasing fight against the most devastating disease in the world's history may be unrelentingly continued.

According to a recent letter sent out from the headquarters of the Tuberculosis Association, in twenty years the Christmas Seal has played its part in a most striking manner in reducing the death rate from tuberculosis by more than half, resulting in the saving of hundreds of thousands of lives and an economic gain running into many millions of dollars.

The entire quota for the Synod was placed at $31,000, while the local church will be called upon to pay $1300.

This amount will be raised by an every member canvass during the week of February 5, according to Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor of the local congregation.

Rev. W. P. Cline, Jr., of Fairmont, president of the Synod, was present as well as C. W. Hess, of New Castle, Pa., secretary of the Laymen's Movement.

STATE FORESTRY NURSERY AIDS IN TREE PLANTING

Recent Bulletin Advises Large Size Conifers Available for Road Side Planting Now.

In connection with the growing movement for re-forestation and wind break treeless land in Western Maryland, as well as shade, roadside and woodlot planting, the State Department of Forestry in a recent bulletin announces that the nursery maintained by the State has a wide variety of trees, both seedlings and transplants, for distribution, at a very low cost. Some as low as a half-cent.

C. Cyril Klein, District Forester, with headquarters on the third floor of the Allegany County Court House, Cumberland, or A. L .Sines, of Sines, this county, will furnish information and the necessary application blanks.

The State bulletin says that only trees of proven merit, which have been accepted as standard, are grown to suit the varieties of soil and different planting conditions.

The bulletin says:

"We are able to offer this year, in large sizes, suitable for planting along the roadways, two deciduous conifers of most attractive foliage and appearance—the Southern cypress and the European larch. The cypress is a very sturdy, beautifully shaped tree with a conical crown and delicate bright green foliage, which is shed in the fall. It is adapted for plantng throughout the Southern and South central parts of the State on moist soils, but it does not require a wet soil, as commonly supposed.

"European larch, like the cypress, sheds its leaves in the fall, but puts its foliage in the spring earlier than any other trees, unless it be the willow. It is adapted for planting thruout the State, develops a spire-like crown with foliage from the ground up, and is most attractive in appearance.

"One of the most beautiful shade trees among the hardwoods is the sweet gum or red gum—a native of the Southern part of the State, but suitable for planting throughout Central Maryland as well as the Southern section. This tree is a fairly rapid grower, with beautiful star-shaped leaves which turn a deep red in the autumn.

"The tulip poplar, ash, elm and the honey locust offered in large size are all well known trees, each having special characteristics adapted for wide use.

"Special attention is called to the cypress, larch and sweet gum, because they are not so well known, but merit the most favorable consideration in selecting the most attractive trees for roadside planting effects."

Varieties of pine, spruce, oak and gum seedlings and transplants can be secured at a trivial price per 100.

Rules For Free Distribution.

The following conditions govern the free tree distribution for roadside planting:

One—Only black walnut, American elm, white ash, black locust, honey locust, tulip poplar and cypress are available for distribution.

Two—Trees will not be furnished for less than one-quarter mile of planting on both sides of the road nor for more than one mile of such planting.

Three—All trees must be planted within the public right of way and far enough from the edge of the paved highway to meet road requirements.

Four—The consent of abutting property owners must be secured where planting is considered.

Five—Spacing of trees to be not less than forty feet for cypress or black locust, and not less than sixty feet for walnut, elm, tulip poplar and honey locust; a wide spacing is preferable.

Six—Trees are furnished free at the College Park Nursery. The applicant must pay the transportation charges from the nursery to the place for planting, furnish the labor for planting the trees, provide suitable guard stakes and give assurance that the trees will be properly cared for after planting.

Seven—The Forestry Department will, on acceptance of the above conditions, examine the location where planting is proposed, to determine whether planting is practicable and if so, what species of trees is best adapted for the location and the preparation of a planting plan with estimates of cost. It will also furnish a man to supervise the planting.

Applications will be filed in the order received and trees furnished the first applicants who can comply with the conditions where it is found planting is most practicable.

On the Eastern Shore, hundreds of acres have been planted with loblolly pine, which is a rapid grower and useful for many purposes.

Send your Job Work to The Republican Commercial Printing Department—it will be done neatly, correctly and as promptly as in consistant with good workmanship.

COUNTY AGENT'S COLUMN.

J. L. M'GLONE,
Resident County Agent,
Office, Court House.

The Menace of the Corn Borer.

The near approach of the European corn borer to Maryland makes it essential that every man in the State should familiarize himself with the pest. The word "everyone" is used advisedly because, regardless of what one's occupation is, be it farmer, merchant or banker, anything that menaces the corn crop, which is the backbone of Maryland agriculture, demands his fullest attention. The percentage of destruction in the corn field may run to a total loss where the infestation is allowed to build up without restraint. The injury may be in stalk or ears, or both, when the infestaton is heavy. The larvae burrow in the pith of the stalk, and when numerous, cause the stalks to break over and prevent the formation of fully developed ears. In addition, the larvae may burrow through the ears or at the point where they are attached to the stalk. Both field corn and sugar corn are injured, and where the infestation is heavy truck crops and weeds are quite likely to be infested.

The infestation to the north of Maryland is single brooded, and it would seem that Maryland is more likely to be infested first from that source rather than from the two brooded areas in northern New Jersey. The larvae winter over in the stubble, pupating in the spring, and the moths emerge and begin egglaying about the 15th of June. The most effective control measures should, therefore, be directed toward the destruction of larvae in the stalks and stubble. Low cutting, shredding and ensiling of the fodder, followed by the complete plowing down of all stubble prior to May 1, offers the best hope for the control of the pest. Some modification of agricultural practices in the State may become necessary, but the main dependence for control should center about the measures outlined above.

Detailed information in regard to life history and control measures will be published by the Extension Service in bulletin form during the present winter. Should you want to be prepared in knowing what to do should the borer reach Garrett county, request the County Agent to send you some information.

Seed Growing Makes Progress in Maryland.

One hundred and twenty-one farmers were engaged this year in the highly specialized task of growing seed under supervision of the Maryland Seed Certification Board and 1126 acres of potatoes, sweet potatoes and wheat, the three crops for which seed certification is now provided, were under inspection during the season, it is announced by S. B. Shaw, chief inspector for the State Department of Markets.

Starting off this spring inspections were made for nineteen growers of wheat in seven counties and 586 acres of the crop were under inspection. While none of the wheat was placed in the certified class, twelve of the nineteen growers succeeded in producing wheat that was listed by the Seed Certification Board. Wheat of this quality is reported as selling from 50 to 75 cents per bushel higher than the general farm crop.

Inspections were made for twenty-eight growers of sweet potatoes in three counties and 119 acres were under supervision. Owing to the fact that the crop will not be moved from storage until next spring, figures on production and value are not available, it is announced.

The potato crop called for the heaviest work on the part of the Seed Certification Board, 74 growers and 10 counties with a total of 421 acres requesting inspections. The certified seed potato crop in the State, it is estimated, will exceed 35,000 bushels and sales now being made are bringing growers an advance of $1.50 per barrel over ordinary stock. Fifteen cars of certified seed, it is reported, have already been shipped out of the State, going for the most part to New Jersey producers who will use them for seed next spring.

The value of seed certification, however, is not measured alone by the higher prices received by the relatively few growers engaged in this specialized business, it is pointed out. The far-reaching results of certification work are to be found in the distribution and greater use of high-grade seed in the important crop producing sections of Maryland. The use of such seed, it is said, is reflected in improved yields per acre and in a higher quality product which can be marketed to better advantage.

The seed Certification Board was established in 1924 under the University of Maryland Extension Service.

Many Vegetables Easy To Store For The Winter.

A cool, well drained, frost-proof cellar will prove a satisfactory place for the winter storage of such garden products as potatoes, beets, carrots, parsnips, turnips, cabbage and salsify, say horticultural specialists at the University of Maryland.

If the air in the storage room is very dry, the products will shrivel considerably. This may be prevented by placing the products in boxes or in bins and covering them with soil. Potatoes and cabbage, however, should not be handled in this way.

Sometimes outside storage proves satisfactory. A shallow pit twelve to fifteen inches deep is dug and the vegetables to be stored are placed in it in a conical pile. A layer of straw six to eight inches in depth is used to cover the vegetables and this in turn is covered by a layer of soil of similar depth. This method is rather unsatisfactory and is recommended only when no other storage is available because the losses from decay are usually very large.

Celery, kohl-rabi, leeks, brussels sprouts and endive should be stored in moist cellars. These vegetables require good ventilation. They will not keep if stored in outside pits or if allowed to freeze. They should be dug with a little soil about the roots, then set in moist soil on the floor or in boxes in the cellar. The soil should be watered lightly from time to time, but the leaves and stalks must be kept dry, otherwise they will decay. It is also possible to store these crops under glass in cold frames in a manner similar to that just described. In very cold weather, additional covering such as mats or straw must be provided to prevent freezing.

Sweet potatose, squashes and pumpkins should be stored in a warm, dry place having good ventilation. For ten days to two weeks after sweet potatoes are placed in storage they should be held at a temperature of about 80 degrees. The temperature then may be lowered to 55 or 60 degrees.

AMERICA'S FIRST REAL BANK STILL IN BUSINESS

Was Founded In Philadelphia in 1781 to Give Support to Gen. Washington's Army.

The first real bank in the United States was the Bank of North America, founded at Philadelphia under a state charter in 1781 primarily to give support to Washington's army. Of course, there were occasional attempts at banking during the early colonial period, but no institution was formed that approximated banking as we know it today. The early colonial conception of a bank was that of a company or partnership formed to supply circulating notes as a medium of exchange, in addition to the bills of credit of the colonial governments. It was believed that if such notes were based on landed security, current redemption would not be necessary. Thus no capital was required for starting a bank, but merely confidence. The assumption that giving security for the ultimate paying of paper currency is the same as providing for its redemption at any time, or that it will answer the same purpose, is an economic fallacy. It confuses the promise to pay with money itself. The promise to pay is of face value only when there is certainty of its fulfillment at some future indefinite time, and, when land is the security, the time is usually remote. A paper currency must be promptly redeemable in coin. No kind of security is a substitute for such redemption.

But to get back to the Bank of North America. It was founded by Robert Morris. Morris conceived that a bank with a paid-up capital, on a specie basis, and in high credit, as he put it in his own words, "would have the interest of a stock two or three times larger than that which it really possessed." By this he meant that the bank could lend its credit, and receive interest therefor to an amount of two or three times more than its cash on hand. This conception is absoultely sound and it is the foundation of modern banking.

Our banks today lend their credit. For instance, a man comes in and desires to borrow $1,000.00. Nine times out of ten, he doesn't want to take $1,000 out the door with him, but he merely wants that much to his credit to draw upon, so the bank may be said to be lending its credit more than its cash. When Robert Morris conceived this idea back in Revolutionary days, he founded modern banking.

The Bank of North America had a capital of $400,000.00, part of which was subscribed by the government. The Bank made large advances to the government, which enabled America to prosecute the war more efficiently than ever before. Besides that it did a general discount and commercial business.

Though Morris was the genius who made the bank possible, he was neither a director nor president, modestly consenting to assume the title of vice-president, and refusing higher honor. The president was Lawrence Jackson, a well educated and extremely capable man. Among the under officers were such names as Shelby, Kuyler, Place, and Higgins, all well known in their day, but signifying little or nothing to us now. The most notable of these was Shelby, who was a young man of extraordinary energy and financial ability. He was also considerable of a dandy about town. He lived with his senior officer Jackson down by the river front.

The story is told that one morning at five o'clock as Jackson was arising to begin his daily work he saw Shelby fully dressed in the living room.

"Good morning," said Jackson

"Good night," said Shelby rather sleepily.

But, as has been said, Shelby was a man of tremendous energy and a few hours later he carried his brilliant mind down to the bank of North America and started laboring on the many problems which the Bank must have had to face.

The charter of the Bank of North America was repealed by the state of Pennsylvania in 1785, because the state became convinced that the institution tended to promote inequality among citizens, by favoring one in the matter of a loan against another. The state repented soon and in 1787 granted a new charter, which was renewed from time to time and under which it continued until the national banking law was passed. It declined at first to enter the national banking system, because it would have to change its name, but finally, on account of its illustrious origin, permission was granted it to come in without such a change. The Bank of North America is still in existance in Philadelphia. It is now one hundred and forty-six years old and has passed its semi-annual dividend only five times in the history of its long career, a record to be exceedingly proud of, and a tribute to the genius of its founder—Robert Morris.

A few years after the Bank of North America's inception and success, similar institutions started in all the larger cities of America.

Death of Jennings Postmaster.

E. E. Woodard, aged postmaster at Jennings, died early on Sunday morning at his home in Jennings. Mr. Woodard went to Jennings when the town was flourishing during the lumber days when Jennings Brothers were operating their large saw mill at that place. After the lumber operations ceased he stayed, accepting whatever employment offered and was given the postmastership some years ago, which he retained until the time of his sudden death. It is stated that no assistant postmaster had been appointed, thus leaving the office entirely vacant. The funeral of the deceased was held on Tuesday afternoon, Rev. E. E. Campbell, of the Bittinger and Jennings Lutheran churches, officiating. Interment was made in the Grantsville cemetery. He is survived by his wife and one son, F. Brown Woodard, residing at Delaware, Ohio.

A WINNING FIGHT.

Urging every man, woman and child in the State to help in the conquest of tuberculosis by buying tuberculosis Christmas Seals, Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, characterizes the State-wide, nation-wide and world-wide warfare against tuberculosis as a winning fight.

"But," he added, "we have a long way to go before the allied health forces can hope to sign an armistice against this enemy of human happiness. It will be a long pull and a pull all together. And the Christmas Seals give everybody a chanee to take part in it.

"A glance backward will give some idea of the gains that have been made here in Maryland. The records of the department show that during the ten years from 1917 to 1926 there were 18,863 deaths from tuberculosis in the State. The highest marks were reached in 1917 with 2,419 deaths, and in 1918 with 2,570 deaths. Each year after that there was a marked decrease, beginning with 2,023 in 1919 and coming down to 1611 in 1926. In 1917, one out of every ten deaths in the State was due to tuberculosis. In 1926, tuberculosis caused one out of every fourteen deaths.

"Of the total deaths from tuberculosis in 1926, 836 occurred in the counties, 548 white and 188 colored; 775 occurred in Baltimore City, 490 white and 285 colored. When you remember that the colored population constitutes approximately one sixth of the total, you can see that the figures indicate a much greater susceptibility toward tuberculosis in the colored population than in the white.

"There has been a marked decline in the deaths, but that does not tell the whole story. When you turn another chapter of it and think of those who are ill with the disease, you can realize more readily that much remains to be done before we can see the end of our fight. It is estimated that the proportion of those who are ill to those who die each year from tuberculosis is about nine to one. That means that we have approximately 14,500 people in Maryland who are ill from tuberculosis.

"One of the most effective ways of helping those who are ill is to discover the disease when it is in the early stages and when there is a possibility of arresting it. And that is one of the things that is being done at the chest clinics that are held each month throughout the State under the joint auspices of the State Department of Health and the Maryland Tuberculosis Association. During the year just closing 270 clinics were held at which 3,132 persons were examined; 2470 white and 662 colored. Over a third of these, 1092, were in the early stages, and another large group, 551, the disease had been discovered and had been brought under control."

GUSTAVE W. ZELLER.

Gustave W. Zeller, a prominent citizen of Frostburg, died Saturday, December 3, at 7:00 o'clock a. m., at the family home after being seriously ill for more than eight months. Mr. Zeller, who was a barber by trade, was widely known throughout Allegany county as well as in Frostburg where he was regarded as the town's leading barber for many years, conducting a shop on W. Union street, which was considered among the finest in Western Maryland. When the big fire of 1917 destroyed the Betz Building, Mr. Zeller gave up business in Frostburg and later went to Grantsville where he worked at his trade for several years, conducting the business in the National Hotel. On account of ill-health he retired from active work about the first of the present year and returned to Frostburg in April in a very serious condition.

Mr. Zeller is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. E. Lee Kelley, and three sons, Charles Zeller, of Grantsville; Bert, of Pennsylvania, and Gustave, of Frostburg; three brothers, who reside in Chicago, and other relatives survive.

Mr. Zeller was a member of the Junior Order U. A. M. and of Mountain Lodge, No. 99, A., F. & A. M. He is said to have been the oldest living member of the Masonic fraternity in Frostburg and was the Past Master of the lodge at that place.

Mr. Zeller was a great lover of nature and in the prime of his life his garden was one of the show places of the community. He also was a lover of bird life and fish and for years he was an authority on these subjects. A staunch Republican in politics Mr. Zeller was always regarded as regular in his party affiliation and took an active interest in political affairs. On various occasions he served on juries, an experience which he always seemed to enjoy very much. He was affiliated with St. Paul's Lutheran church.

If it's really worth printing, you had better have The Republican do it.

STATE CLOSES ITS CASE IN STOTLER'S SLAYER'S TRIAL

Many Witnesses Testify To Walters' Alleged Confession of the Killing in Hagerstown Court

The State closed its case against Reginald E. Walters, prohibition informer, at Hagerstown, charged with the murder of Hunter R. Stotler, Western Maryland dry chief and a familiar figure in Garrett county, last night at 8:30 o'clock in the Washington County Circuit Court, which is being presided over by Associate Judge F. G. Wagaman.

During the two days the case was being prosecuted by the State, more than a score of witnesses was called, many of whom testified as to Walters' alleged verbal confession when they declared they were present when the defendant admitted the killing of Stotler last July at a point near Hagerstown.

The defense was considered in having handicapped itself in objecting to the admission of the alleged written confession of the prisoner.

The entire day's session yesterday was taken up by the State battling to introduce alleged confessions made by Walters after the slaying of Stotler on a lonely road near Boonsboro.

Walters claims that he shot Stotler when the latter attempted to draw his gun after being told that his alleged illicit relations with Mrs. Walters must cease.

Told of Murder Plan.

John D. Pennington, Prohibition administrator of Pittsburgh, told the jury that Walters had told of what the State said was a pre-arranged plan to kill Stotler a "week or ten days" before the actual slaying, when he was said to have admitted that "one of us must leave this earth." The State made the claim that Walters made this statement after he had learned of the alleged improper relations said to have existed between Mrs. Walters and the dry chief.

The defendant was entirely unperturbed throughout the proceedings of yesterday as well as of the day prior and merely slouched in his chair, occasionally talking with his counsel.

GARRETT COUNTY FARMER BATTLES WITH EX-BAILIFF

Fred. Green Held On Three Different Charges After Melee

Subdued after a rough-and-tumble battle on Main street, Lonaconing, and a movie-like chase to the outskirts of the town Saturday night, Fred. Green, who resides in Garrett county, regarded by the police as a "bad man," was lodged in jail and was given a hearing before Magistrate William J. Ford at Lonaconing on charges of being drunk and disorderly, resisting an officer and violating his parole.

Green, it is said, engaged in an argument Saturday night with H. E. "Socks" Wagus, former Midland bailic. The verbal battle developed into fisticuffs and the altercation attracted a large crowd of Saturday-night shoppers.

Bailiff Robert Cook, of Lonaconing, was summoned, but Green fled before the officer arrived. Bailiff Cook commandeered an automobile and pursued the fugitive, apprehending him at the town limits.

Green, who is a powerful man and an adept at fighting—lumberjack rules—put up a spirited battle with the officer but was clubbed into submission. Two citizens were deputized and assisted in removing Green to the town lock-up.

Green's home is at a point in Garrett county about four miles west of Lonaconing and is said to be a good fellow at heart when not under the influence of intoxicants.

Mr. A. S. Albright, of Cranesville, West Va., took his little three-year old son to Baltimore on Saturday morning last where the child is being treated for a nervous disorder in one of the city hospitals. His condition from last reports, is somewhat improved.

Mrs. Harold Rook was taken suddenly ill last Thursday night with an attack of appendicitis and was taken to the Western Maryland Hospital early Friday morning where she was operated upon at once. For several days following the operation her condition was alarming but on Monday a change for the better occurred and unless something unforseen takes place she will be able to be brought to her home in a short time.

Mr. Walter W. Dawson, cashier of the First National Bank, after an absence of several weeks which he spent at Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn., taking a law course, returned to his home on Saturday evening. Mr. Dawson received excellent marks in his studies which included pleading and practice and corporation law. The school has an enrollment of 650 students and was founded more than a hundred years ago.

GLEE CLUB WILL PRESENT "KENTUCKY BELLE" DEC. 16

School Play Is Under Direction of Miss Kay Stenholm

Mr. T. Chankes' realistic romance of Kentucky life will be displayed in a three act comedy entitled "A Kentucky Belle" by members of the Oakland High School Glee Club, on Friday, December 16, in the Maryland Theatre. The play will be given under the direction of Miss Kay Stenholm, a member of the faculty. The setting of the play, according to Miss Stenholm, is an aristocratic home with pleasure loving characters, the interests revolving around a horse race.

Other things and characters of interets in the play will be the romance of the old colonel for the young and beautiful Isabel, which is broken by the timely fall from a telegraph pole of a lineman.

Aunt Mariah also will entertain ridiculosis fondness in referenee to her ancestors. We will see her family pride and prejudice revealed in her allusion to the "Douglases dead and buried."

The friendship of Isabel with Marie, a chorus girl, is impossible in Aunt Mariah's estimation. When Marie brings her troupe of pretty and attractive chorus girls direct from a New York stage to display their talent, Aunt Mariah is shocked and horrified.

Cindy and Henry, good old colored folk, will show us how to eat a real wetermelon—meat, seed and rind. They will show us how to clog and pick banjos, too. All are invited to come and share the thrills of the real horse race with the characters in "A Kentucky Belle" and go home humming the tune of "My Old Kentucky Home."

COMPETITION IN BOWLING LEAGUE IS GETTING WARM

Postoffice Still Leads. But Others in Organization Draw Near

Merchants and Printers were successful in the past week's games in winning three straight from their opponents on the alleys of The Recreation, while the Knights of Columbus, Gortner and Presbyterians won two out of three of their games. Postoffice still leads in club standing, with the Brotherhood and Knights of Columbus tied for second place.

"Dutch" Walters broke the record for three consecutive games, formerly held by Fred. Peddicord, when he established a total of 447.

Highest individual score for the week was made by Stanley Bond with a total of 159, which did not break the record made by S. A. Myford two weeks ago when he made 179.

Losers this week were the Lutherans, Crellin, Rotary Club, Ramblers, and the Methodists. Tonight the Lutherans and Printers will meet in the first game, with Postoffice and Crellin "tangling" in the second and final one of the evening.

The standing of the clubs on last Friday are given below. The standing does not include this week's play as the percentages are figured only each Friday evening.

Order of Publication

Harry Columbus Rumers vs. Tabitha Rumers.
No. 2787 Equity. In the Circuit Court for Garrett County.

The object of this suit is to procure a decree a vinculo matrimonii, divorcing the plaintiff from the defendant.

The Bill states that the plaintiff was married to the defendant in Allegany County, Maryland, and that they resided together as man and wife, in Garrett County, Maryland, until the 27th day of December, 1923.

The Bill further states that the conduct of the plaintiff toward the defendant has been kind, affectionate and above reproach, and that the said defendant, without just cause or reason, abandoned and deserted the plaintiff, and that such abandonment has continued uninterruptedly for at least three years, and that the separation of the parties is beyond any reasonable expectation of reconciliation.

That while said defendant has travelled about from place to place since such abandonment, the plaintiff is informed, and believes that at this time she is living and residing in the State of Pennsylvania.

That no children were born to the said plaintiff and defendant as a result of said marriage.

The Bill then prays for a divorce a vinculo matrimonn, and for such other and further relief as the nature of his case may require, and also for the order of publication.

It is thereupon, this 29th day of October, 1927, ordered by the Circuit Court of Garrett County, in Equity, that the plaintiff, by causing a copy of this order to be inserted in some newspaper published in said county, once in each of four successive weeks before the 10th day of December, 1927, give notice to the said absent defendant of the object and substance of this Bill, warning her to appear in this Court in person or by Solicitor on or before the 26th day of December, next, to show cause, if any she had, why a decree ought not to be passed as prayed.

And it is further ordered that in lieu of such publication a copy of this order may be served personally upon the said defendant, Tabitha Rumers, on or before the 17th day of November, 1927, in accordance with Section 142 of Article 16 of the Code of Public General Laws of the State of Maryland, warning her to appear and show cause as aforesaid.

AMOCO GAS

And What The Studebaker Corporation Thinks of It

You've Either Read or Heard About the Record Breaking Performance

Of Studebaker and Erskine cars at the Atlantic City Speedway. Here's a letter from Mr. H. E. Jordan of the Studebaker Corporation of America, who was in charge of the several runs. You'll notice that AMOCO GAS was used exclusively—and that the Studebaker representative is well satisfied with the quality of this AMOCO product.

To make and break records—any time, anywhere—in factory tests, on motor speedways, or in your own car on city streets or country roads—make it AMOCO all the way!

A

The American Oil Company,
Baltimore, Maryland.
Gentlemen:

Since Mr. Harry Hartz wired you recently about the record established by The Commander in running twenty-four hours at an average speed of 75.62 miles per hour, we have set up new records for cars costing $1400.00 and under and also for cars listing under $1,000.00

In all three of these 24 hour runs, your Amoco Gas was used exclusively.

Two Studebaker Dictators, closed models, were run for 24 hours each at an average speed of over 61 miles per hour, and the two closed model Erskine Sixes, after a night of high winds and rain finished their 24 hour grind at an average speed in excess of 53 miles per hour.

As stated above your Amoco Gas was used exclusively in these three tests and we feel indeed free to state that we were well satisfied with the quality of your product as they measure up fully to all that is claimed for them. At the conclusion of these tests, the six motors were torn down under the supervision of the Technical Committee of the American Automobile Association and found to be in perfect condition.

It has been a pleasure to cooperate with you in these tests and we thoroughly appreciate your many courtesies.

Yours very truly,
THE STUDEBAKER CORPORATION
OF AMERICA.

WHY THEY WENT TO THE DENTIST AND ITS RESULT

A Health Story In One Chapter For The Republican's Readers

Barbara, aged three, went to the dentist's the other day, and being an up-to-date young lady she tripped along without urging. Barbara's father is an officer of the Maryland State Department of Health and in taking her to the dentist he was practicing what the State Department of Health preaches: Prevention of disease and promotion of good health.

Speaking of Barbara's visit, he said: "Health officers know now that there is a close connection between healthy teeth and good health in general. We know also that neglected first teeth are often followed by imperfect or decayed permanent teeth, diseased tonsils and later by seriously impaired health. The old notion that baby teeth are of no account was exploded long ago. Now we know that they are as important to a growing child's health as sound teeth are to the health and well-being of the grown-up.

"One of the discoveries that has been made in the dental laboratories is that new teeth—whether baby teeth, the six-year molars, or any of the other so-called 'permanent' teeth that are cut from the sixth year on, until the wisdom teeth have come, rarely come through without some tiny imperfections. If these tiny breaks in the enamel are discovered and repaired, the teeth have a much better chance of performing the service for which they were intended in the human machine. If the tiny imperfections are ignored, each small crevice opens the way for decay and the whole round of ills that follow neglected teeth.

"So three year old Barbara is sent to the dentist to be sure that her teeth are free from imperfections or decay. For the same reason, her playmate, six year old David had a prompt inspection of the six year molars as soon as one after the other came through, because upon these teeth will depend much of his health and comfort in later life. Their friends, eight year old Betty, ten year old Jack and twelve year old Dick, as well as the older boys and girls have formed the habit and go to the dentist regularly for teeth inspections and care, if necessary.

"Over half of the children examined in the schools or at the health conferences held throughout the State for the younger children, were found to have decayed or tarnished teeth and were in need of dental care. The dental clinics that are now held in nearly every county are regarded as one of the most important ways of safeguarding the childrens' health."

STEIDING

Messrs. Perry and Clarence Fox, of Greensboro. Pa., were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Bowers.

Mr. Wilmer Fitzwater met with a bad accident one day last week while he was engaged in making props. The horse which he was working crowded him against a tree resulting in the fracture of his leg.

Miss Alice Carter, principal of the Steiding school, has returned from Washington, D. C., where she was visiting friends over the week-end.

Mr. and Mrs. Keith Steiding, of Martinsburg, W. Va., have been visiting the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Steiding.

Messrs. Wm. Welch and Herbert Bowers motored to Cumberland Saturday afternoon where they were the guests of Norma and Catherine Lowery.

Mr. Van Browning, of Deer Park, and Miss Pearl Uhl spent Thanksgiving Day in Thomas, West Va.

Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Bowers have moved to Morgantown, W. Va., where they expect to reside during the winter months.

The revival meeting, which has been in progress here for over three weeks, has closed with a successful outcome.

Mr. Levi Glotfelty was a business caller in Oakland on Friday.

Mr. Wm. Uhl, who has been employed at Cassville, W. Va., for some time, has returned to his home here.

Miss Neva Bowers, who has been ill the past few days, is very much improved and expects to return to Morgantown the latter part of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bowers gave a party Saturday night in honor of their youngest daughter Wilma. The guests present were Misses Catharine Fitzwater, Pearl Friend, Margaret Genoy, Pearl Uhl, Lovenia Landis; Luther Shank, Harry Bittinger, Guy McRobie, Hail Wright, Van Browning, Perry Fox, Wm. Uhl, Charley and Hoy Friend, Clarence Fox, Everet Bray, Joe Friend, Arnold Alexander, Rudge Keisner and Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Bowers. The evening was spent in music and games.

DOCTORS FAVOR GAS FOR HOUSE HEATING

Prominent Baltimore Physicians Use Gas to Heat their Homes

(Cumberland Daily News Nov. 20)

That health is not the least important factor to be considered in burning gas for heat has been recently brought out by E. D. Milener, of Baltimore. He says that 130 prominent physicians, including no less than ten members of the staff of Johns Hopkins Hospital, are doing their share to promote health in the home and eliminate the smoke nuisance without, by heating their homes with gas.

"Probably no group of men are better able to judge the advantages of automatic gas heating than members of the medical fraternity," says Mr. Milener. "There is a definite health value in living in a house that is uniformly heated. Colds are eliminated and people can move about without wraps. Time formerly spent shoveling coal and ashes can be used much more profitably in other ways. It is unhealthy to breathe the dust that flies from an ash shovel."

That the choice of this large percentage of public health guardians has been gas is convincing evidence that it pays to consider health first in the home life, Mr. Milener continues. By eliminating soot, smoke and personal drudgery, much is contributed toward an ideal, healthful and pleasant home.

Floyd W. Parsons, economist and scientist, claims Americans are fast becoming a race of sun-choosers, due to knowledge of the damage caused to health by smoke. Already, he says, people recognize the necessity of bacteria-free food and water, and he predicts that in another five years there will be a nation-wide demand for pure air. The price paid for air pollution, he explains, can be measured in terms of a high death rate from tuberculosis, respiratory diseases and rickets, not to mention the physical damage done property.—Advertisement.

DECEMBER AT START HAS A SLUMP IN MARRIAGES

Eleven Couples Total To Receive Permits During Past Week

A heavy slump in the issuance of marriage licenses at the office of the Clerk of the Circuit Court during the week ending Tuesday at noon was evident, only eleven couples having applied for the necessary permits before presenting themselves for a life sentence. The total for November was 109, which broke last year's record by three, but fell short of the all-time record by seventeen.

The small number of applicants at the beginning of the present month is an indication that December will not net a very fat Christmas pocket book for the marriage "steerers", whose presence along the streets leading to the Court House is beginning to be commented upon by many people and is giving Oakland a bad name. It is said, and the truth of the statment cannot be controverted that after some of the couples receive their licenses and are presented at the homes of a minister to have the rite of marriage performed they have been picked so clean by the "guides" that the minister's fee is negligible and in one or two instances couples have been compelled to apply to a chance acquaintance or a friend and negotiate a loan in order to get back to their homes.

In December, 1926, there were 118 licenses issued, while the all-time record was made in 1920, when 131 received the permits.

Two licenses issued this week were marked "don't publish"

Rabbit Clinic Postponed One Week.

The rabbit clinic which was to have been held on the Court House lawn last Saturday has been postponed one week for several reasons.

1. "Doc" Melody, veteran "horse doctor", who was to come here at considerable expense, was attending a convention of mayors, but will be available for rabbit duty next Saturday.

2. Garrett county hunters were active this week hunting down the cotton-tails before they got a chance to put one of those signs on their back saying that they carried white-spotted livers. Hence the hares were a little dubious about coming boldly into Oakland.

3. One rabbit which had weathered several seasons and which had become bolder than the rest, rested on the postoffice steps for a brief period Saturday and was immediately fired upon by many who had tracked him up Third street. This put a damper on the attendance.

4. The obliging janitor of the Garrett county temple of justice, who is also the caretaker of the Court House lawn, fearing that a clinic would be hard on flower beds and green grass, passed out the word that he would not allow a clinic to be held on the public property. On second thought Scoop heartily agrees with this course, for the janitor has the reputation of having the best kept lawn in the State and here is no telling what "tularemia" will do.

So the clinic will be held this Saturday at the Fair Grounds where the green grass grows all the year around and rabbits will be welcome. "Doc" Melody will be on hand to inspect all livers free of charge.

Thirty Years Ago.

Under the caption in the Evening Times of History of Thirty Years Ago is the following: "The Ministerial Association of Cumberland prepared a statement which was signed by the members of that body agreeing not to fee hackmen who brought them couples to be married." Hacks are now out of date and there isn't any reason for being thirty years behind the times nohow.

Chickens Fly and Flop.

The eagles of Mobile have nothing on the sixteen chickens which flew from the top story of the Hinebaugh building at the corner of Second and Green streets Tuesday. Although there was no shootin' over who would get the chickens, it is believed that this was averted only through the advance notice in Scoop's column. Many had to be satisfied with tail feathers, and two parties went half-and-half with their "catch," only they didn't know it until it was all over. Yes, it was tough on the chickens.

CRIMINAL DOCKET CALLED IN LOCAL COURT MONDAY

Many Liquor Cases Disposed Of When Traversers Plead Guilty —Judge Sloan On Bench

With Associate Judge D. Lindley Sloan presiding the Circuit Court for Garrett county entered upon its second week of the term Monday morning at which time the criminal appeals docket was called and four cases appearing thereon were disposed of.

The court room during the entire week has been crowded to capacity, at times so as to render the aisles almost impassable. The many women present at all times during the trial of cases has been commented upon by many men who make the court room their rendezvous when nothing of greater interest attracts. At times the women in the court room outnumbered the men present.

The first case called on the appeal docket was that of George Spiker, of Kitzmiller, and was an appeal from Justice Pool, of Kitzmiller, in whose court Spiker had been tried and fined $100 and costs on the charge of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicants. Spiker elected to be tried by a jury, of which former Senator John W. McCullough was appointed foreman. Testimony on both sides was rather conflicting and a determined fight on the part of the State to secure a verdict of guilty was made. The jury, however, took an opposite view of the matter and after deliberating for an hour rendered a verdict of not guilty.

The appeal case of Harmon Gannon, charged with assault on Albert T. Buerkle at the Deer Park Hotel in June, of 1926, was stetted by order of the State's Attorney. Gannon, it was alleged at the trial before Justice West, from whose court the appeal was taken, had about cleaned up all of the hotel employes where he himself acted as a watchman, when a guest who later turned out to be an athlete of no mean ability and hailing from Pittsburgh, got into the fray and knocked Gannon down two or three flights of stairs at the hotel and then quietly tied him up until the officers arrived to bring him to Oakland.

LOCAL CREAMERY ADDING NEW CONDENSER TO PLANT

Is Capable of Capacity Double That of One Now in Use—Making Other Improvements

The Oakland Creamery company, enlarged four times since it was established here several years ago, is again making some repairs and additions, according to George D. Sprague, manager of the local plant. The repairs are being made to provide for the expected increased output of milk by farmers who have become greatly interested in dairying within the past several months, Mr. Sprague stated.

To Install New Condenser

A modern condenser, double the capacity of the present one in use, has been ordered and will be installed in less than three weeks. This condenser will be capable of handling approximately 1,000 gallons of milk each day, it was pointed out, and will be of sufficient size to take care of a growing industry for several years.

A concrete floor has just been laid in the old storage room, making it easier to hold the room at an even temperature, which is kept about thirty-two degrees Fahrenheit. The storage room is used for both condensed and fresh milk.

To Increase Ice Cream Trade

Mr. Sprague is also planning on handling more ice cream business during the coming year, in the vicinity of Oakland and Garrett county. A storage room, already provided, which is kept at a temperature of zero, will keep 800 gallons in reserve.

"We are handling practically all the milk that the farmers are offering us," Mr. Sprague said, "and expect to handle all that comes in during the coming months. The amount turned in by the farmers during the winter months is a little more than half of the amount turned in during the summer. Our usual day's capacity is around 1500 and 1600 gallons."

Before the waters of Deep Creek Lake covered a large amount of territory, the creamery handled 1800 gallons per day, according to Mr. Sprague.

NEXT STATE GRANGE MEET MAY BE HELD IN OAKLAND

County Agent McGlone Gave Invitation—David Ridder Elected To State Office in Grange

That there is a possibility of the next State Grange meeting being held in Oakland during the summer or fall of 1928 was announced by County Agent J. L. McGlone, who, with Mrs. Oscar Ridder, Miss Nettie Ridder, Miss Grace Mason, Messrs. Benj. H. Friend and David Ridder, represented Garrett county at the meeting of the Grange at Easton last Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday. This meeting would bring several hundred persons to Garrett county for the three-days' session.

When the question arose in the convention held last week as to where the meeting of 1928 was to be held, County Agent McGlone, who was chosen to speak for the Garrett countians, told the convention of the wonderful scenery and the advantages of Garrett county and assured the delegates that everyone bonded together would welcome them to the county in 1928. The delegates were exceptionally well pleased with Mr. McGlone's invitation and were enthusiastic in their acceptance and urged the executive committee to choose Garrett county as the next meeting place.

The executive committee will meet in March at which time it is hoped that a delegate from the grange and a representative of the business men of Oakland will be present and further urge Oakland as the place of meeting.

Elected Gate Keeper.

At the election of State officers, Mr. David Ridder, of Shadydell Grange, was chosen as Gate Keeper of the State Grange, which is one of the most important positions of the organization. Other posts were filled by representatives from other parts of the State.

Some of the meetings were open to the public at which time addresses were made by Dr. Patterson, dean of the College of Agriculture and director of the State Experiment Station; Dr. T. B. Symons, director of the Extension Service; Mr. I. W. Heepes, president of the Maryland Milk Producers' Association; Mr. John N. Mackall, president of the State Roads Commission, and others.

The Christmas Spirit

In Our Community

THE spirit of Christmas is more than a spirit of giving. It is more than a mere exchange of material things. It is a matter of spiritual values, a sort of glorified combination of the realization that "the gift without the giver is bare," the resolution to "do unto others as you would have them do unto you" and the desire for "peace on earth, good will to men." Especially should this be true of the Christmas spirit in our community.

When we have planned for the gifts that we are to give to members of our families and friends, we must not forget that there is another which should receive a gift from us. It is our community. Our gift to our community should be one of good citizenship, by having an active interest in affairs of government, by aiding the Board of Education and the teachers in maintaining the highest standards of education in our schools, by actively supporting our churches, by centering all of our trading activities here, by taking pride in the appearance of our homes, our yards, our streets and all civic enterprises, by being an active proponent, and not an obstructionist, of any movement which will make our town and community a better place in which to live—in short, by building up our community in every possible way. For the one best gift to our community is cooperation.

And when we have given this to our community, let us not forget the gift as soon as the holiday season is over. Instead let us carry over the Christmas spirit into every day of the year so that each succeeding Christmas will be a happier one for all of us because each of us has done his share in giving our community all the good things of life.

STOTLER'S SLAYER SEEKS NEW TRIAL AFTER VERDICT

Attorneys For Walters Planning Appeal If Refused

Convicted of first degree murder in the Washington county Circuit Court, Reginald E. Walters, prohibition informer, who killed his chief, Hunter R. Stotler, will seek a new trial in the Hagerstown court, according to his counsel, Ellsworth R. Roulette and A. S. Mason.

In event Judge Frank G. Wagaman denies the new trial motion, the attorneys will file an appeal. Under the law, Walters will be sentenced to life imprisonment, having been convicted of first degree murder, without capital punishment.

Walters fatally wounded Stotler while the two men were hunting for stills in the mountains near Boonsboro. He claimed that he shot his chief in self-defense, when the latter made a move to draw his gun after he was accused of intimacy with Mrs. Walters. The State alleged the murder was actuated by revenge for fancied wrongs.

Wife Consoles Him

Following the verdict in the courtroom on Friday Walters' attitude of indifference maintained throughout the trial broke down, and he wept bitterly in the presence of all. His wife also began to cry but embraced her husband and attempted to comfort him.

BOYS' BAND TO APPEAR ON CHRISTMAS AFTERNOON

Will Make Initial Public Appearance Sunday, December 25, on The Court House Grounds.

Oakland Boys' Band will make its first appearance in public on Christmas afternoon, Sunday, December 25, at 4:00 o'clock, R. R. Gilbert, director, announced yesterday afternoon.

"Organized in April, with practice beginning the middle of May, it is little short of remarkable that the 20 members of the organization have been able to master their horns sufficiently to appear in public in so short a time," Mr. Gilbert said to The Republican. "The boys have practiced regularly and faithfully, and it is because of their 'plugging away' that they will be able to play concert music so soon after the band's organization."

The concert, as above stated, will take place on the Court House grounds providing the weather remains favorable. The selections to be played will include "America," "Silent Night," a waltz and several marches. In case of unfavorable weather, the concert will be postponed until some future time.

The boys practice every Tuesday evening in the Knights of Pythias building and the City Hall, and anyone who is interested is invited to go and hear the boys play at their hall.

"A visit of this nature encourages the boys," Mr. Gilbert said.

FAMOUS RESORT ON NORTHWESTERN TURNPIKE IS BEING RECONDITIONED; EXTENDING ELECTRIC SYSTEM

Two Projects, When Completed, Will See Restoration of Popular "Brookside"

Two projects now in the course of completion, when finished, will in all probability see the restablishment of one of the most famous and beautiful summer resorts in this part of the country, namely Brookside, a community two miles west of the West Virginia State line on the Northwestern Turnpike, and about two miles east of Aurora, the town situated at the top of the mountain road leading to Erwin and Rowlesburg, West Va.

The project as being planned and put into effect are the rehabilitation of the Brookside property by Robert E. L. Allen, former congressman, of Morgantown, W. Va., and the running of an extension line from the Monongahela System near Oakland to that section of the country, giving electric service both night and day to its residents.

Brookside, a community of 17 cottages, one hotel and a casino or dance hall, was at one time a noted summer resort, and was a stopping place for many people enroute over the old Northwestern pike, and for those who cared to spend the summer months in its seclusion and beauty.

All the buildings will be repaired under the direction of Mr. Allen, who will open the resort sometime in the near future.

The extension of the electric light system, will add the finishing touches to the famous Inn, and it is predicted that in a short time it will become a popular stopping place for tourists and pleasure seekers from all over the country.

With the completion of the Northwestern Turnpike, in West Virginia, next year, improved road will be available from any town of importance in the state, connecting with the historic routs, and with the expected completion of the remaining stretch in Garrett county within the next few years, Brookside bids fair to become a rival of other summer resorts in this section of the Alleghenies.

BRANCH AUTOMOBILE CLUB ESTABLISHED IN OAKLAND

Charles T. Graff, of Cumberland, Is The Organizer.

A branch of the Automobile Club of Maryland was formed during the past week-end at Oakland by Charles T. Graff, supervisor of the Cumberland branch of the Association.

On account of the heavy summer tourist travel in and out of Deer Park, Mountain Lake Park and Oakland, the new branch is expected to be one of the busiest in the State from May to November of each year.

Besides being of benefit to the tourists of this section, the Oakland club will be of considerable value to visitors in furnishing information and extending organized service heretofore impossible, it was stated on Saturday by Mr. Graff.

Secretary H. M. Lucius, of the State organization, will visit Oakland in the near future.

DELBERT DAVIS TO SUCCEED W. W. DAWSON AS CASHIER

Mr. Dawson Will Enter Law Practice As An Associate of E. R. Jones

At a regular meeting of the Board of Directors of the First National Bank of Oakland, Maryland, held on Tuesday, December 13, Mr. W. W. Dawson tendered his resignation as cashier, to take effect as of December 31, 1927.

Mr. Dawson for a number of months spent considerable time in the study of law when not engaged with the duties of his position, and for the past 3 months while on leave of absence has been studying in the Cumberland Law University at Lebanon, Tenn. He recently returned from Lebanon and will continue in the capacity of cashier until his resignation takes effect. After that date Mr. Dawson will continue with the study of law in the office of Attorney E. R. Jones, of Oakland, and will also conduct a general insurance and bonding business.

The resignation of Mr. Dawson was accepted with much regret by the Board of Directors, as he has been in the employ of the First National Bank for almost sixteen years, starting as a junior clerk after he left the Oakland High school in 1912.

Resolutions were passed by the board paying tribute to Mr. Dawson for the fathful services rendered the bank and for his fidelity in the conduct of the affairs of the institution during the tenure of his office.

At the same meeting Mr. Delbert Davis, who has been a teller in The First National Bank for a number of years, was elected as Mr. Dawson's successor. Prior to becoming employed by the local bank, Mr. Davis was cashier of the First National Bank at Gormania, West Va.

Many Taking Advantage of The Christmas Clubs

Since Monday when the Christmas Clubs for 1928 were opened at the Garrett National and First National Banks, Oakland, there have been both many renewals and many new accounts, according to ofilcals.

There will be many who will not open their accounts until after the Christmas holidays, it was stated, but the total of this year's savings clubs is expected to be surpassed before the middle of January.

Christmas club checks to the amount of over $15,500 were distributed by the two banks on December 1, the benefit going to about 250 depositors.

Pictures Taken of Modern Barn.

Two representatives and a photographer, from the West Bend Barn Equipment company of West Bend, Wisconsin, were in Oakland Friday inspecting and taking photographs of the modern equipment of the dairy barn of Carl Frazee, one mile northeast of town.

Mr. Frazee has been adding to his barn equipment for the past several months, and it contains many articles supplied by the West Bend company.

The photographs are to be used in the company's 1928 catalog, it was stated.

SENT TO OAKLAND JAIL

Arrested in Cumberland several weeks ago on charges of manufacturing liquor, Paul Lechliter, of South Cumberland was sentenced in Federal Court, Baltimore, Wednesday to three months in jail. He was sent to the Garrett county jail, to serve his term.

BODY OF LAD, DROWNED YESTERDAY, NOT FOUND

People Are Still Hunting for Roy DeWitt, Aged 10, Who Fell From Sewer Pipe

The body of Roy DeWitt, aged 10 years, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus DeWitt, of near Oakland, who was drowned in the Little Youghiogheny river yesterday about noon when he attempted to cross the creek on a sewer pipe, was not recovered at noon today. The search, which extended from early afternoon to late at night, and which was continued this morning, failed to reveal the whereabouts of the lad, who was last seen about 75 yards below the pipe line.

REWARD OFFERED.

At the regular weekly meeting of the Board of Directors of the Garrett National Bank, held this morning a reward of $50 was authorized to be paid for the recovery of the body of Roy DeWitt, 8-year old boy who was drowned in the Little Youghiogheny River yesterday afternoon.

Not Known Until 2 O'Clock

Ralph Lewis, age 8, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lewis, who was with him at the time, told several of his school chums, but none of them reported the accident until about 2:00 o' clock to Miss Beulah Loughridge, second grade teacher. A searching party immediately started to scan the banks, and when two boats arrived from Mt. Lake, they were launched and the search continued far downstream.

The river, which normally is very low at this point, yesterday, due to continued rains, was a raging stream about five feet above normal, and the current was extremely swift. The Lewis lad described how the unfortunate boy had slipped and fallen into the swift current.

Tells How He Fell

"He was about the middle of the pipe, when I looked around and saw him fall. He bobbed up three or four times and the current carried him down to that bend," he said, pointing to a place further down stream. "I was scared and ran up to the station and told a fat man about it, but he kept on walking as if had never heard me. I then went on to school."

School children are in the habit of playing on the pipe, according to John Murphy, telegraph operator at the Baltimore and Ohio station, and it was only the other day that a couple of them brought their lunch down from school and sat on the pipe, swinging their legs, and the water not an inch from the bottom of the pipe.

Search for the missing body will be continued until found, according to those who are lending their services to the hunt.

Motorman Is Injured In Kitzmiller Mine.

Injured Monday afternoon while at work in a mine, Carl Liller, 29 years old, of Kitzmiller, a motorman employed by the Wolf-Den Coal company, was taken to the Allegany hospital, Cumberland, Monday night and was attended by Dr. E. B. Claybrook.

Liller was operating a motor in the mine when the trolley pole flew off the wire. In attempting to prevent the pole from breaking against the mine roof, his right wrist was fractured and his hand badly lacerated. He was given first aid by Dr. Crittenden at Kitzmiller.

Curb Christmas Trees To Decorate Oakland Business Section

Over one hundred curb Christmas trees have been purchased by business and professional men of Oakland, and they will be lighted and placed in front of the various business establishments during the holiday season. The lighting will be furnished by the West Maryland Power Company. Each individual will see to the arrangement and erection of his tree.

Death Of An Infant.

Walter Bennett, four months old, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Bennett, of Crellin, died on Saturday from pneumonia. The child was one of several children in that vicinity ill with measles. Funeral services were held from the home on Sunday afternoon, the Rev. Charles A. Shilke, officiating. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

THE INTERESTING STORY OF SANTA CLAUS RECORDED

The true story of Santa Claus is told by John Maey in the December "Bookman."

According to Mr. Macy, the name, Santa Claus, is merely of the Dutch San Nicholaas which is, of course, Saint Nicholas. American children, he thinks, are probably the only ones in the world who say it just that way.

"Nicholas", writes Mr. Macy, "was an actual person. He was bishop of Myra, in Lycia, Asia Minor, in the first part of the fourth century of the Christian era. He was the youngest bishop in the history of the church. From the day of his birth Nicholas revealed his piety and grace. He refused on fast-days to take the natural nourishment of a child. But Nicholas was not a bare-foot recluse vowed to poverty. His father was a wealthy merchant, and his riches, inherited by the magic wand which fairy-godfathers wield, enabled him to be a dispenser of the good things of life, as earthly representatives of the Supreme Giver of gifts.

The most famous episode in his long career of benevolence," continues the writer in "The Bookman," "is his rescue of the three dowerless maidens by secretly giving them purses of gold. Thus Nicholas became not only the generous giver but the special patron saint of maidenhood and was so known and celebrated throughout the Middle Ages. The bankers and brokers wished to give sancity and dignity to their business and also adopted the generous Nicholas as their heavenly protector. He was adopted besides, by thieves and pirates. In addition Nicholas was the patron of all who went down to the sea in ships, whether bound on a predatory cruise or a military expedition or an errand of peaceful trade. He was in fact the most popular saint in the calendar."

The feast of Saint Nicholas was originally celebrated on the sixth of December points out Mr. Macy. But when the Catholic church and the Protestants in the late Middle Ages tried to suppress for one reason or another the festivities which grew up around the Boy Saint day, the children refused to give him up and gradually his festival was assimulated with Christmas Day. "In Belgium and Holland," he continues, "the festival of the saint is still observed on his birthday, December sixth, and the jollities and excitement are much the same as those that we enjoy at Christmas, with some charming local variations. Saint Nicholas is not the merry fellow with a chubby face and twinkling eye, but retains the gravity appropriate to a venerable bishop. He rides a horse or an ass instead of drving a team of reindeer.

"Where did Santa Claus get his reindeer," asks Mr. Macy. "And how did the grave saint become that gnome like fat fellow, with nothing ecclesiastic about him? Santy Claus, the merry elf, is not Christmas at all, but pagan, coming down from times earlier than the Christian era or at least earlier than the times when the Teutonic people were Christianized. He belongs to popular fairyland, the land of elves, gnomes, spirits, hobgoblins. In countless fairy tales there are good spirits and evil spirits. The evil spirits haunt the woods and molest innocent people. The good spirits aid the poor, bring gifts in the night, rescue princesses in distress and so on. Associated with these stories are popular festivals and ceremonies. As Christianity developed, the church encouraged all the popular customs, or many of them, took them over and associated them with Christian holidays.

"The reindeer of our Santy Claus," concludes the writer in "The Bookman," "came from Lapland, and Santy is an arctic explorer, exploring the other way. Among the Germans or Dutch who came to this country there must have been a legend of a Scandinavian Santy."

Cure For Those Ill With Tuberculosis.

More money is paid out from the State treasury each year for sanatorium care for one disease—tuberculosis—than is expended for all of the health activities carried on in the counties under the direction of the State Department of Health, including the prevention of all other communicable diseases combined. This fact was pointed out by Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the Department in emphasizing the opportunity that the sale of the tuberculosis Christmas seals gives to each individual to help in the fight against the disease.

"When you are buying seals," he said, "you will be helping the fight right in your own community, because a large part of the proceeds from the sale of the seals goes back into the counties, the rest going to the State Tuberculosis Association for the support of the activities under its direction, including the Children's Preventorium—The Miracle House—at Claiborne, and toward the maintenance of the State-wide clinics.

"These chest clinics, as they are called," Dr. Fulton continued, "are held under the joint auspices of the Association and the State Board of Health. Of the 3132 persons who were examined at the 270 clinics held this year, over ninety-six per cent were referred to the clinics by their family physicians and the rest were directed to them by their friends or by the public health nurses and were without doctors of their own.

"All cases examined at these clinics are referred back to the family physicians with recommendations as to the sort of care that should be given—sanatorium or at home. If the patient remains at home, the county public health nurse visits the home and explains to the patient the use of the supplies that are furnished free of charge by the State Department of Health, such as paper handkerchiefs, sputum cups, disinfectants, etc. She also shows the patient how to follow the rules of health in such a way as to be of the least possible danger to others.

"The State supports sanatoria for white patients at Sabillasville, in Frederick county; at Salisbury, in Wicomico county; at Mount Wilson, in Baltimore county; at Cumberland, in Allegany county, and one for colored patients at Henryton, in Carroll county. There are other sanatoria which are financed partly from endowment funds and special gifts and partly from State appropriations. Included in these are the sanatoria at Eudowood and the Jewish Home for Consumptives at Reisterstown, both in Baltimore county. Provision is also made for the care of those ill with tuberculosis at Maple Heights, in Baltimore county, at the Municipal Hospitals in Baltimore City and at the State hospitals for the insane.

"The combined capacity of all of these sanatoria is about 1300 patients. The total appropriations for sanatoria, not including the special allotments for the Municipal Hospitals in Baltimore, the hospitals for the insane and other institutions, is approximately $341,000."

WORK ON NORTHWESTERN PIKE HALTS FOR WINTER

Two Stretches of About 5 Miles Remain to Be Finished.

Work on the Northwestern Turnpike between Fellowsville, ten miles east of Grafton, W. Va., and a point five miles beyond the far-famed Fellowsville mountain, has been stopped for the year, leaving an open gap of unsurfaced road of about five miles, most of it over an almost impassible hill, according to an announcement of officials at Grafton.

Cole Brothers, Morgantown contractors, have until July, 1928, to complete the job. Beginning during the past July, they were able to surface only approximately five miles during the past season, while the Hagedorn Construction Company, of North Carolina, during the same time, completed the Thornton stretch of nearly nine miles.

With the completion of the five mile stretch at Fellowsville next year, the Northwestern Turnpike will be completed from Red House, Garrett county, to Parkersburg, West Va., and will leave an unfinished stretch of five or six miles in Garrett county to connect with the eastern end at Gorman.

When these two links are finished, an uninterrupted route over the old pike from Winchester, Virginia, to Parkersburg, West Va., will be available for motorists.

MT. LAKE PARK.

Another of our prominent citizens quietly passed from us lastThursday morning in the person of Mrs. Letitia Hayden, who will be greatly missed in this community, especially in the activities of her church, and in her home and the special care of guests during the summer months in her home. Quite a coincidence occurred as Mrs. S. M. Flowers in Philadelphia failed to rise early last Thursday morning, she dreamed that she saw Mrs. Hayden in her home here, well and cheerful and happy caring for a house full of guests that she so delighted in—a real Martha in serving others.

It is gratifying to learn that the Baltimore and Ohio is cooperating in regard to excursions here next summer. One of the representatives of the company was here a few days ago looking after the entertainment of one thousand Boy Scouts from Cincinnati, Ohio, as well as for other prospective excursions that could be so well cared for here in every way.

The people in this community are quite busy preparing for the Christmas season.

Our hunting party returned safely, but did not get to capture any deer, as the ones they could get legally were not to be found.

WANTED—LIVE REPRESENTATIVE—For Oakland and surrounding territory. Good proposition for a real hustler and a permanent position with an established responsible company. Address, Sales Manager, 455 N. Mechanic Street, Cumberland, Md.—Advertisement 42-2t.

The Covent Garden Farm

OPPORTUNITY IS KNOCKING AT SOMEONE'S DOOR.

The location is one of the most pleasant in the entire county. It is an ideal site for dairy or poultry operations. A brook of clear, cold water runs through the entire width of it, in addition to a never-failing spring. A splendid view presents itself to the Eastward, while less than a half mile to the west is the Oakland-Thomas concrete road.

A special feature is the apple and pear orchards of nearly one hundred trees.

A spirit of good neighborliness and hospitality prevails in this community.

The eleven-room house has a concrete cellar and furnace room, natural slate roof, large comfortable living room, library, new porches, kitchen cabinets, bookcases and pipeless furnace.

Barn 56x80 with hay carrier and track complete.

There are poultry houses for two hundred hens, a hog house with concrete floor, garage with concrete floor and work pit and large carpenter shop with enclosed meat house.

Several false reports, in fact malicious lies, have been circulated regarding this property.

First, regarding legal matters: There are positively no liens or mortgages upon it. Consult the land records at the Court House.

Second, regarding a wall under the house: We will give twenty-five dollars to the party who can show us any defect in said wall. Please go and inspect it.

Third, regarding the house roof: Not one drop of water ever came through it in the 22 years that I have lived in it.

Fourth, regarding the land being poor: I raised 45 bushels of oats per acre in 1926; I raised 225 bushels of potatoes on less than an acre in 1924. My corn in 1923 was above the average. This land will produce, acre for acre, with any farm in the community—I except none.

I had some crop failures, due to extremely late planting, which was unavoidable under the circumstances, but not because of soil conditions.

We will sell on easy terms and on the following conditions: If purchaser is not perfectly satisfied at the end of twelve months we will have a committee assess damages done to property (if any) and add rent not to exceed $250, and we will then remit the full amount paid by purchaser and cancel the sale.

GRANTSVILLE.

By G. W. Diefenbach

Moses D. Yoder.

Moses D. Yoder died at his home, one mile north of Grantsville, on last Thursday evening, death being due to the infirmaties of age. He was one of the many who did much to develop the agricultural resources of this section of Garrett county as well as a developer of a wholesome moral atmosphere for the community. He was a devout member of the old order Amish and began preaching at the age of about 25 years. Some years later he was ordained as a bishop and held that office until his death, which occurred in his 81st year. The funeral service was held from the Amish church near Niverton on Sunday morning, Rev. Gideon Brenneman and Rev. Joe Yoder, of near Meyersdale, officiating. Burial was nearby in the chureh eemetery. Attesting the high esteem in which he was held was evidenced by the very large number of people attending his funeral, the large church being taxed to eapacity. He is survived by his wife and children, as follows: Mrs. Daniel Sehrock, Dover, Del.; Simon M., Ezra M., Noah, Edward and Jonas, also by a large number of grandchildren; a brother, John D. Yoder and two half-brothers, Jacob D. Yoder and Jonas D. Yoder.

Declamation Contest.

The Girls' Declamation Contest, an annual high school event, was held on Friday evening of last week in the Methodist church, in which Miss Dorothy Edwards, a Junior, was awarded first place and Miss Mary Bevans was given second place. These two young ladies will compete with the others of the county, as principal and alternate, when the inter-county high school contest will be held in Oakland next week.

There were eight contestants, who recited as follows:

Evelyn Beachy...Mr. & Mrs. Bowser
Mildred Michael .....Connor
Dorothy Butler, What the Clock Saw
Mary Bevans..How Christmas Came to the Little Brown House
Marion Wisseman....Jerry's Homing
Dorothy Edwards.....Miracles
Olive VanGilder..Jim Brown's Sister's Wedding.

The judges were Prof. R. R. Webster, Mt. Savage, Md.; A. C. Stanton and C. O. Keller.

Woodmen Election

At the annual election of Grantsville Camp, No. 41, Woodmen of the World, recently held, Charles O. Keller, cashier of the First State Bank, was elected Commander. Other officers elected were Charles Oliver Bender, Advisor Lieutenant; Dr. T. O. Broadwater, banker; Charles A. Bender, elerk; M. W. Schaefer, escort; Chas. A. Sehaefer, watchman; Harold Glotfelty, sentry; Dr. N. R. Davis, camp physician; J. R. Gnagey, auditor. The camp has recently begun holding weekly meetings, which has stimulated renewed interest on the part of the members.

Farm Sales.

Last Saturday afternoon S. C. Beachy, of Meyersdale, Pa., and Lewis S. Yoder, of near Springs, Pa., executors of the last will of the late C. S. Beachy, sold a tract of land comprising 247 acres and lying south of Bittinger in District No. 6, to Mahlon Bender and others. The consideration was low, reflecting the slump eondition of farm lands generally. The sale was held in front of the First State Bank.

A more hopeful note in the farm situation, however, was sounded recently when Joseph Livengood, who resides a few miles north of the National Highway in the Casselman Valley, sold one of his fine farms to the Vought Brothers, of Meyersdale, owners and operators of the new Meyersdale dairy. The reported sale price was $6,000. The new owners expect to use the farm for dairying, thereby increasing the supply of milk to their plant. The inereased demand for milk and eream on the part of the several dairies operating in this section, should make farming, espeeially dairy farming, much more profitable and attractive, as much of the drudgery is removed in that the farmer is not obliged to do his churning.

Mrs. Parmer's Party.

Mrs. Effie Parmer entertained at Bridge last Friday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Mrs. T. D. Maurer, of Chicago, who is spending some time here with her mother and sister, Mrs. A. C. Stanton. The guests were Mrs. N. R. Davis, Miss Martz, Misses Ethel Broadwater, Ruth Stanton, Mary C. Dorsey, Christena Winterberg, Mrs. Fred Livengood, Mrs. J. F. Fahey, Mrs. B. T. Keller, Mrs. Annie Getty, Mrs. C. H. Bill and Mrs. J. U. Stanton, of town; Mrs. Ernest Livengood and Mrs. H. M. Maust, of Salisbury, Pa. A lunch was served and the decorations were of the Christmas season.

Attended Birthday Party.

Mrs. P. C. Boucher, accompanied by her son Gordon attended her mother's 80th birthday party in Salisbury on Monday of last week. The mother, Mrs. Almira Boucher is still active and in good health and enjoyed the day with her children; others attending were Stanley Boucher, of Duquesne, Pa., and Lester Boucher and two sons of Bairdford, Pa., also her daughter Miss Elsie who lives with her.

The New Ford.

The wave of nation-wide interest in the new Ford struck Grantsville last Friday when a Tudor Sedan was shown by the Motor Service Company. A large number of people inspected Henry's newest creation and it is stated that a number of orders were booked.

Church Services.

Serviees will be held in the Churches next Sunday as follows: Methodist, Sunday school at 10 a. m., Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m.; Reformed: Sunday school at 9:30 and Worship at 10:30 a. m.; Lutheran, Sunday School at 1: 15 and Worship at 2:30 p. m.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Everett Miller on Saturday last.

James Love, of Cumberland, has opened the National Barber shop, formerly occupied by the late G. W. Zeller, sr.

M. Nathan is seriously ill at the home of his niece, Mrs. Truman Frankhouser, Keyser, West Va., where he went several weeks ago to spend the winter.

The condition of Harold Boucher, who is being treated in a Philadelphia hospital is reported as very encouraging.

Miss Ruth Keller, of Cumberland, spent the week-end with her brother, Dr. B. T. Keller.

The members of the Lutheran Women's Missionary Society are planning for a bazaar and social to be held in the Chureh basement next Monday evening.

Miss Gertie Hone spent the week-end with her sister, Mrs. Truman Frankhouser, at Keyser, West Va.

Last Friday morning brought in the first bit of real winter, the mercury touched zero that morning. Today (Tuesday) is like a spring day, with very mild temperature.

Mrs. Maud Zeller, of Baltimore, visited Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Zeller last week.

Mrs. C. J. Klock returned to the Vietoria Hotel last Thursday, having spent the past three weeks with her husband in Easton, Pa.

Prof. Ralph R. Webster, of Mt. Savage, was a visitor here last Friday.

Tools and Tularemia.

Rabbits in plentiful numbers allowed Doc Melody, veteran veterinarian, to inspect their livers for signs of tularemia at the clinic held at the Fair Grounds on Saturday under the direction of Scoop and The Republican. The M. D. (mule doctor) adjusted his operating tools as Scoop administered the anaesthetic, and it was discovered that fifty per cent of the rabbits "de-livered" were white spotters. The M. D. arrived from his Pennsylvania home early in the morning and departed when the evening sky was laying the day to rest. When interviewed on the subjeet the doctor said, "I think the elinic was a success. Never have I seen so many livers. Nothing but white spots will my vision behold, but it is just as well that I never view the darker side of things." His parting words were, "Let Jim Painter and Dick Browning shoot all they want."

LOCKING THE DOOR.

At the risk of making too true that old adage, "locking the door after the horse is stolen," The Republican is of the same opinion as many citizens of Oakland, namely, that some obstruction should be placed at each end of the sewer pipe running across the Little Youghiogheny River so that in the future disasters similar to the one yesterday afternoon may be averted.

School children will soon forget the accident which took the life of one of their number, and if remembered at all would have the effect of keeping them away from the dangerous spot for a time, but eventually they will be playing upon it, eating their lunch with their feet dangling to the water's surface if something is not done to make it impossble for them to do so.

It is true that the water flowing beneath the pipe becomes dangerous only three or four times a year; that at others times one could fall from the pipe and land in about a foot of water, but three or four dangerous periods in each year are too many to take any chances.

Psychologists may rave about instinct and what is born within us, but accidents of this kind seem to tell us that all must learn by experience—either one's own experience or that of others. Perhaps something unfortunate like the drowning of this little lad yesterday was needed to make us all sense the danger always threatening. At any rate something is needed to prevent anybody from crossing the river using that pipe as a footbridge.

It will be done, no doubt, and that right speedily, The Republican hopes.

TO BESTOW KNIGHT'S RANK ON CLASS OF CANDIDATES

Who Will Become Full-Fledged Pythians After Friday

The rank of Knight will be bestowed on the Millard Tawes Class of candidates tomorrow evening at 7:00 o'clock in the lodge rooms of Garrett Lodge, No. 113, Knights of Pythias, it was announced. The class prior to this have had the ranks of esquire and page conferred upon them on consecutive Friday evenings, and the initiation tomorrow night will make them full-fledged Pythians, it was stated.

At the meeting last Friday when the rank of esquire was given the candldates, the lodge rooms were filled to overflowing, it was stated. A bathrobe outfit, donated to the lodge by D. M. Dixon and Son, was awarded to Charles J. Newman. As Mr. Newman joined the Knights of Pythias lodge just 36 years ago on that night, it was said to be very fitting that the award was won by him.

TWO MORE LEAGUE GAMES TO BE PLAYED TONIGHT

Second Week Basketball Season To Get Under Way Tonight at 7:30 O'Clock

The Lutherans will meet Mountain Lake Park, and the Catholics will meet the Presbyterian-Methodist outfit, in this week's Church league basketball games, to be played at Naylor's hall, Oakland, this evening at 7:30 o'clock. The games were scheduled for Friday, but due to the High school play at the Maryland Theatre tomorrow evening, they will be played on Thursday night.

Catholics Beat Mt. Lake.

The Catholics were victorious in the opening game last Friday night, nosing out Mt. Lake Park 14 to 13 after a nip and tuck affair throughout the entire game. The goals were evenly distributed on the Catholic team, while Jake Echard played best for Mt. Lake.

The Knights of Columbus failed to appear on the floor with a complete team, and thereby forfeited to the High School. An exhibition game put up by Jim Nally's Ramblers and the High School came out with the High School on the long end of a 27-23 score. Nally played best for the Ramblers, while Stanton and Stemple were the leading scorers for High School.

To Be Only Five Teams.

Unless Crellin decides to enter a team in the league, there will be but five teams in the race, the manager stated. The failure of the Knights of Columbus to enter a team has caused the decrease, and it will be necessary to rearrange the schedule to fit the number entered in the league.

The attendance at the opening games last Friday was very poor, according to those in charge, but it is hoped that more will turn out to witness the contests as the season progresses. Admission to both games will be 20 and 35 cents.

DECLAIMERS TO VIE FOR COUNTY HONORS DEC. 20

Dorothy Stevenson Wins In Oakland High School Contest—Final Event Tuesday Night

Miss Dorothy Stevenson won first place in the Oakland High School Fraley Declamation contest for girls, which was held in the Maryland Theatre on Friday afternoon, December 9, in preparation for the county-wide contest which is to be held in the same theatre on Tuesday, December 20. At that time winners of similar contests from Kitzmiller, Friendsville, Accident and Grantsville will compete with Miss Stevenson, Oakland's winner, for first place in the county. Louise Lauer was chosen second in the local contest. The program on Friday was as follows:

Sing Along, sophomore girls; The Soul of the Violin, Dorothy Welch; The Little Hunchback Zia, Louise Lauer; Pierrot, Mary Jane Kahl; The Littlest Orphan and the Christ Baby, Dorothy Stevenson; Daddy Doc, Mary Louise Helbig; Keep on Hopin', Sophomore girls.

Other O. H. S. News.

On Monday, December 12, the school had the pleasure of hearing a talk by Mr. Brustle of the Audobon Society, on birds. In the afternoon the biology class was especially favored by another talk. This time the subject was flowers. All enjoyed Mr. Brustle's presence very much and would like to have him come again.

Food Sale Conducted

The food sale for the benefit of the Athletic Association was not much of a success. Only $11.00 was raised. This will help some, of course, but it will not go very far toward athletic equipment. However the association sincerely thanks those who worked so hard for its success and all who patronized the sale.

Visitors At the School

The State Supervisor W. H. Klingaman and County Superintendent F. E. Rathbun visited the school Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

Come to The Play Friday.

The play, "Kentucky Belle" will be given at the Maryland Theatre, Friday night, December 16. Don't fail to be there! It will be worth your while to come! Admission, 50 cents.

CRIMINAL DOCKET CALLED IN LOCAL COURT MONDAY

guilty by Justice Pool at Kitzmiller on two charges, that of disturbing the peace and assault and battery, was found not guilty on the former charge by the Court and was fined $1 and costs on the charge of assault.

Tuesday morning the criminal trial docket was called.

Herbert Layman, of Jennings, indicted for bastardy, Rosella Layman, also of near Jennings, being the complaining witness, was tried by the Court in chambers who found the traverser guilty and sentenced him to pay the mother of the child $4 per month for 14 years.

Alex. Kerensyk, of Kitzmiller, a miner, entered a plea of guilty to the charge of manufacturing liquor. The Court imposed a fine of $100 and costs of prosecution. Kerensky's son Joe, an intelligent lad of sixteen, the oldest of a family of six children, and a Senior in the Kitzmiller high school, was present at the trial. The father, unable to clearly understand the proceedings, was coached by the boy who in turn told the man what the Court's verdict was. The Court in imposing the fine on Kerensky as well as upon all others, stated that should a second offense of like character be committed the full penalty would be imposed.

Jay Bartlett plead guilty to the indictment charging him with desertion and non-support of his wife, was ordered by the Court to pay her $25 per month for the period of one year from date.

George Newark, for carrying concealed weapons, was found not guilty, but on the charge of assaulting J. T. Boyd he was found guilty by the Court. Robert E. Hicks, of Moundsville, West Va., a summer resident of the Park, who passed a number of bad checks upon various persons in Oakland during the past summer, was paroled in the custody of his mother for a term of three years or during the period of good behavior. The checks passed by Hicks were all made good by his mother.

John D. Swauger, of the Bittinger section of Garrett county, confessed his guilt when arraigned on a charge of the sale of liquor and paid a fine of $100 and costs. His cousin, Raymond Bittinger, until recently a prohibition officer, was the prosecuting witness in the case.

Jonas Peck ,a lad of fourteen years, living near Sand Flat, entered a plea of guilty and was parolled by the Court for a period of three years by the Court. The boy was charged with having stolen a savings bank containing the sum of$2.05, the property of Mrs. Harry Paugh which he secured by entering the Paugh home during the absence of the family.

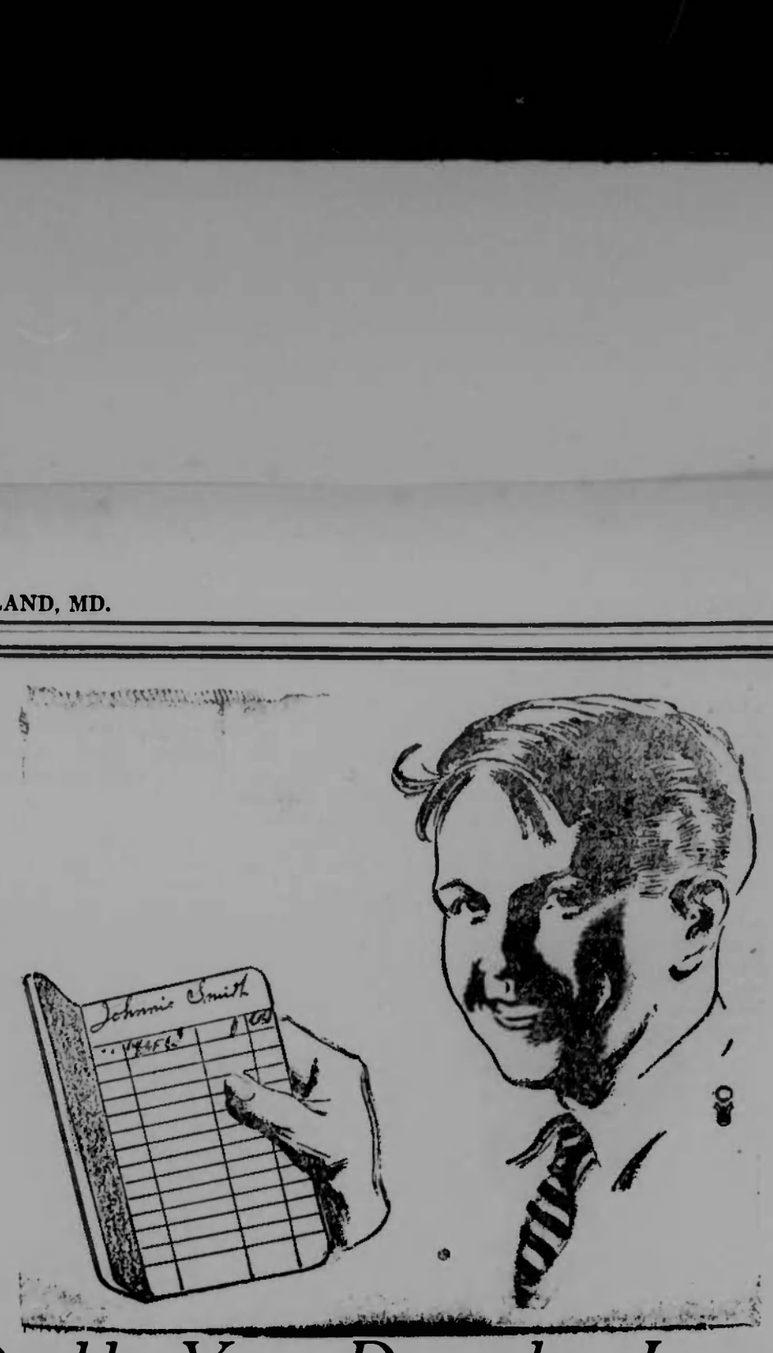
Charles Gogle, a miner from the vicinity of Kitzmiller, plead guilty to the charge of manufacturing liquor when arraigned. Cogle is a naturalized citizen of the United States and an ex-service man with the A. E. F. At the examination conducted by the Court, Cogle exhibited his naturalization papers showing that he had been in this country for a number of years, along with his discharge from the army. The plea was made that with this in his favor the Court should be quite lenient. Judge Sloan took occasion in passing the sentence imposing a fine of $100 and costs to remark that the fact that the traverser had been a soldier was all the more necessary to become a good citizen that he should obey the law of the land.

Nathan Friend, a youth residing in the Sines community, was parolled for the period of three years upon confessing that he had forged and passed a check.

Albert Walters, of Clarksburg, who has a small plot of ground in the vicinity of McHenry under lease, was fined $100 and costs when he entered a plea of guilty to the indictment in which he stood charged with the possession of liquor.

George Arnold, bastardy; tried before the Court in chambers; verdict of guilty and ordered to pay $5 per month for 14 years to the complaining witness.

Frank Kontely, manufacture of liquor; confessed guilty before the Court; $200 and costs imposed.



Franklin Clary, of Deer Park, larceny and receiving stolen goods; plea of guilty confessed. Sentence has not been pronounced.

Gleen Tasker, one of the two Oakland youths arrested one day last week in connection with a number of petty thefts recently made in Oakland, was found not guilty of the charge in an indictment found on last Wednesday implicating him in the theft of two automobile tires from the power house of the West Maryland Power Company in Oakland.

Fanny Wilt, plea of guilty confessed upon being arraigned upon the indictment charging her with the manufacture of liquor, and was sentenced to pay a fine of $100 and costs.

Virgil Moyer, of Bayard, West Va., indicted for rape, was put on trial before a jury Tuesday afternoon at four o'clock. The complaining witness was Mamie Steringer, of Wilson, a hamlet located on the line of the Western Maryland Railway twelve miles south of Oakland. The case occupeid all day yesterday and a part of last night, court being in session from 7:30 until the case was completed. The jury, with F. R. Corliss as foreman, rendered its verdict of not guilty after short deliberation. Moyer will be held, however, for the Federal authorities, a white slave charge under the Mann act, having been lodged against him. His trial on this charge will occur in the United States Court in Baltimore or at Richmond, Va.

Moyer was represented at his trial by Messrs. Horace P. Whitworth, of Westernport, and Wm. R. Offutt, of Oakland. Messrs. J. C. Renninger, State's Attorney, and E. R. Jones, prosecuted the case.

Miss Virginia Hall, teacher of the Jennings school, and Miss Marion Bell, teacher of Bear Creek school, with Miss Ida Fries, of the Grantsville school faculty, spent Saturday in Oakland.

The window of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company is decorated in a very unique way, the fireplace of Abraham Lincoln, and the modern fireplace being contrasted. Over the picture of "Honest Abe" lying in front of the fire is the caption, "Lincoln enjoyed the best in 1827." Over the modern radiantfire mantle, is the caption "Are you enjoying the best in 1927?"

Mr. James A. Towler, proprietor of the William-James Hotel, after spending a month at his old home in Virginia and visiting friends in the Old Dominion, returned to Oakland last Friday afternoon.

Sara Roberta Getty's "Little Songs of Every Day," a neat little publication containing poems descriptive of local scenes and persons, is on sale at Hamill's Book Store in Oakland. The volume would make a most acceptable Christmas gift.

Mrs. J. W. Butt, accompanied by her daughter Mary Emily, attended the funeral of Mrs. Butt's aunt, Mrs. Delila Shriver, of Wadestown, West Va., who died Friday. She was 95 years of age. They returned to Oakland Monday night.

Mr. H. E. Englehart left Oakland on Sunday for points in the Southwest, expecting to be absent for about three months. He will spend some time in Kansas City, Mo., in a branch house of one of the tailoring firms of New York City, of which he is a representative.

Last Thursday The Republican stated that the public schools would close on Wednesday, December 16, for the holiday season. The fact is that they will close on the 21st inst., but that day falls on Wednesday. Merely a matter of getting the days twisted or else looking at a prehistoric calendar.

Julius C. Renninger, Jr., who has been attending school at Mercersburg Academy, arrived Monday to spend the Christmas holidays in Oakland with his father, Mr. Julius C. Renninger while Mrs. Renninger is a patient in an Ohio hospital where Mr. Renninger and his son will spend a portion of the holiday week.

POSTOFFICE STILL LEADS AMONG BOWLING QUINTETS

Knights of Columbus, Trimming Brotherhood, Now Second

Lutherans, Postoffice, Gortner, Merchants and the Knights of Columbus were victorious in the majority of the games of bowling played during the past week in the League schedule, Postoffice winning six straight games and Gortner, Merchants and Knights of Columbus taking three straights. By virtue of its win over the Brotherhood on Tuesday night, the Knights of Columbus team is now in second place with the Postoffice still in the lead with a comfortable margin.

Tonight the Merchants will battle with Gortner, while the Methodists will meet the Rotary Club.

High individual scores were made in some instances, but no records were endangered. Gortner established a record when the five members of that team rolled a total of 665 pins for one game.

The losers this week were the Printers, Crellin, Brotherhood and Ramblers.

Following is the standing of the various clubs on Friday of last week:

AMOCO-GAS

And Once More Stutz Runs 1-2-3 Using Amoco

- - - - a letter from the Chief Engineer of The Stutz factory:

Running 1-2-3 in stock car races is getting to be a habit with the Stutz team.

At Atlantic City on Labor Day—Stutz took the first three places in the 150 mile race, setting new world's records for stock cars at from 25 to 150 miles.

Now at Charlotte, N. C.—The Stutz team took the first three places in the 75 mile race. Both times—AMOCO-GAS was the fuel used! Mr. Charles S. Crawford, Chief Engineer of the Stutz Motor Car Co., tells you in the letter that AMOCO-GAS deserves a lot of credit for these victories and he "heartily recommends it to all our owners."

As is the case of Stutz—

AMOCO-GAS has the winning habit!

The American Oil Company,

Baltimore, Maryland.

Gentlemen:

In the stock ear race meet which was held on Labor Day, September 5th, on the Atlantic City Motor Speedway, three two-passenger Stutz Black Hawk Stock Cars were piloted through to vietory for first, second and third place in the 150-mile free-for-all event, the leading car averaging 96.3 miles an hour.

We feel that we have a right to be proud of the performance of our ears as well as the meritorious product which the American Oil Company furnished, as our entries created world's stock car records from twenty-five miles to the eonclusion of the event.

There is no question in our minds but that your AMOCO Gas played a large part in making such performanee possible, and we are gratified in stating that whenever we shall avail ourselvesof the use of your motor fuel, and in addition we heartily recommend it to our car owners.

Yours very truly,

MARRIAGE APPLICATIONS ARE STILL BELOW NORMAL

Only Thirteen Permits Granted During the Week

Unless the usual rush immediately preceding Christmas is greater than in former years, December will be a low month for the issuance of marriage licenses, only 22 having applied up to Tuesday noon of this week. A feeling that there would be at least 50 couples next week was expressed by A. G. Ross, deputy clerk of the circuit court, who has been there long enough to know when to expect the Christmas rush.

Four of the thirteen couples applying for a license this week were from Clarksburg, West Va., and five of the number were obtained on Monday, leaving the rest of the week an exceedingly dull period.

Wilmer E. McArdle, 21, clerk, and Mary Elleard, 20, both of Uniontown, Pa.

Clive Edison Matheny, 21, laborer, and Louise Arline Wilson, 20, both of Clarksburg, West Va.

Darvin Trimble, 27, truck driver, of Clarksburg, West Va., and Lillie Mae Trimble, 23, of Staunton, Va.

William Harley Johnson, 24, clerk, and Ethel Ella Smith, 19, waitress, both of Akron, Ohio.

Pietro Merandi, 32, merchant, of Flemington, West Va., and Caterina Perry, 19, of Middleton, West Va.

Roy Reed, 25, saw miller, of Petersburg, W. Va., and Tina Wolford, 21, of Dry Fork, West Va.

Samuel Finley, 21, musician, and Catherine Blackwell, 21, both of Clarksburg, West Va.

Harold George, 21, farmer, and Cora Alice Bach, 24, both of Accident, Md.

James Arthur Rhodes, 21, car helper, of Swanton, Md., and Evelyn M. Donaldson, 19, of Vindex, Md.

Walter Samuel Wolfe, 21, timberman, and Ethel Forman, 19, both of Bruceton Mills, West Va.

John Oliverio, 24, cook, and Rose Roda, 19, both of Clarksburg, W. Va.

Alesio Nortarnicola, 32, railroader, and Carmal B. Crescenzi, 18, both of Riversville, West Va.

One license issued was marked "don't publish."

BITTINGER.

The romantic event of the week was the quiet and unheralded wedding of Mr. Oswald Georg, of Accident, and Miss Anna Brenneman, of this neighborhood. The ceremony was performed Thursday evening of last week and the young people went at once to Accident, where they will reside for the winter. The groom is a native of Accident but has been employed for some time on the John Beitzell farm near here. The bride is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Brenneman and both are very excellent young people, held in high esteem by all who know them. The congratulations and best wishes of the people of the community follow them to their new home and in their life adventure.

Deputy Sheriff Griffith and Richard West, both of Oakland, were in this village last Saturday evening carrying out the commands of the Court.

Mr. and Mrs. John Beitzel and Mrs. C. R. Broadwater motored to Cumberland last Sunday for a brief visit with Miss Hulda Stark, sister of Mrs. Beitzell and Mrs. Broadwater, who is undergoing treatment at the Western Maryland Hospital in that city.

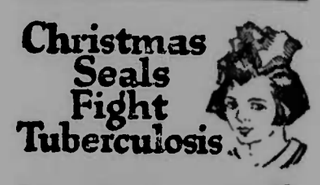
C. H. Wiley had some much needed repairs made to his residence last week. The work being under the supervision of Simon Brenneman.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick M. Bittinger and Mrs. Elmer Shawley made a business trip to Meyersdale, Pa., last Thursday.

The business of cutting and hauling Christmas trees from this section is again in full swing.

John Harvey, of Frostburg, secured a truck load of Christmas trees from the near-by forests last Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Buckle, of Grantsville, and Miss Etta Brenneman, were guests at the O. C. Buckle home last Sunday.



Mr. and Mrs. Melchoir Hetrick were shopping in Oakland one day last week.

SPECIAL PROGRAM GIVEN AT SCOUT MEETING FRIDAY

B. G. Bruestle and F. E. Rathbun Address Troop

Thirty scouts and officers were present at the local scout headquarters last Friday night to hear Bertram G. Bruestle, of the State game conservation commission, and Prof. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, address them in the first of the special programs arranged at intervals throughout the winter.

After an inter-patrol contest, the scouts were treated to a short talk on nature subjects in general by Mr. Bruestle, who, besides being of the conservation commission, is also a members of the State Board of Education and the National Association of Audubon societies. After his address, Mr. Bruestle answered questions about birds, snakes, etc. The Scouts all expressed their pleasure at his attendance and hoped to have him visit them again soon.

Mr. Rathbun, secretary of the Court of Honor, chose for his topic, "A Boy's Wealth." To each boy he distributed a little booklet arranged by himself to illustrate his well-prepared address. He then proceeded to paint a word picture of the wealth of American Boyhood, and how it should be spent and invested. He pointed out the aims and precepts of the Boy Scouts of America, and what that organization was doing to encourage boys to use their wealth wisely.

Mr. Rathbun was one of the first citizens of this community to take an active interest in the local Scout Troop, being the chairman of the troop committee to secure the first charter. He, with others, has actively maintained troop interest and to such belongs the credit for successful scouting.

Heard From An Oakland Pulpit.

The Straight Path

The Chinese have a curious superstition. They believe that evil spirits can travel only in straight lines. Therefore the streets of Chinese cities are purposely laid out in crooked patterns, gigantic Chinese puzzles, designed to baffle the spirits of the night. Directly in front of the gate of a Chinese city, the traveler finds a huge screen of masonry around which he must turn his steps in order to enter the city. But spirits cannot turn around, for they move only in straight lines; thus they are easily kept out. Similar, but smaller screens are placed before the entrance to houses.

A curious superstition, for it reminds us that the Spirit of God moves only in a straight path. "The voice of one crying in the wilderness, Prepare ye the way of the Lord, make His paths straight."

And the man who walks with God must walk the straight and narrow path of righteousness and truth. The Chinese suppose that they can keep out the spirits of evil with their crooked streets. Poor Chinese! They do not know that the evil one is crooked through and through. But we enlightened Christians ought to know that by our crooked lives and crooked ways we utterly exclude the Spirit of Christ from our hearts.

Simple straightforwardness, simple honesty, is the primal virtue—honesty not only in financial matters, but in all matters,—honesty in action, honesty in speech, and the hardest, rarest, most important kind of honesty, which is honesty in thought To make our actions square with our words, to make our words square with our thoughts, to make our thoughts square with reality, instead of living in a realm of make-believe, of prejudiced opinions and jaundiced views.

Simple honesty is not so simple after all. When we grasp the full meaning of the word, we see that very few people are honest; very few people even try to be honest; very few people know what honesty really is. Some men try to be honest with their neighbors; most unusual is the man who tries to be scrupulously honest with himself.—(From a sermon preached on the text, Luke 3:4-6.)

FIRE ENTIRELY DESTROYS DWELLING AT KITZMILLER

Believed to Have Been Caused by Overheated Stove

Fire, believed to have been caused by an overheated stove, Thursday afternoon, gutted the two-story frame dwelling of Carl Cordaro, grocer, of Kitzmiller, and destroyed the furniture and contents of the house.

Mrs. Cordaro was in Cumberland at the time, and her husband was at his store. The interior of the home was gutted before the flames broke through the roof.

Fanned by a high wind, the flames threatened adjoining homes for a time, but a bucket brigade prevented the blaze from spreading. The Keyser Fire department was summoned, but turned back before reaching Kitzmiller, when advised that the fire was under control. The loss, estimated at more than $1500, was partly covered by insurance.

Miss Frances Delawder, a maiden lady residing in the east end of town with her brother Gus Delawder, was stricken with paralysis one day last week and has been quite ill ever since. Her condition this morning remains unchanged.

Announcement has been made that the Midnight Bell Hops of Cumberland will play for a dance to be held in Naylor's Hall on Thursday, December 29, at nine o'clock. The Bell Hops furnished the music for a dance in that hall on October 18th and delighted the dancers with their entertaining music and the manner in which they rendered popular music at that time.

The Garrett National Bank of Oakland will make a free distribution of candy and oranges to the children of the community some day prior to Christmas. The date will be announced later. The bank distributed fruit and candy to hundreds of children last year and the occasion was greatly enjoyed by both the recipients and the donors. Santa Claus was present in person upon the occasion and was the most popular and sought after individual in the county while he was on duty.

FUNERAL OF ROY D'WITT, DROWNED, HELD SATURDAY

Lad's Body Recovered From Little Yough Friday at 8:30 After Search of 42 Hours.

Funeral services for Roy DeWitt, agen ten years, adopted son of Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus DeWitt, of near Oakland, who was drowned in the Little Youghiogheny River last Wednesday, and whose body was not recovered until on Friday morning at 8:30 o'clock, were conducted on Saturday afternoon at 2:00 o'clock from St. Mark's Lutheran church, Rev. C. A. Shilke, pastor, officiating. Interment was made in the Oakland cemetery.

The lad fell into the stream as he attempted to cross it on a sewer pipe and his body could not be located until forty-two hours after the townspeople had been notified of the occurrence.

Search for the missing body was carried on continuuosly and was given fresh impetus on Thursday morning when the officers of the Garrett National Bank offered a reward of $50 for the recovery of the body, which was found about 700 yards below the point where he fell into the stream. The point of discovery was almost opposite the old municipal power house and the discovery was made by the boy's foster father and Charles C. Sines, of near town.

The body was partially out of the water, when seen by two men, with hands buried in the sand, faee downward and entangled in the brush at a spot which had been thoroughly gone over the preceding day.

It was not four hours after the discovery when severe stormy weather, of blizzard proportions, struck the community and which has been almost continuous since that time. With the weather such as that of Saturday and the days following it would have been almost an impossibility to have continued the search, according to those who gave their services.

Drowning Not Known For Some Time

Ralph Lewis, aged eight, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lewis, who accompanied the boy from the grammar school building to the river, told several of his school mates of the drowning, but none of them reported it until about two o'clock, nearly two hours after it had occurred, following which a searching party immediately started to scan the stream and when two boats, brought from Mountain Lake Park arrived, they were put into the stream and the search continued far down stream and until long after sundown.

The hunt was almost continuous for 42 hours. In the meantime the water had receeded about two feet, enabling a more thorough search in the growing alders which line the banks of the river, which, normally, is very low at the point, but which had turned into a torrent with more than five feet of water running due to the long continued rains of Tuesday and Wednesday. At the time of the accident the current was extremely strong and the water at its crest.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Stevens and son left this morning for Baltimore where they will visit relatives for a short time.

Curb Christmas Trees Present Pleasing Aspect.

More than a hundred eurb Christmas trees, decorated and illuminated by colored incandescent electric lights of many hues and shades, now grace the business sections of Oakland. The trees, of uniform size, were put in place by the individual business men and firms and decorated at their expense, representing an outlay of several hundred dollars.

The trees, when lighted, present a very pleasing appearance is the concensus of opinion and adds greatly to the spirit of the season now upon us. The idea of the curb trees had its conception at a recent meeting of the local Rotary Club with the result that every member of the organization fell into line and some of the individual members sponsored trees for people not members of the organization.

The eurb trees, according to many residents of town, are preferable to one large community tree, which was in vogue a few years ago and which occupied a place on the Court House grounds.

Oakland has been highly complimented by people coming into town from larger cities upon the appearance presented by the decorations along the streets. The trees will be lighted every night this and next week.

Dewey Rice, forward on the Oakland team of two years ago, will be in the line-up along with Buck Killan, Henry McComas and other players, and an extremely good attraction is expected for the opening night. Dutch Parsons, of Terra Alta, will in all probability referee the contest.

Clarksburg boasts a real all-star team, having with them Mickey McClung, star forward on the West Virginia Wesleyan College team, and captain-elect for this season; Mac McCormick, all-state Pennsylvania forward of 1923; N. Anderson, center for the past three years on Weselyan; Davis, all-star and captain of Marietta team in 1924; Alvis, football captain for the past season, and Bill Anderson, star guard.

Clarksburg teams have always had a reputation for being clean, fast players, and the aggregation this year will be no exception, the manager has stated.

The game will be called at 8:15 and the admission fee will be 25 and 50 cents.

OAKLAND'S DECLAIMER IS WINNER OF FRALEY PRIZE

Miss Dorothy Stevenson is Given Judges' Decision—Miss Mabel Beachy, Friendsville, Second

Miss Dorothy Stevenson, junior in Oakland High school, was acclaimed the winner in the Fraley Declamation contest held Tuesday night in the Maryland theatre, over four other contestants. Miss Mabel Beachy, of Friendsville, was given second place, and Miss Alverta Dillon, Accident, third.

The theatre was well filled despite the inclement weather, and all of those participating gave excellent declamations, acording to a concensus of opinion. Miss Stevenson's selection was "The Littlest Orphan and the Christ Baby." Other declamations were "Madame Butterfly," Mabel Beachy; "The Stroke of the Hour," Alverta Dillon; "Miracles," Dorothy Edwards, of Grantsville; "The Lost Word," Geraldine O'Haver, of Kitzmiller.

The contest was inaugurated six years ago, the prizes for which are sponsored by G. A. Fraley, cashier, and financed by the Garrett National Bank of Oakland. A like contest for boy students of the county high schools, sponsored by Delbert Davis, of the First National Bank of Oakland, will occur later in the school year. Prizes awarded are as follows: first prize, $25; second prize, $15; third prize, $10; which are to be presented to the successful contestants and are to be spent for library or referance books with the approval of the County superintendent.

Gilbert Cooling, principal of the Barton schools, John W. Fisher, principal of Bruce High school, Westernport, and V. C. Compton, head of the science department of Bruce high school, were judges of the contest. F. E. Rathbun, county superintendent of schools, presided and made a few remarks while the judges were deciding on the winner. The sophomore girls sang "Keep on Hoping."

"KENTUCKY BELLE", PRESENTED LAST FRIDAY NIGHT, RIVALS FORMER HIGH SCHOOL PLAYS IN POPULARITY

Annual Presentation By Glee Club Considered Success—Miss Karin Stenholm Directed the Play Most Admirably.

The annual play, given by the Glee Club of the Oakland High School, was presented on Friday, December 16, at the Maryland Theatre, in the dramatization of "Kentucky Belle." The play, given under the supervision of Miss Karin Stenholm, can easily be said to rival former plays in the smoothness with which the actors and actresses delivered their individual parts, and in the plentiful use of expression and impersonation.

The production, into which the club put its best efforts, was the kind of success about which the graduates will want to talk when the years of corpulence are upon them and which will be food for conversation to the undergraduates in the years to come.

The Maryland Theatre was well filled with people eager for the raising of the curtain which took place promptly at 8:15 p. m., following a short prelude sketch by Miss Lavona Blamble and Wilmer Brown, entitled "Who, Me?"

The play opened with Miss Dorothy Stevenson as Isabel Douglas, giving some rather definite ideas about "family trees" and positions, and gives one an inkling of what was on her mind when she gazed out of the window to look upon Kenneth Stahl, a telephone lineman, her handsome ideal.

Miss Stevenson was easily the outstanding of the cast, putting herself wholeheartedly into her part and acting the part of a real Kentucky lover of horses.

Miss Mariah Douglas, in the person of Miss Mary Shirer, represented a typical aunt whose hobby might be called "family pride," and Miss Ruth Newman as 'Cindy, played her part of the colored servant to perfection.

Martha Gonder, as the friend of Miss Stevenson, and James Dodge, as Colonel McMillan, the wealthy old bachelor with young ideas about marriage, both played their parts well, and when it was discovered that the "handsome lineman," who had been moved into the house following a serious accident, is none other than a very wealthy and popular young man of New York City, it is very appropriate and fitting to say as the old aunt said, "Very remarkable; very remarkable, indeed!"

The final scene of the play centered around the winning of the race by "Kentucky Belle," and in consequence the winning of another Kentucky belle by Kenneth Stahl.

The chorus, composed of seniors and juniors of the school, also contributed to the success of the play

The management desires The Republican to extend thanks to the Oakland Hardware & Furniture Co. for furniture loaned; the H. Weber & Sons Co., for flowers; Messrs. R. R. Gilbert and Julius Littman, for music; Hazel Nine, for piano selections; the ushers, who saw to the seating of the audience, and to the stage managers, Thurl Tower, Wilmer Brown, George Altstetter and Leonard Murphy, who assisted in arranging the settings.

RANK OF KNIGHT GIVEN TO CLASS OF CANDIDATES

Last of Three Degrees Was Received Friday Night

The rank of knight was bestowed on the J. Millard Tawes class of candidates, Knights of Pythias, on Friday evening of last week, the rank of Page and Esquire having been bestowed on previous Friday evenings. A very large attendance was in evidence, according to Singleton Townshend, chancellor commander.

The "surprise," in the form of a crinkled bedspread, donated by I. R. Rudy, of the Coffman-Fisher company, was awarded to G. J. Altstetter.

No special arrangements have been provided for tomorrow night, Mr. Twonshend stated, due to the Christmas rush. A committee has been appointed to arrange for the improvement of the club rooms, and various artcles have been ordered which will make a vast difference, he stated. Refreshments were served as usual.

COURT RECESSED FRIDAY UNTIL FEBRUARY 15 NEXT

When Several Criminal and Civil Cases will be Tried—Jury will Be Recalled Then Also

The December Term of the Circuit Court, which was in session from Monday morning, the 5th inst., until Friday afternoon of last week, with Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan presiding, recessed with the closing of the Friday afternoon session until February 15th, at which time Judge Sloan will return to Oakland and reconvene Court for the purpose of disposing of several criminal matters and a number of civil cases left untried at the time the recess was declared. Members of the petit jury will also report on February 15th for further service unless excused at that time by the Court.

The following cases were disposed of after The Republican had gone to press last Thursday:

Graham Moore Weeks, of Mountain Lake Park, who was placed under arrest one day last summer charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of intoxicants, appealed to the Circuit Court from the decision of Justice Teats when the officer found him guilty of the offense charged. When the case was called last Friday morning the traverser entered a plea of guilty and was fined $100 and costs by the Court.

Hobart Harvey, Sand Patch, on an indictment found against him for the sale of liquor, entered a plea of guilty when he was arraigned and was fined the minimum, $100 and costs.

John I. Brown, of near the Maryland-Pennsylvania State line on the National Highway, was implicated, according to an indictment returned by the grand jury, along with others, in the theft and subsequent slaughtering of a steer, the property of George F. Wass, a farmer, the animal having been taken from a pasture field on the latter's farm during the night. Brown is the only one of the men connected with the larceny of the animal so far apprehended and when he was arraigned before the Court he entered a plea of guilty. The Court paroled him until February 15 under a bond in the sum of $1200 for his appearance at that time for sentence.

Lee R. Durst entered a pleea of guilty confessed on the charge of selling liquor unlawfully. He will also appear in Court on February 15th for sentence.

The bond of Walter Smith, amounting to $700, was declared forfeited by the Court when the traverser was called for trial and not answering on an indictment in which he is charged with the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor.

James Jones, Jr., of the Bittinger section of Garrett county, indicted for larceny, entered a plea of guilty be-

MAY NOT OPPOSE DAVID J. LEWIS FOR NATIONAL HOUSE

Western Maryland Democratic Leaders Said to Have Reached This Decision Recently.

David J. Lewis, former Representative and former Tariff Commissioner and father of the parcel post system, probably will not be opposed by the Democratic organization of Western Maryland if he decides to run again for Congress from the Sixth district, it was asserted a few days ago by one of the leaders of this section of Maryland.

The leadeds, it is said upon good authority, came to this decision at a meeting held several days ago in Frederick and attended by the "big three" of the district—David C. Winebrenner, 3d, Secretary of State; E. Brook Lee, Speaker of the House of Delegates, and William C. Walsh, former judge of the Court of Appeals. These men control the Democratic organizations in Frederick, Montgomery, Allegany and Garrett counties.

Antagonism Cited.

The decision of the leaders, it was pointed out, does not mean that the antagonism in Allegany and Montgomery counties to the Lewis candidacy has disappeared, but rather than no effort will be made to find a candidate to oppose him for the nomination.

If some other Democrat decides to go into the race the present attitude of the leaders may be changed. So far no one but Mr. Lewis has been mentioned seriously and he is anxious to return to Congress, according to his friends.

Several weeks ago there was talk of the leaders getting behind Fuller Barnard, former State's Attorney for Allegany county. Since nothing has been heard recently about this candidacy, Mr. Barnard's friends apparently have abandoned their plans.

Would Avoid Fight.

Decision not to oppose Mr. Lewis was based in the belief that, although the organization candidate might win, the fight would develop bitterness enought to make certain his defeat in the general election.

"The Western Maryland leaders are not particularly fond of Mr. Lewis, but their attitude is one of 'hands off' and 'good luck' to him if he wishes to run again", one of the leaders is quoted as saying.

This man said he believed that Mr. Lewis if he decides to run will receive in the general election the wholehearted support of the leaders, although the rank and file of the party might do a little "cutting" in Montgomery and Allegany counties.

May Attack Zihlman Stand

It is understood that if he decides to run Mr. Lewis will base part of his fight against Representative Frederick N. Zihlman on sponsoring the World Court and the League of Nations. In the last few weeks he has made a number of addresses throughout Western Maryland on these subjects.

No significance was attached to the fact that Mr. Lewis has been invited to speak December 29 at the Potomac Club, the Democratic club of Dr. J. Hubert Wade, who is anti-Ritchie and in control of the party in Washington county.

A Close Friend of Dr. Wade.

Dr. Wade and Mr. Lewis for years have been close personal friends and it is believed the former is trying to help the former Represenative along with his candidacy plans. This association will not cause the organization leaders to fight Mr. Lewis, it was said from a reliable source.

There has been no change in the Republican situation in Western Maryland that would deprive Mr. Zihlman of the nomination.

Health Centers For Colored People of Maryland.

Community health centers for colored people at which health conferences for colored mothers and children under school age ,are held regularly, according to an announcement by Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health. The latest addition to the list is at Turner's Station in Baltimore county, where two conferences, one for mothers and the other for young children, are to be held each week.

Just as in the case of the health conferences for white children, the objeet of these conferenees is to help mothers to keep their children well. No medical treatments are given. When conditions requiring medical care are found, the children are referred to their family physicians. At each conference a short talk is given to the mothers on some phase of personal hygiene or child care.

One of the most completely equipped of these centers is at Frederick, where a room in the basement of one of the colored churches has been set aside for this purpose. The room is well lighted and attractively furnished with the necessary fittings for health conferences and for other health activities. Carefully selected health posters on child care, on proper foods, and on personal health habits for the grown-ups as well as for children, decorate the walls and serve as reminders of the teachings of doctors and of nurses.

The records of the State Department of Health show that the general death rates for young colored children are nearly twice as great as those for the white children in the same age groups. From 1924 through 1926, in the colored population, one out of every fourteen babies died before it was a year old.

Colored public health nurses are now employed for health work among the colored people in Frederick, Kent, Calvert, Charles and St. Mary's counties.

EXTRA WRONG FONTS

By Scoop.

Lordy, How She Blew.

Christmas comes but once a year, as the old saying goes, but why bring that up? It isn't what Scoop wants to talk about anyhow. The fact is that at this time of the year there is much more important news than anything Scoop could gather. Consequently, there isn't much use of writing anything anyhow, because the make-up man is just as liable to throw it out as not. Maybe, however, if Scoop wishes him a Merry Christmas he may be considerate enough to print this much.

* * *

Postscript.

And while he's printing this much, Scoop might just as well take this advantage of wishing all the readers of The Republican a very Merry Christmas and a happy, prosperous New Year.

* * *

A New Year's Resolution.

"I hereby resolve that I will not let another year pass without getting all the news of the county while it is news, by subscribing for The Republican, Garrett County's leading and best newspaper. It carries the news and thereby makes the advertisements in its columns the most valuable to advertisers."

Heard From An Oakland Pulpit.

Pictures On The Wall

An interesting experiment has recently been made in a New York public school. A prominent artist was engaged to decorate the walls of the class rooms with mural paintings especially designed to appeal to and influence the mind of childhood.

The result has been that the average level of scholarship has been lifted. A new morale possesses the student body. Problems of disciplin and truancy have been greatly reduced.

We are all artists. We may not be aware of it, but we are continually painting pictures upon the walls of memory, pictures beautiful or ugly.

We are walking, living cinema eameras. All that we see, all that we hear, all that we experience—every thought, emotoin, word, act—leaves its indelible impression, registers upon the moving film of consciousness.

Then, at the twilight hour, when the flickering shadows softly come and go, the past comes back into the focus of the present. Memory begins to unreal its film of fact and fancy, of laughter and tears.

In this resurrection of memory the dead past lives again. Vanished scenes are renacted. The ghosts of buried yesterdays obstinately haunt the inner chamber of the soul.

The thing that holds the focus of attention today is the thing that will be remembered tomorrow. The thoughts that the mind now dwells upon are the thoughts that will color our future. It is most important, therefore, that we choose with eare the literature that we read, the objects we habitually look at, the companions we habitually associate with, the thoughts and moods that habitually linger in the heart.

For we are tireless artists, continually painting pictures upon the walls of memory, pictures beautiful or ugly. And these pictures create the spiritual atmosphere of life. They inspire us, or depress us. They make or break our morale ,that temper of spirit, that innermost quality of soul which is the essence of our personality, the stuff of which we are made.

We are tireless artists, and the pictures we are painting in the secret places of the mind determine whether we shall be heroes or cowards, creators or destroyers, men or beasts.

For the profoundest philosophy of life is that of Scripture: "As he thinketh in his heart, so is he."—Proverbs 23:7.

WEST MARYLAND POWER COMPANY

Monongahela System

OAKLAND, MARYLAND

The Covent Garden Farm

OPPORTUNITY IS KNOCKING AT SOMEONE'S DOOR.

The location is one of the most pleasant in the entire county. It is an ideal site for dairy or poultry operations. A brook of clear, cold water runs through the entire width of it, in addition to a never-failing spring. A splendid view presents itself to the Eastward, while less than a half mile to the west is the Oakland-Thomas concrete road.

A special feature is the apple and pear orchards of nearly one hundred trees.

A spirit of good neighborliness and hospitality prevails in this community.

The eleven-room house has a concrete cellar and furnace room, natural slate roof, large comfortable living room, library, new porches, kitchen cabinets, bookcases and pipeless furnace.

Barn 56x80 with hay carrier and track complete.

There are poultry houses for two hundred hens, a hog house with concrete floor, garage with concrete floor and work pit and large carpenter shop with enclosed meat house.

Several false reports, in fact malicious lies, have been circulated regarding this property.

First, regarding legal matters: There are positively no liens or mortgages upon it. Consult the land records at the Court House.

Second, regarding a wall under the house: We will give twenty-five dollars to the party who can show us any defect in said wall. Please go and inspect it.

Third, regarding the house roof: Not one drop of water ever came through it in the 22 years that I have lived in it.

Fourth, regarding the land being poor: I raised 45 bushels of oats per acre in 1926; I raised 225 bushels of potatoes on less than an acre in 1924. My corn in 1923 was above the average. This land will produce, acre for acre, with any farm in the community—I except none.

I had some crop failures, due to extremely late planting, which was unavoidable under the circumstances, but not because of soil conditions.

We will sell on easy terms and on the following conditions: If purchaser is not perfectly satisfied at the end of twelve months we will have a committee assess damages done to property (if any) and add rent not to exceed $250, and we will then remit the full amount paid by purchaser and cancel the sale.

ROADS TO BE KEPT FREE FROM SNOW BLOCKADES

Maryland Will Keep 2700 Miles Open at Cost of $46,500, Using 88 big Trucks for Purpose

More than 9,000 miles of highway in the four states of Delaware, Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia,comprising the Middle Atlantic area, will be kept open and free from snow during the present winter, at a cost of over $100,000, according to a statement issued by the American Automobile Association at Washington, D. C., a few days ago.

Practically all of the work is being done by State highways commissions, although a number of counties are lending their cooperation, says the A. A. A.

The national motoring body finds that a total of 205 trucks and 74 tractor snow plows will be used in these states to keep the highways open, and that about 35 miles of snow fence will be erected to prevent drifts on the roads.

State Plans.

Statistics furnished the A. A. A. by the U. S. Bureau of Public Roads for each of the states follow: Delaware plans to keep open 650 miles of main highways at a cost of about $11,000 and will use 23 trucks and five tractors; Maryland will spend about $46,500 and will use 88 trucks and three tractors in keeping 2,700 miles of highways free from snow; Virginia's problem calls for the expenditure of about $32,500 to keep open 5,200 miles of roads, using 50 trucks and 50 tractors, and West Virginia will keep open about 422 miles of roads at a cost of about $10,000, using 16 tractors and 44 trucks.

The A. A. A. statement continues: "Thousands of children, especially in the rural sections, depend upon buses as a means of attending school and this is an important factor in the demand for snow removal.

"The day of hoarding supplies of foods in homes to last the entire winter has passed. In its stead has arisen the modern situation of buying supplies from merchant several times each week. This has presented a transportation problem for food distribution that must be met by open highways.

Not In the Worst Area.

"The four Middle Atlantic States are on the southern boundary of the snow belt and the problem is not as serious as in the North Atlantic and Central States. The annual snow removal program covers almost all of the clearing 'feeder routes.' The program for the 1927-28 winter is the greatest since the open highway became a national problem and the Middle Atlantic States are contributing an important part in handling the snow belt problem."

GRANTSVILLE.

By G. W. Diefenbach

Christmas Carols.

A group of approximately thirty pupils and teachers of the high school sang Christmas carols on the street here early Wednesday morning. This is the second time this has been done by the high school and is much appreciated by the people of the town.

Automobile Accident.

While en route to Oakland on Tuesday evening to attend the declamation contest the car driven by Mr. Charles U. Edwards crashed into the Keyser Ridge school bus at a point on the National Highway near Pursely Run, doing considerable damage to the machine driven by Mr. Edwards, but very little damage to the bus. Mrs. Edwards, who was accompanying her husband, suffered a slight sprain of the wrist. Sleet on the windshield of the car and other weather conditions made it hard for the driver to see the road, who was watching on one side of the car, while Prof. J. E. Ford, of the high school, was performing a like service on the opposite side. Prof. Ford and his son James, Miss Dorothy Edwards and Miss Mary Bevans, the latter two being the Grantsville entrants in the declamation contest, proceeded to Oakland on the Blue Ridge bus following the accident.

Dramatic Club Outing.

The members of the Grantsville Dramatic Club spent Friday evening at the Colonial Hotel, Meyersdale, in a social way, one of the attractions being a chicken and waffle dinner. The entire club has been working hard and therefore felt a little recreation would not come amiss. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Miller, Mrs. Harry Bender, Misses Mary Martha Miller, Dorothy Edwards, Esther Zehner, Evelyn Swauger, Dorothy and Mabel Younkin, Messrs. Enos Folk, Charles Stanton, Otto Bender, Emerson Bishoff and Casper Locchel.

Christmas at the School.

The members of the high school, with their teachers, besides singing carols on the streets of the town, have worked hard and done many things to make the Christmas season one long to be remembered, a few of them being the making of candy and cakes by the domestic science department for the poor people of the community who cannot expect those things for the holidays. The Grammar school gave a delightful Christmas program on Monday afternoon for the children of the A. M. C. home and gave presents to the children and on Tuesday afternoon, repeated the program for the parents and visitors.

Christmas Services

The churches of the community will observe Christmas by holding special services as follows: Reformed; Friday evening, 7:30; Luthcran, Saturday evening, 7:30; Catholic, Sunday morning, Sunday school in Methodist, Reformed and Lutheran at 10; Methodist, Sunday evening at 7:30 and at the Catholic a special Christmas mass will be celebrated on Monday morning at 7 a. m.

Personal

Teachers of the Grantsville school will spend Christmas in their respective homes, Prof. J. E. Ford and son James in Washington, D. C.; Miss Eva Falkenstein and Emerson Bishoff at Oakland; Miss Ida Fries in Clarksburg, W. Va., Miss Lena Hamburg with her sister in Baltimore and Prof. Ira Staley at Brunswick, Md.

Mr. and Mrs. Melchoir Hockman of Boynton, Pa. visited Miss Gertie Hone on Monday.

Clayton Diehl of Gettysburg college and Edgar Stanton of Franklin and Marshall college are spending the holidays with their parents.

Mrs. Harrison Wiley of Reisterstown, Md., is visiting her sister, Mrs. Nevin Broadwater and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Josephus Glotfelty at Bittinger.

Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Edwards and son Cecil were visitors in Morgantown, W. Va. last week.

The bazaars of the Reformed Ladies Aid society held Thursday last and of the Lutheran Woman's Missionary society held on Monday night were very poorly attended, due to the extremely bad weather.

A WAYSIDE SERMON

Heaven doth with us as we with torches do not light them for ourselves.
—Shakespeare.

CHRIST vs. SANTA.

During the past few weeks, men and women have been frantically rushing around to get remembrances for this friend and that relative and for the children of their friends and for their relatives' children, and for their own children, and nine chances in ten they have never stopped to give a thought as to why they are presenting gifts at this time of the year.

Is it because the custom of giving is as old as the ancients and must be kept up? or is it because the legend of Santa Claus must be upheld? Both are reasons, no doubt, and very worthy ones at that.

The Republican condemns neither the custom of giving nor the legend of Santa Claus.

But does everyone know the reason of gift giving on Christmas Day? Probably the majority realize that Christmas is celebrated because the Christ Child was born on that day in Bethlehem; and because the Christ Child said it was better to give than to receive, and because the giving of gifts was an established custom, Christmas and gifts have always been associated together.

Do not, then, The Republican suggests, let the ide aof Santa Claus overshadow too much the real meaning of Christmas so that one's children will grow up with the idea that December 25 is merely a time when one exchanges gifts with another and that Santa Claus is only a legend told to all little boys and girls.

Instill within the growing boy and girl the relation of Santa Claus and gift giving to Christ, and keep alive the real reason for the celebration of Christmas.

In the end Christ will reign above Santa Claus in the minds of all, which will be no detriment whatever to old Saint Nicholas and his reindeers.

LUTHERANS-CATHOLICS WIN OVER THEIR RIVALS

Mountain Lake Park Compels Team To Go Extra Period.

The Lutherans won from Mountain Lake Park and the Catholics were victorious in taking the second game of the season from the Presbyterians in last week's games of the Church Basketball League, which were played on Thursday night at Naylor's Hall in Oakland.

The Lutherans had to extend themselves to win from their Mountain Lake Park opponents, a five minute extra period being necessary to break the tie which was scored at the end of the game. The final score was 14-12.

The Catholics had things pretty much their own way during the first half agains the Presbyterians, but McComas and his assistants came thru in the last half to make the game close and exciting. Catholics finally won, 22-18.

No games are scheduled for this week, due to the Christmas rush, but on Friday, December 30, the Lutherans will meet the local high school, and Mountain Lake Park will play the Presbyterians. Games will begin promptly at 7:30, the manager stated, and it is hoped that a large number of fans will turn out.

FREE PUBLICITY AND NEWS

(AN EDITORIAL)

Distinguishing between real news and "free publicity" is something that seems to bother almost every editor in the United States, and the editor of The Republican is no exception. The December 3 issue of the Publisher's Auxiliary has the following to say on free publicity and news:

Making a distinction between free publicity and legitimate news is a problem which every newspaper editor is called upon at some time or another to solve, and since both are intangible and changing qualities which defy instant recognition, positive analysis and permanent classification the solution of the problem is always a difficult one. That the free publicity question is a live topic among publishers is indicated by the amount of discussion given to it on many press association meeting programs.

The Auxiliary has wondered sometimes if an amount of time has not been given to the discussion of a subject which is all out of proportion to its importance and if, so far as practical results are concerned, the time so spent in a wordy belaboring of the "free space grafter" might not have been spent more profitably otherwise. For we have steadfastly believed that the problem of how free publicity should be disposed of is, after all, a problem of the individual editor and cannot be solved by a group of editors passing blanket resolutions covering all forms of free publicity. We have maintained that there is just one test to be applied to free publicity in deciding whether it is to appear in the publisher's newspaper or be consigned to the editorial wastebasket. That test is the test of news or reader interest value to that newspaper, and since only the editor of the newspaper can determine that, he, and not a group of editors, who are unfamiliar with his readers and their interests, should be the one who decides whether or not the free publicity should be used.

We have known editors who, in the proverbial "leaning backward in the effort to be upright" in dealing with free publicity, have deprived their subscribers of reading matter that was rightfully theirs. The classic interest of this is the publisher who, during the flu epidemic with an appalling death rate in his community, refused to print the insructions of local health authorities on how to combat the plague unless they were run as paid advertising. We have known editors, too, who have used free publicity indiscriminately and without any regard to its timeliness or reader interest value in their papers because it was convenient "filler." The policy of one, it seems to us, is as indefensible as the policy of the other. The editor who uses any and all such material sent to him does the same thing.

The Auxiliary, no less than any other newspaper, constantly receives free publicity and we frankly admit that we print a great deal of it. But we do not print it because certain individuals, organizations or businesses will thereby be benefited, either directly or indirectly. Neither do we decline to print some of the free publicity because somebody will profit therefrom. When we print this material, it is because we believe it has a certain news value or reader interest. When it, in our opinion, lacks either, it is not printed. Holding those views on the factors which determine what to print or what not to print, The Auxiliary has never been seriously troubled by the problem of free publicity.

Second O. M.:—"No, but a pair of socks would."

* * *

Five of our organization attended the Buick sales and service meeting held in Cumberland Tuesday. Ask us for any first-hand information you may want concerning the wonderful 1928 models.

* * *

While in Cumberland we saw quite a few of the Gorman people doing their shopping.

* * *

They said they would rather do their shopping in Oakland, which is nearer, but owing to the condition of the road they could not get here.

* * *

We also learned while driving to Cumberland Tuesday through the sleet and rain that rubbing the windshield of the car with salt prevents it from freezing. We've tried onion, alcohol, tobacco, but salt is the best yet.

Within the past week some member of our organization has visited numerous cities and towns,but Oakland with its illuminated Christmas trees far surpasses them all for its Yuletide decorations.

Dr. Henry W. McComas, Oakland physician, is shown above standing beside his 28th Ford car, who is authority for the statement that he is unable to do without a Ford. On a recent visit to Baltimore he had an opportunity of looking over the new Model A Ford, then on display in that city. Upon his return to Oakland he placed an order for a sport coupe with Mr. Charles C. Reckard, manager of the local Ford agency. When placing his order for the new Ford he expressed his opinion that it was far superior in quality and performance to any other light car now on the market.

The Republican has it from post-office employes that mails at this season of the year were never heavier. While the receipt and dispatch of parcels is quite burdensome to officials, the bulk of the mails is made upof greeting cards and commercial correspondence. The greeting cards on display at various stores are varied in style and price and all are extremely attractive.

LONG STANDING GRUDGE LEADS TO FISTIC DUEL

Charges of Assault and Carrying Concealed Weapons Are Heard at Trial Yesterday.

An attempt to settle a little disagreement of several months' standing in front of a store in the town of Kempton, Garrett county on Tuesday morning, brought about complicated charges and widened the breach existing between Jake McCrobie and Wm. Broll, Bernard Broll and Stanley Perchon, all of whom were given hearings before Justices of the Peace in Oakland yesterday afternoon and evening.

Charges of assault, and carrying concealed weapons were lodged with the officers against Jake McCrobie, who in turn charged his adversary with assault, Bernard Broll with carrying concealed weapons and Stanley Perchon with assault.

The charges brought by William Broll against McCrobie were heard yesterday afternoon before Justice E. I. West, who dismissed the charge of assault because it was brought out at the trial that Broll was the aggressor, but who found McCrobie guilty of carrying concealed weapons and fined him $20 and costs.

Before Justice W. A. Gonder last evening the assault charge against William Broll and Stanley Perchon was continued until some future date and Bernard Broll was found guilty of carrying concealed weapons and fined $25 and costs. The offense was committed Monday night.

The trouble between the men has been brewing for several months, according to the testimony, and William Broll decided to settle the matter on Tuesday morning as he saw McCrobie approaching him on the street at Kempton where all the men involved are employed as miners.. The fight started and in the midst of the fray McCrobie was seen to have a heavy railroad tap in his hand and he proceeded to cut a gash in Broll's head with the implement. Perchon testified that he had taken the bolt away from McCrobie, but had not assisted Broll. McCrobie stated that several of the men have been laying for him for some time.

Tom Seymour, constable at Kempton, made the arrests.

A Change Is Made In Date For Hunting Upland Game.

The Acts of 1927, Chapter 566, provides for an open season on upland game, November 10 to December 31. Heretofore, the season closed with sundown, January 1. However, the new law effective June 1, closes the season with sundown, Saturday, December 31. It will therefore be unlawful for any person to hunt upland game after sundown December 31, and any person apprehended for hunting during the closed season will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law, according to a bulletin from the State Conservation Department.

The penalty for this misdemeanor is not less than $25 nor more than $100 for each offense, plus the costs. The season for wildfowl is November 1 to January 31. This law is Statewide and conforms with the Federal law. Therefore, wildfowl may be hunted lawfully until January 31.

The open season for muskrat and otter is January 1 to March 15, inclusive.

The department solicits the cooperation of the public in general in observing these laws.

Rotarian Jim Towler Host To Local Club Friday

Rotarians on last Friday evening were guests of James A. Towler, proprietor of the William-James Hotel and also secretary of the local Rotary Club. Mr. Towler provided a turkey dinner for his guests. The table decorations, original in design and execution, were in keeping with the season of the year and were very beautiful. President McComas was the recipient of a gift from the club in recognition of his services as were also Rotarian Rathbun, whose natal day—the "23d anniversary", as was stated by Rotarian Dawson, who made the presentation address, and Harry Sincell, the only 100 per cent member of the club in point of attendance for the year 1927. The meeting was one of the most enthusiastic and spirited sessions of the organization since it was formed.

This evening will be "Ladies' Night" at the meeting of the club, the date for this particular meeting having been changed from Friday to Thursday.

FREE RIDE TO "CUT" IS HALTED AT GRANTSVILLE

Suddenly Declines To Pay Fine When Nearing Her Home

Mrs. Nelson Wilt, whose home is in the vicinity of Grantsville on the National Highway, has more ways than one in getting a free ride home, even if it is necessary for her to be accompanied by Sheriff W. D. Casteel and Deputy Sheriff Joy Griffith.

Mrs. Wilt, at the recent term of the Garrett County Circuit Court, was indicted, tried and convicted for the unlawful manufacture of moonshine. A fine of $100 or three months' confinement in the House of Correction was the penalty imposed upon her by the Court. She wouldn't pay the fine, and gave expression to the thought that as she was a woman the court officials would release her—but she was prepared for them if they did not.

Saturday morning arrived, as all Saturday mornings have a way of doing in this well regulated world of ours when nature is allowed to take its course. Sheriff Casteel and Deputy Sheriff Griffith had their automobile primed for a trip to the House of Correction, which institution is located between the sand hills bordering Washington, D. C., and a few miles west of Baltimore. The journey began, and with the officers and Mrs. Wilt were Jimmy Jones, Jr., sentenced to serve six months in the House of Correction upon being convicted likewise at the recent term of Court on an indictment charging larceny; Pat Hayes, another six month guest of the State in the aforementioned institution for making moonshine.

Prior to leaving the Sheriff's residence Mrs. Wilt declared that she did not have a hundred dollars nor any other amount of money approaching that sum and that she could not obtain it. About an hour later, however, when the automobile containing the party approached the woman's home near Grantsville, she suddenly decided that she could scrape the necessary ducats together and remain in the bosom of her family during the holiday season. So the obliging sheriff stopped in Grantsville. When he pulled his freight out of that town Mrs. Wilt was not of the party. She had put one over on the county. She had "bummed" her way home, but had paid her fine and reimbursed the county by likewise paying the costs assessed against her by the Court.

BOOTS SIMS, KITZMILLER, MURDERED, IS LATE REPORT

"Boots" Sims, of Kitzmiller, who was declared by a coroner's jury of inquest, conducted by Justice of the Peace Grover Poole at Kitzmiller on Monday, to have been frozen to death at a point on the road near Chaffee, is now thought to have been murdered, according to Sheriff W. D. Casteel, who received a message from the Kitzmiller Justice this morning to that effect.

The body of the dead man was thoroughly examined by the coroner's jury during the inquest, but it is now reported that the man had a large hole in his head, which has led the officers to the theory tha tthere had been foul play of some kind.

Sheriff Casteel is now in Kitzmiller making an investigation.

SLIPPERY ROADS CAUSE FOUR WRECKS IN WEEK

None of The Occupants of The Cars Were Seriously Injured

Four automobile accidents other than two in which intoxicating liquor played a part, happened during the past few days, the icy roads being responsible for three of them, and a blow-out being the cause of the other.

A Ford car, driven by a man named Biggs, of Mountain Lake Park, and a Buick sedan, driven by E. R. Fike, of Tunnelton, collided in front of Spoerlein's store at Gortner on Saturday, destroying the gas tank alongside the roadway and damaging the two cars involved considerably. Fortunately no one was seriously injured.

A Whippet roadster, bearing a West Virginia license plate, was almost entirely demolished at a point on King's Hill, north of Oakland, Sunday night. The car was occupied by a man named Welch and two men named Murphy, formerly of near Deer Park, but now employed at Cassville, W. Va., all of whom were more or less injured.

Adair Dailey and Dick Cale, both of Terra Alta, who were in Mr. Dailey's car returning to their homes from Oakland on Monday evening, skidded off the road at Crellin, going into the woods. The accident was caused by the slippery condition of the road.The car was badly damaged, but the occupants escaped without injuries.

James Willison, returning to his home at Mountain Lake Park from Oakland, Tuesday night, wrecked his Ford roadster when a tire blew out. He was descending Oak Hall hill at the time and was unable to hold the car in the road. The machine was damaged somewhat. The driver escaped without injury.

TWO BOYS ARRESTED FOR SMASHING ELECTRIC BULBS

Fined $5.00 and Costs Each at Hearing Tuesday Morning.

Harry Henshman and Arlie Winters, both of whom are minors, were arrested Sunday night by Policeman Samuel B. Aronhalt, when they were caught by the officer breaking the colored incandescent bulbs that the adorn the curb Christmas trees along Second street. Many of the lamps were broken and in one instance the wires feeding the lights were pulled from the tree and lain across the pavement. The tree at the furniture store of A. R. Martin was entirely stripped of its ornaments, the theft being committed Saturday night. It is said that the two boys arrested were not implicated in the theft of the Martin property.

Following their arrest the two boys were relased upon their own recognizance when arraigned before Justice Gonder. They were given a hearing before Police Magistrate West Tuesday morning where they entered a plea of guilty, saying they deeply regretted their actions and intimated that this would be their last offense and after paying a fine of $5 and costs each they were allowed to depart.

No reason could be found for the boys' desire to destroy the bulbs and Officer Aronhalt, who made the arrest, said that there had been on indication of intoxicants about them.

EVERYBODY GETS WRONG SIZES IN PRESENTS FOR CHRISTMAS AND CLERKS ARE KEPT BUSY EXCHANGING

Some People Come In Even As Late as July and Want Exchanges Made, But Too Late

The way to hades will have to be via detours, while paving with good intentions in the way of Christmas gifts is under way. The residents of Oakland contributed their usual share of paving blocks last week.

Business in the local stores was on the boom yesterday, but the cash registers were not tinkling as merrily as the proprietors would have them do. The majority of the customers about 99 per cent of them, in fact—were bent upon exchanging gifts for those of the proper size and of trading in useless presents for others more desirable or applying the value thereof on accounts.

"What do you want to do this morning, exchange a pair of pajamas?" a clerk asked, when The Republican representative stepped lightly through a door of one of Oakland's leading business establishments.

"No; mine fit perfectly. But I would like to know if you have had many customers this week who want to exchange presents for something they like better," the reporter said.

"I opened the door at eight o'clock Tuesday morning and didn't even have time to pull up the front blinds before I was swamped with all kinds of requests to exchange this article or that article for one of similar kind or of another kind," the clerk said. "And it keeps steadily up for several weeks following Christmas. I have even had people in here in July wanting to exchange ear muffs, which were given to them on Christmas, for a fan, or summer underwear."

When an enterprising saleswoman in another emporium was quizzed as to the meaning of the crowded store the days immediately following the Christmas holiday, she elothed her answer in the following comprehensive manner while at the same time exchanging 6's for 7's and undressed for dressed kid gloves:

"Big boy," said the saleswoman, "you see about you the city's Christmas hangover. Everybody in town got the wrong number on Christmas and now they are trying to get something in the way of salvage out of the wreck.

"If you want to put somethin' worth while in your paper," the efficiency-plus expert concluded, "just advise the townspeople to spend the next 360 days gettin' the correct size of everything the family wears, and then spend the other three or four shopping days checking up to see if they have grown since the sizes were listed."

OAKLAND BOYS' BAND GAVE CONCERT ON SUNDAY

First Public Appearance of Organization Highly Creditable

Before a good-sized audience, the twenty members of the Oakland Boys' Band made their first appearance in public on Christmas afternoon in the Maryland Theatre, rendering several selections with the smoothness of veteran players.

"America," "Silent Night," a waltz and several marches were included in the concert of the young boys, all of whom range in age from nine to eighteen years.

Since the organization of the band in April of the present year, Mr. R. R. Gilbert, the director, assisted by Russell Brown, both members of the old Oakland band, have been instructng the members of the organization in the use of their instruments, and it is very remarkable, according to Mr. Gilbert, that they have become proficient in their use in so short a time.

Since the concert on Sunday, two more boys have requested permission to become members of the band and they have been accepted. "There is still one instrument which we need very badly," Mr. Gilbert said, "and that is a bass horn. But a real good one would cost about $300 and without help of some kind it can't be obtained."

MARRIED.

Helbig—Stevenson—Miss Kathryn Stevenson, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Stevenson, of Mountain Lake Park, and Mr. Leo Helbig, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew W. Helbig, of Oakland, were quietly married at the Catholic rectory in Oakland Tuesday evening at seven o'clock, the ceremony being performed by the Rev. William J. McVeigh. The parents of the contracting parties were the only witnesses present. The bride is a graduate of Oakland High School and of the University of Maryland, and during the present school year has been engaged as an instructor in the local high school. She will continue her work there for the present at least. The groom is employed at the City Roller Mills, of which his father is the owner. The couple will make their home in Oakland.

Hinebaugh — Nine — Miss Jessie Nine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ervin Nine, and Mr. William Paul Hinebaugh, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thaddeus C. Hinebaugh, all of Oakland, were united in matrimony early Monday morning by the Rev. Chas. A. Shilke, pastor of St. Mark's Lutheran church. The ceremony was performed at the church parsonage. Immediately afterward the couple left for Washington, D. C., where they will remain several days and upon their return will reside in Oakland. The bride is a graduate of Oakland High School and of Frostburg State Normal School and is at present teacher in the New Herrington school, just west of Oakland. The groom is a painter in the employ of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company.

Two More Church League Games Scheduled for Friday Evening

The Lutherans will meet the local high school and Mountain Lake Park will play the Presbyterians in this week's Church League basketball games on Friday evening, beginning at 7:30 o'clock in Naylor's Hall, according to the manager. No games were played last week due to the rush incidental to Christmas, but games from now on will be more regular, it was stated.

So far in the League games, the Catholics, Lutherans and High School are tied for first place, neither team having lost a game. One of these teams is bound to fall from this list on Friday when the Lutherans and High School meet. Mountain Lake Park has lost two games and the Presbyterians have lost one game.

Fined For Being Disorderly

Charles Madden, of Deer Park, was fined $1 and costs yesterday on the charge of being drunk and disorderly. The authorities were notified by Madden's wife, who claimed that he was creating a disturbance at his home.

YOUTH GIVEN HOUSE OF CORRECTION SENTENCE

Besides Being Fined $100 For Driving Car While Drunk—Another Waives a Hearing

Glenn Dixon, a youth residing in the vicinity of McHenry, who was arrested Sunday after the car which he was driving collided with another machine at Sebold's farmhouse, fifteen miles north of Oakland on the Accident Highway, was sentenced to serve three months in the Maryland House of Correction, besides being fined $100 when he was found guilty of driving his car while under the influence of intoxicants.

Mrs. Frances McGettigan, of Accident, who was one of the occupants of the car with which Dixon's car collided, was painfully but no seriously injured. She was removed from the wrecked car to the Sebold home where she was attended by Dr. R. A. Ravenscroft and where she remained for several days following the collision.

Dixon was placed under arrest and brought to Oakland following the accident and on Tuesday afternoon was given a hearing before Justice of the Peace Wm. A. Gonder. At the hearing Dixon entered a plea of guilty to the charge docketed against him, and was sentenced as above stated.

Walter Smith, another occupant of the Dixon car at the time of the occurrenee on Sunday, was not arrested until Tuesday afternoon when he appeared at the hearing of Dixon. Smith waived a preliminary hearing before the Justice and in default of bond in the sum of $1000 was remanded to jail where he will be held for the June Term of the Circuit Court.

At the recent term of Court Smith, who had been indicted for the manufacture of liquor, forfeited his bond of $700 when he failed to appear for trial.

It is said that when the collison occurred Sunday between the Dixon and McGettigan cars, a gallon of alleged moonshine liquor ,which was contained in a jug, was thrown from the Dixon car, but failed to break. It was used as evidence in the case.

Howard King In Jail.

Howard King, of Garrett county, is in the Garrett County Jail following an automobile wreck at Crellin on Saturday night about 7:00 o'clock with the car of J. C. Nordeck, of Oakland, manager of the general store at Freeport, W. Va. King will be given a hearing some time in the near fuure. It is said that he desires to plead guilty to a charge of driving a car while under the influence of intoxicants and Mr. Nordeek's presence, who is located outside of Maryland, is required at the hearing.

King has been arrested upon former oecasions for his connection in the handling of illicit liquor.

POSTOFFICE IS BEATEN BY TEAM WITH ONE MAN

Four "90's" and Ed Kahl Break Leaders' Winning Streak.

Postoffice lost one game out of three to the Lutherans, who had only one man present on Tuesday evening's games, breaking the team's consecutive winning streak for the past two or three weeks, but not endangering its first place position.

Gortner remained in second place and made its position surer by trimming the Lutherans three games on last Thursday night.

Those winning the majority of their games at bowling during the past week were Gortner, Crellin, Methodists and Postoffice. Lutherans, Rotary Club, Brotherhood and Ramblers were the losers.

The Ramblers, who have jealously guarded and retained the last place in the League during the present season of bowling activities, won two games from the Rotary Club on Thursday

The Printers-Methodist game, which was to have been played on Monday night, will be played early tomorrow evening.

No individual high scores were made during the week's play. The standing of the clubs on last Friday was as follows:

DEER ON NEGRO MOUNTAIN ATTRACT MANY WILD CATS

Tracks Left In Snow Indicate Presence of Maurauders.

Since deer are again becoming plentiful in Garrett county, especially in that section wherein is located Negro Mountain, and which extends into the State of Pennsylvania, and is bisected by the National Highway, wildcats, according to reports brought to Oakland, are becoming quite numerous on this historic mountain.

The snow now covering the earth furnishes ample proof that wildcats are not only numerous in that part of the county, but judging from the size of the tracks left by the maurauding animals, some are quite large.

Old and experienced hunters are authority for the statement that wildcats do not hesitate to attack even the largest of deer by springing upon their backs from branches of trees as the deer pass beneath them, and that wildeats are genearlly more numerous where deer range than in any other section of the woods.

George P. Edgar reports the killing of fourteen lambs on his Cranberry river plantation by what was supposed to be a panther. The throat of each of the lambs was eut. Some of the carcasses were covered up. A panther was reported to have been seen just across the river from the point where the lambs were killed.

BITTINGER.

The combined skill of all the artists of all ages could not have reproduced the beauty and grandeur of the scene which greeted the eyes of the villagers when they awoke on Christmas morning. The whole landscape, forest and field, glittered and glowed with the marvelous lights and shadows as the bright sun shone out upon a world of ice and frost, seintillating like millions of jewels. It was a perfect Christmas morning.

A very interesting and well rendered Christmas program was given in the Bittinger Lutheran church on Christmas morning by the young people of the Sunday school.

The Christmas service held in the Glades Mennonite church on Christmas evening was well attended and was well rendered.

Mrs. Elizabeth Yoder, a native of this community, who died at the home of Christian Bender, near Niverton, Pa., early last week, was aged seventy years. She was highly esteemed by all who knew her. She is survived by two daughters and two sons, Mrs. John Mason, of North Glade, this county; Mrs. Lydia Broadwater, of Iowa, and Messrs. Earl and Lyman Selders, of Ohio. Mr. Samuel Brenneman, of this community, is a brother of the deceased. The interment was made in the Amish cemetery near here Friday afternoon.

Miss Leola Brenneman, of Oakland, spent Christmas day with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Brenneman, at their home here.

Rediscovering Maryland

Historians Bewildered By Records Preserved At Annapolis

By MARK S. WATSON In The Baltimore Sun

A FEW weeks ago, through one of those unexpected coincidences which we never prepare for, the Governor of the sovereign State of Maryland discovered that he had to have without delay some vital information about where Maryland's sovereignty ends and Virginia's begins. The Potomae, you say. Of eourse, but what part of the Potomac? Midstream, or the left bank or the right? In matters of enforcing fish game laws this is obviously important.

Maryland's traditional control had been called into question and Governor Ritchie in exasperation had searched long and in vain for the fundamental authority to support that tradition, for action in the case required something more substantial than common belief. At length he summoned Arthur Trader, chief clerk of the Land Office, that remarkable institution barely known to the layman, housed on the ground floor of the Court of Appeals Building. He explained the urgent need.

In half an hour Mr. Trader appeared in the Executive Office with a photostat eopy of an agreement solemnly made by the sovereign State of Virginia many years ago, providing precisely the authority the Governor needed. Compliments to Mr. Trader on his skill met with a wave of the hand.

"That's easy," said the chief clerk. "We have real hard jobs once in a while."

* * *

During the summer a member of the history faculty of a Northern college dropped into the Court of Appeals. He had heard vaguely of literary-historical treasures there—a candidate for a Ph. D. degree at Columbia years ago, in fact, had spoken of Maryland as supplying an admirable example of smooth transition from monarchial to popular government—and he thought a day or two might be profitably spent in studying original sources probably still existent here on a small scale. He gave an amazed look and abandoned his plans for what remained of his summer time, spending a month in delighted study of treasures laid before him and leaving with regret.

Another historical student expressed his surprise and remarked that nowhere else in America is there such a treasure chest of original sources concerned with the Colonial period in America.

* * *

There is one admirable reason for outsiders being amazed at the almost incredible wealth of venerable documents assembled in the fireproof vault of the Court of Appeals (Chief Judge Bond and his associates maintaining a jealous guard over the treasure, most fortunately) in the basement storage rooms used by the eourt and in the Land Office itself. The reason is, candidly, that no one in Maryland is aware of just how great the treasure is. Even the judges do not know, for the documents never have been fully examined and if Judge Bond has his way they never will be fully examined until full arrangements are made for their preservation.

The problem is no easy one. Some of the documents date back well into the seventeenth century and the folds have become creased and so hard that, on unfolding, they almost certainly will crack and fall apart. They can with safety be opened even once only by an expert prepared to glue them instantly and securely with stout transparent paper so that they will not crumble away. Thus repaired, they must be kept flat.

The Court of Appeals has no space for such a display. The State itself has none. And only a day of enlightenment which provides a spacious museum to house them and scholars to supervise the work of discovery and repair and classification will bring the full disclosure of just what literary treasures exist at Annapolis. Until that day comes, the Appeals Court judges hope to continue their determined protection of the papers from ignorance and carelessness and theft which probably would accompany their temporary release from custody.

* * *

The documents and maps in the Land Office are much more accessible, due very largely to Chief Clerk Trader's zealous interest in them and his long service with the State—he has been twenty-six years in the Land Office. Commissioners have come and gone, but Mr. Trader stays on. A fortunate thing for antiquarians, for he now knows his carefully indexed tomes so thoroughly that after watching him in action one suspects that blindfolded he eould by sense of toueh distinguish "Patents, Certificates and Warrants for the years 1634-1695" and "Liber D. S. Patents and Assignments for years 1685-1706."

A surprising experiene ls to walk into the Land Office and find in neat array a suecession of sturdy volumes containing detailed records of the Provincial Court from 1685 down to the year when George Washington was elected first President, and to move into the next room and find ready for examination Colonial land patents dating back still further, to 1634, and to examine the map with the crafty sons of crafty old William Penn worked off on the not-very-bright Calvert of that day, whereby the Maryland-Delaware boundary was shoved southward considerably further than the earlier Calverts had intended it to be. The not-very bright Calvert signature, accepting that delineation, is clearly legible after all these years.

* * *

Just what are these original records which so stagger visiting historians and which Marylanders placidly allows in large part to remain folded away from sight and not even examined to ascertain what is recorded? How did Maryland accumulate documents two and three times as old as state papers which other commonwealths display as evidence of their ancient honor?

They are, as mentioned by that candidate for a Columbia degree, the recorded steps by which this American wilderness astride Chesapeake Bay was converted into a field of exploration, into a prosperous royal colony, into a rebel commonwealth jealous of its state's rights, and bit by bit into an integral part of the federation of States, which now is called the United States of America. The old Calverts and their successors had a habit of saving manuscripts and keeping them in good condition. Time has crumbled some of the documents and carelessness has lost others, and that brand of thieves who call themselves "collectors" have made way with a few; but in the main Maryland's Colonial history is recorded in these original sources better than is the ease with any other of the thirteen Colonies, in the judgment of the few students who have made a cursory comparison of the Annapolis vaults with other large collections.

* * *

One reason for the keeping of the files undoubtedly was the Maryland custom of making changes slowly and methodically. There is a continuing history for almost all its institutions, notably the courts themselves. When a more or less formal court becomes necessary because of the growth of population in the colony and the consequent disputes over titles and payments and trespass and the thousand and one other things over which mortal man, encouraged by his attorney, finds it necessary to dispute with his neighbor, a court for the hearing of these disputes was set up at St. Mary's.

The other counties were set up, Kent in 1642, Anne Arundel and Calvert in 1650, Charles in 1658, Baltimore in 1659, and so on. And as each county was erected its own County Court was established, so that the original court at St. Mary's became known as the Provinical Court, a description rather than a formal title.

The county courts concerned themselves only with minor matters and dissatisfied colonists could appeal to the Provinical Court. In these matters the Provinical Court ruling was final. But there were graver matters which did not originate in the county courts at all. They started in the Provinical Court, and an unfavorable decision in these cases could be appealed to the Governor and Council, and then, in cases where the litigant was a determined and obstinate man (there seems to have been a fair proportion of them in Maryland) a final appeal could be carried to the Privy Council in England.

* * *

When the Revolution came the orderly folk of the colony did not destroy the machinery whieh the Crown Colony had used. They reformed it. The Provinical Court of Maryland Colony became the General Court of Maryland State and continued to take appeals from the scarcely altered county courts—there were eighteen counties by 1776 —and continued to record its findings n much the same way as had its predecessors.

It was a jolly old court, too. Its members wore grand red robes and looked just as impressive as had the members of the Provinical Court under the Georges and the Calverts. And when the General Court term was announced there was a further announcement that the spring or fall racing term would be held—in the same weeks! Fortunately it was not at the same hours, although even so the red-robed justices often had to speed up the eourt machinery a good deal ln order to hustle a posky law case past the finishing line and still have time to strip off the grand red robes of office and get to the race track before the first race was called.

In these days when the bench is regarded as the eventual reward for merit at the bar, it is entertaining to recall that no such relationship existed in the old days. The jurists were not the leaders of the legal profession. Indeed they rarely were lawyers at all. The lawyer existed to do the work, the judge as a sensible layman to see whether the work meant anything, and, if so, what.

And in this Maryland was not at all unique. Vide New York State's high Court of Appeals as late as 1840—the State Senate. And, this day, appeals in England are taken to the House of Lords. And keep in mind the judges of our own Orphans' Court. It was special statutes of the Assembly which made membership in the bar a requirement for the General Court and the Court of Appeals.

What sort of cases did the old courts handle? Well, very much the same as were handled in the days of Hammurabi and by the courts of 1927. There were not so many violations of law, of eourse, partly because there were not so many people to sin and partly because there were not so many laws to be sinned against, the Colonial General Assembly being a mere novice in those days. But people were very much the same, with like grievances and like ambitons and like passions, and if lawyers were not then so ingenious at the devising of lawsuits for themselves to prosecute they made rapid progress.

And so the ancient docket of judgments of the Provincial Court of 1658 contains notations which might pretty well be set down at a 1927 hearing. The opinions are not found so early, the first recorded being of a General Court case in 1781. Were earlier opinions lost? Probably not. Probably these were the first written at Annapolis, for, the old eourts being made up of horse-racing landowners no one seems to have thought the actual language of their opinions worth recording. As civilization grew more complex and eases more numerous it became apparent that a position established in one case ought to be maintained in another case of like nature. And as memories or an oral statement vary sadly, the written statement was naturally evolved.

* * *

A few years ago the Appeals Court's classification of these ancient papers was nil. A retired Baltimore lawyer (who modestly remained anonymous) saw a chance to make an intended gift to Johns Hopkins University and do the State of Maryland a needed favor and perform a valuable act for historians generallly, all with the same stroke. He gave to the history department of Hopkins a fund sufficient to have the heterogeneous pile of manuscripts in the cellars at Annapolis put in something resembling order. The work was done by a serious student cooperating with Chief Judge Bond, who probably to this day knows more of what is in this rich treasure house than any other person and appreciates it more.

Not all the manuscripts were opened, for this, as has been explained, would mean the destruction of many of them. But so far as possible they were assorted and placed in categories, and these reassorted and placed in chronological order. When the time comes for a detailed examination by a eorps of competent scholars this vital work will have been done.

Thus we have in separate lots, and every parcel of each of these lots classified and put in proper sequence these categories:

Provincial Court—Alphabet to judgments, dockets for court of both Eastern and Western Shores. Minute books (dates from 1658 to 1778, thus including the transformation to the General Court.)

General Court—Fee books. Judgments and decrees and other proceeding. Arguments and opinions. Cost books. Dockets, minute books, day books. "Judicials." Jurors' attendance records.

Court of Appeals—Judgments and decrees for 1806 on. Transripts of records dating back to 1803. Record of oral arguments and opinions back to 1803, judgments, minute books, etc.

This same cataloguer isolated some miscellaneous exhibits of perhaps a livelier interest to students, such as notes on the old Chancery Court which was extinguished in 1852, a compilation of laws and rules governing the Maryland court system, a collection of "ejectment proceedings" dating back to 1722 and showing that even in the ancient days there were horse thieves. Here, too, are applications for naturalizatlon in the royal colony.

The courts being recognized as eustodians of the laws, the collections contain, almost unbelievably, the original acts of the Assembly back to 1732 —the year of George Washington's birth. Not eopies, official or otherwise, but originals. There is, in many respects more interesting, the bound original manuscript record of all the laws from 1640 to 1692 which in 1694 was adopted by the Assembly as the full list of laws of the province, until copies should be made of the original laws which by mistake had been sent to England. Perhaps those originals are still to be found in England when our own students have wound up their work as far back as 1732 with the Annapolis originals.

There are bound manuscript records of the laws from 1711 to 1732, then a gap, then resumption in 1779.

* * *

What elese is there no one knows, for only a few of the packages have been opened and these cautiously. To show what strange discoveries can be made, there was a call a time ago for the original copy of the State's War Constitution of 1864, and to the dismay of the court it could not be found. A careful search was instituted and at length the document was found not unnaturally folded into a packet of the laws of that year. So was the original of the present constitution of 1867 and of that of 1851. Some day in some equally natural but unsuspected place some delightful papers of 1776 may be found.

A packet of manuscript laws was broken open and found to contain a Revolutionary officer's commission dated 1776, lost for a century and a half. In another totally irrelevant vicinage was a leave of absence granted a soldier. The soldier later became clerk of the General Court, scrawled a bill of costs on the back of this interesting document and stuck it away with the court papers where a contemporary of his great grandson uneovered it by chance. Who knows what else is there?

* * *

What did the Assembly enact in those days? Well, a good deal that wrinkles the brows of our present Assembly. One of the first acts governs the manner in which a neweomer to Maryland shall be naturalized. Another shows how he can get himself convicted of bribery and corruption of the provincial officers. Another formally incorporates the old town on the banks of Jones Falls.

On them, with one seal or another, you find in due and ancient form:

I will this be a law.
CHARLES CALVERT.

And it was done. Did that mean that it was obeyed then any more than now? Well, there are several hundred bushels of manuscript which suggest otherwise.

In the good old days, however, there was high insistenee on pledges of obedience We find back in 1747 an oath of allegance to King George, which had to be signed. We find that same oath repudiating the oath-taker's eredence of the doctrine of transsubstantiation, showing a happy economy of laws and oaths and signatures by which one pledge was made to take care of one's allegiance, spiritual and temporal alike. For this of course, was two years after "the '45," when unhappy Stuarts were being hunted and harried throughout the world lest they reassemble under some worthier prince than Charles had shown himself and make further trouble for the serene George. Many liked England's Established Church as little as they did England's Established King. The oath disposed of both at the same time, theoretically.

And while speaking of oaths it might be mentioned that they kept on swearing the patriots even after the ejection of the British. One of the most impressive is the "Oath of Fidelity and Support to the State," required by an act of 1777, aimed at the suppression of lingering Tories. Was anyone exempt from the oath? It does not seem likely, for among the signatures are Paca and Stone, who had signed the immortal Declaration itself, and quite probably Carroll and Chase as well, if one could decipher elearly.

* * *

With all these quaint and alluring manuscripts to be found in the realm of the Court of Appeals there is positive bewilderment that, in addition, there are manuscripts often less technical and often more absorbing to be found on the ground floor of the building where the Land Office lies. Before one can understand their source it is needful to learn, more accurately than most of us know it, the ancient beginnings of that office.

It must be realized that the source of title to every inch of ground in Maryland is found in that charter which Charles I gave to George, Lord Baltimore in 1631. By it the succession of Lords Proprietaries for nearly a century and a half maintained themselves as the supreme power. As payments of rent had to be made from the beginning naturally enough the Land Office had to be created and had to be regarded as of major importance. Its formal creation seems to have been in 1680. In the forty-nine-year interim Charles had been executed, Cromwell had ruled as Protector, Charles II had been enthroned and the regicides hunted down and James II was soon to be driven from the throne. A Lord Proprietary was justified in feeling rather nervous about matters of allegiance.

But without waiting for the Land Office's formal creation its functions had been cared for methodically. Annapolis bears witness in "Series 1 to 23, Patents, Certificates, Warrants, Assignments, Petitions and Court Proceedings, 1634-1695." It is this grouping of manuscripts with which Chief Clerk Trader first amazes the curious student. What a wealth of material is here for antiquarians and genealogists.

* * *

And what a study in paper making and ink making, too. These ancient pages are still deciphered, the parchment-like fabric stout, the ink unfading.

"They made admirable paper back in the 1600's," ramarks Mr. Trader. "In later days people worked shoddy paper off on the record offices. Here's an index of a later day that is falling to pieces because the paper itself was poor quality."

You look at it alphabetically, expecting here some example of twentieth century duplicity on the part of the paper trust. You find that the "later day" is 1726 and realize that in Mr. Trader's sight a day is as a hundred years more or less. Paper makers seem to have begun making shoddy long before the Progressive party felt called upon to set about making all folks good.

The chief elerk has put in a glass frame one of the ancient tomes, of 1679, which a bookworm (literal, not figurative) had entered by a slender hole and which he had proceeded to hollow out by years of gnawing. When the damage, unseen from outside, took place, no one ean estimate, but it was to eliminate chances of a repetition by other bookworms that Mr. Trader persuaded the commissioner to install a photostat device, party for the recording of other threatened pages and also to provide accurate copies which could be used in routine work rather than allow injury to the priceless pages by frequent turning.

* * *

These antiquarian tastes of Mr. Trader's, to which the State owes so much in the preservation and classification of the old records, are the inevitable outgrowth of his activities. The Land Office, from its early days onward, has been concerned with land titles and transfers, with the identification of "vacant land" and its disposition to new buyers. Cautious buyers want no doubt of the title, and, after exhausting the facilities of the register's office in one of the counties, pursue the title back through the centuries to the original grant by Charles I, almost three hundred years ago.

Can there be any great quantity of "vaeant land" in Maryland? Well, since Mr. Trader has been in office he has discovered 40,000 acres of it. A good deal is along the tidewater shores, land which no one thought of any value until a few years ago when the ladies discovered the merits of muskrat fur and gay huntsmen discovered the value of a piece of swamp where a ducking shore could be thrown up.

Still more is in the mountain country which was given away to Revolutionary soldiers—the "Military Lots" of whieh historians write. Surveying methods then were erude. Some of the lots overlapped. Others failed to touch and all through Garrett and Allegany counties there have been uncovered narrow strips of land with no owner until the Land Office could issue a fresh warrant to a would-be purchaser.

* * *

A good deal of that vaeant land sold at the eonventional price of 50 cents an acre. One such tract half a mile long but only sixteen feet wide figured not so long ago in a momentous lawsuit which went through the State courts and then the Federal courts. It happened that this strip was over some admirable coal veins and was worth thousands. It had cost half a dollar.

The coal companies in the western mountains have been the chief buyers, In fact. One of them become so hopelessly entangled in claims and counterclaims that it bought out all the claimants, merged all the strips and took out title to one single consolidated tract over which there will be no more dispute.

* * *

There are delightful cases that come to the Land Office. One was the Mud Island case in Baltimore harbor. Islands had been pushed up above the surface of the water. Who owned them? Was it the south bank owner or the north bank owner or the State? The doubts in the mind of each claimant were so great that the three contestants finally withdrew application and both caveats and agreed to whack up in a friendly arrangement outside the eourt.

There was the "Billikin Island" case down the Severn. Was the island connected with the mainland? If so, did the owner of the mainland property own the island or did the island squatter? That ease wasn't decided until the intervening space filled up and solved the problem in favor of the mainland's owner.

Or, wnile on tragic subjects, take the melancholy case of an ancient Maryland family which had been paying taxes of so much per acre continuously from 1729 to 1926 on what was regarded as 2,000 acres of farmland. Last year it was resurveyed and found to be only 1,200 acres. The missing 800 aeres seems to have been sold to another ancient Maryland family back in 1842. Does that mean that the sorrowing estate can get back the taxes paid in duplicate from 1842 to 1926? Let 'em try it. And this tract is a half hour's drive from Baltimore or from the National Capital.

* * *

Sometimes searchers after title come to Mr. Trader in desperation because his indexes do not reveal what is desired about a title to land, say in Garrett county. They complain bitterly of the indexes.

"Maybe you didn't look in the right indexes," he suggests.

"I looked in Garrett county," is the answer.

"Did you look in Allegany county?" he inquires casually. "You know Garrett was carved out of Allegany county back in 1872."

And the applicant flounces off to study Allegany county instead of asking the patient chief clerk to help him. Soon he returns.

"Not in there either," he says in triumph.

"Did you look in Frederick county?" asks Mr. Trader. "You know those western counties were all carved out of the mother county Frederick back in 1776, and Frederick was carved out of Prince George's back in 1748. Maybe I'd better help you." And with a few magic passes he produces the precise record which the despairing claimant has long sought in vain.

* * *

New patents taken out perpetuate the quaint old names In those of the last years we find "Shiela's Nook," in Allegany; or "Second Thought," in Montgomery; or "Willey's Right" and "Tribulation" in Dorchester, and "Purnell's Tump," whatever a tump may be, in Worcester, to say nothing of "Democrats Choice' 'and "Hepburn's Harbor' 'and "Brittingham's Good Luck" in that distant stretch of the Eastern Shore. What memory is evoked by "The Marsh" in Anne Arundel, or "Aaron's Claim" in Caroline, or "Haney's Discovery" in Cecil?

These are the entertaining features of the Land Office, but its prime purpose is not entertainment. Not least important is its possession of indexes to the local land records contained in the several counties. The importance of this lies in the faet that irreparable damage will no longer be caused by fires in the county offices—such as stripped both Calvert and St. Mary's of their ancient records years ago, or by aceidents such as in the war of 1812 caused the loss of many of Cecil's records.

* * *

When will serious, studious attention be paid the old records? No one can tell, for certainly there is not widespread information about treasures already brought from the Land Office for display by the Maryland Historical Society. These include the Assembly proceedings from 1637 to 1774, correspondence of Lord Baltimore with the crown officers, threescore letters from General Washington and a great amount of other invaluable material, which, it may be hazarded is rarely looked at today.

What price history in Maryland?

MT. LAKE PARK.

The Christmas services in the Park M. E. church were unusually good on Sunday morning which fact reflected the splendid ability of those who had charge of training the children for their respective parts. The recitation by Miss Dorothy Stevenson was a feature of the occasion and showed her ability as a reader.

Even nature seemed to do its best to make the day a delight. The earth was covered with snow and the trees glistened with a coat of heavy sleet. The night preceding and the night succeeding Christmas day every twig and every inch of snow sparkled with beautiful formations of frost. The windows of dwellings were all decorated as well with the most beautiful patterns of ferns and flowers.

Mrs. Ada Lee and her daughter Miss Nellie Lee have closed their cottage here for the winter and have gone to Washington, D. C., where they will spend the winter with relatives.

The meeting in the U. B. church is starting well and we are wishing the workers having charge the very best success possible.

Mrs. Levi Echard is spending the holidays with her daughter, Mrs. Bessie Willett, in Cumberland.

Mrs. Wildman is visiting in West Virginia.

A WAYSIDE SERMON

Life is full of endings, but every ending has a new beginning, thus we can open a better chapter.

REPEATED ADVERTISING MAKES REPUTATION

January 1, 1928, with all the good will of the new year, and the wishes of happiness and prosperity, should bring to Oakland a feeling that the year will bring good business. There is good business to be had if the opportunity is taken.

Improved roads from Thomas, Davis, and other towns nearby, and the completion of the Northwestern Turnpike, gives Oakland a chance sueh as it has never had before, and it only remains for the rest of the towns to know that Oakland is a good place in which to buy.

There is only one way of making people acquainted with Oakland's stores, and that is to advertise them, and do it continually. There is no better way of illustrating what repetition will do than by the use of an editorial, appearing about three weeks ago in the Mountain Echo, Keyser.

HALITOSIS

There's a word for you: halitosis. It was buried in the dictionary for scores of years, its meaning unknown to 999 out of 1000. Today even the five year old can tell you that it means "(unpleasant breath)" and that Listerine will remove it.

And, incidentally, there's an argument for advertising that cannot be laughed off. Whoever heard of comedones until the Pond Vanishing cream company decided that comedones (blackheads) was the cause for social ostracism and that Pond's Vanishing cream was the sure cure.

There are two types of merchants in every town. There is the progressive, up-to-date retailer, who realizes that he is purchasing his most valuable commodity when he buys space in the newspaper. And there is the type that doesn't think it pays.

Bruce Barton tells a story about advertising that we reproduce.

An advertising salesman for a county newspaper was soliciting a small town grocer for an ad. "But I have been here 20 years and everyone knows I'm in business," the merchant said.

"What building is that across the street?"

"It's a 70-year old church," the merchant told him.

"And I'll bet they still ring the bell every Sunday morning," the ad man said.

Repetition is another name for reputation.—Mountain Echo, Keyser.

BOLSHEVIST DEFEAT.

Bolshevism, as usual, overplayed its hands in China. Seeking arrogantly to Bolshevize that great empire, it has ended in a big disaster for itself. China, aroused at last, kicks out the meddling Muscovites.

Soviet Russia did not start the Nationalist movement, but came when it saw that movement winning, and tried to turn the success to its own ends. It carried things with a high hand. Its domination led to the disruption of the Nationalist party, and the temporary retirement of the great Nationalist soldier-statesman, Chiang Kai Shek.

The red emissaries were expelled from Peking by Chang Tso Lin, ruler of that conservative capital. They grew all the bolder in Canton, the liberal southern capital, until finally Russian Communists led their Cantonese converts in an orgy of assassination, pillage and destruction.

That was too much. The Chinese leaders who stood for genuine Nationalist principles turned on the reds and gave them a dose of their own medicine.

Atrocities, no doubt, have been committed in Canton in the name of Nationalism. They are regarded as cancelling the atrocities inspired by Russian leadership. Russian Communist propagandists have been executed along with Chinese reds, without trial. The others are ordered out of the country. Moreover, the Nationalist government, which is the nearest approach to a real government that there is in China, severs diplomatic and commercial relations and expels Russian consular officers.

China at last stands on her own feet, determined to govern itself. She thus justifies her liberal revolution in the eyes of sane governments which themselves have been pestered, in less degree, by the same arrogant group at Moscow. It is the worst blow Bolshevism has suffered yet, in a world where it is nowhere very popular.

Having definitely and forcibly repudiated the Moscow crowd, the Nationalist government itself qualifies for recognition by respectable powers as the best hope of China.

TAKING STOCK OF HEALTH.

State Department Advises That This Be Done at Intervals

Wishing every Marylander "A Good Health," Dr. John S. Fulton, Director of the State Department of Health, advised every grown-up to form the habit, if he or she has not already done so, of having a thorough going over by his or her doctor, at regular intervals, to find out how effectively the human machine is working and to be advised as to special care or to reinforcements that may be necessary.

"The best way for grown-ups to keep fit," Dr. Fulton said, "is to follow the example set by the up-to-date business concerns and to form the habit of taking stock and of checking up at regular intervals—at least once a year—on his or her physical assets or liabilities. A business concern employs a bookkeeper or an auditor who has been especially trained for that particular job. In the same way, the human being who wants to keep his physical machine in good working order has it examined by his doctor and its strength and weaknesses pointed out.

"We are gradually coming to realize that sickness or ill health or conditions that will eventually incapacitate, are a loss to us financially as well as physically and that it is good economy as well as good common sense to find out, if possible, when and where such conditions exist so that they may be remedied before they go too far.

"One of the greatest benefits arising from tuberculosis clinics that are held each month throughout the State, comes through the finding of incipient cases—that is, the cases that are in the early stages and are capable of great improvement and possibly of being completely arrested. Of equal importance is the discovery of other incipient conditions at these examinations. For instance, some form of heart trouble was found to exist in the case of 221 persons out of the total of 1151 examined at the clinics held this past year. Early discovery of these conditions and care in following the doctors' advice will help to prevent much suffering and to prolong many lives.

"Young mothers have found out that the best way to keep their babies well is to have their doctor see them regularly, WHILE THEY ARE WELL. The medical examination of school children as a means of KEEPING THEM WELL is as much a matter of course as any other part of the school routine. The periodical examination of the grown-up, WHILE HE IS WELL, is just as important for the grown-up."

A Happy New Year

WITH the world's cheery greeting to 1928, each one of us links the hope that the New Year may bring even greater success.

Our wish is that the coming twelve months may be the happiest and most prosperous ever, for you.

As each new day pays its dividend in accomplishments, we stand ready to help you reap the greatest returns.

Santa Wires Mayor Fraley.

Mayor Fraley had just entered the dining room of the William-James Hotel a few minutes before the telephone bell rang. He was slightly behind schedule time at the weekly gathering of the Rotary Club, and the members were loudly singing "Jingle Bells." He was tired from a busy day at the store, but stepped briskly to the telephone upon being paged.

"Hello," he said.

"Is this Mayor Fraley?" was asked and when the speaker was assured that it was none other than Hizzoner, the following conversation ensued:

"This is Western Union, Cumberland. "I have a very important telegram here for you from New York."

"Well, go ahead and read it," the Mayor said, anxious to get back to a bountiful evening meal and his fellow Rotarians who were having a good time together.

The voice at the Cumberland end of the wire sounded his name and address and read the following terse message:

"Will arrive late Saturday night."

"Yes; but who is it from?" the Mayor asked.

"Santa Claus," the voice replied, as the receiver was clamped on the hook.

The Higher The Lower.

A man had just informed the Pullman agent that he wanted a berth in a Pullman.

"Upper or lower?" asked the agent.

"What is the difference?" asked the man.

"A difference of fifty cents in this case," replied the agent. "The lower is higher than the upper. The higher price is for the lower. If you want it lower you'll have to go higher. We sell the upper lower than the lower. In other words, the higher is lower. Most people don't like the upper, although it is lower on account of being higher. When you occupy an upper you have to get up to go to bed and get down when you get up. You ean have the lower if you pay higher. The upper is lower than the lower because it is higher. If you are willing to go higher, it will be lower."

"Thank you," said the man. "I've made other arrangements; I think I'll stay home."

Scoop May Escape.

Scoop played the associate editor an Irish trick Christmas morning. He was passing around a lot of Christmas presents and a good deal of bunk mixed in and handed the associate editor an envelope containing a check. It was for $25, drawn on the Fourth National Bank of Oakland. The check will be preserved and when the Fourth National opens for business it will be presented for payment, so now Scoop has warning of the fate pending.

Will This Person Please Remit.

Will the person who was so kind as to send Scoop a letter wishing him a Merry Christmas and saying that he was enclosing a fair sized check in return for all the enjoyment which he obtained from reading this column, please send check which was to have been enclosed and which was not. If the person had never metioned about the check Scoop would never have been any the wiser, but the thought of having it sent and not receiving it, is causing him to lose all kinds of weight and sleep. Unless it comes within the next week Scoop's name will be "Shovel."

The many Christmas cards which Scoop received are all duly acknowledged. It just goes to show that the make-up man was wrong when he called my stuff "trash" one week when there wasn't much room in the columns of The Republican. So those who don't get this paper had better follow that New Year's resolution:

This Is It.

"I hereby resolve that I will not let another year pass without getting all the news of the county while it is news, by subscribing for The Republican, Garrett county's leading and best newspaper. It carries more news and is dependable."

"BEN-HUR" HAS NO EQUAL IN HISTORY OF PHOTOPLAY

Boasts Cast of 150,000—Chariot Race Staged in Huge Scale

General Lew Wallace's "Ben- Hur; A Tale of the Christ," that was a stage spectacle twenty-two years, and as a book enjoyed a circulation as large as the Bible, will be seen for the first time as a picture in Oakland at the Maryland Theatre, Monday and Tuesday, January 2 and 3. It comes here after long runs and crowded houses in New York, Chicago, Boston and Philadelphia. It boasts a cast of 150,000.

It may be interesting to those who are unacquainted with the fact that a portion of this wonderful story was written by General Wallace shortly after the Civil War at the old Glades Hotel in Oakland, which at that time and until it burned about the year 1875, was owned and operated by the late John Daily, father-in-law of General George Crook, who was a close personal friend of General Wallace. Mr. George W. Legge, formerly of Oakland ,now residing in Cumberland, was in General Wallace's command when it met defeat at Harper's Ferry at the hands of a Confederate force.

Fred Niblo directed the production which begins with the Wise Men and the Star of Bethlehem, pictures Jerusalem under the Roman tyranny and the condemnation of the Prince of Hur to the galleys. The battle 'twixt the Roman fleet and the Greek pirates was filmed with a great Ben-Hur navy of antique modeled craft off the coast of Italy.

Thrills and Romance.

The celebrated Antioch chariot race, in which Ben-Hur and Messala contest for the palm, occupied three months in the making. Twelve quadrigas are driven seven laps over a course facing a Circus Maximus that holds nearly a hundred thousand spectators. The exquisite love story of Ben-Hur and Esther is intertwined with the thrilling action.

The final scenes deal with Ben-Hur assembling legions on the plain to establish a kingdom of Judea, the discovery of his long lost mother and sister in the Vale of Hinnom, the procession of Palm Sunday, and the healing of the sick ones by the Saviour whereby Ben-Hur and his beloved Esther and kinsfolk are reunited.

A World Epic.

In a grandicse epic that has taken three years for its completion and included as many real-life adventurings as an historic odyssey of the Old and New Worlds, Ramon Novarro (in the title role), Betty Bronson, May McAvoy, Francis X. Bushman, Carmel Myers, Claire McDowell, Kathleen Key, Nigel de Brulier, Mitchell Lewis and Frank Currier have prominent parts. The music for the production was written by David Mendoza and William Axt, the composers of "The Big Parade." The offering is a Metro-Goldywn-Mayer picture made by special arrangement with A. L. Erlanger, C. B. Dillingham and F. Ziegfield, Jr., and it cost $4,000,000.—Advertisement

AMOCO-GAS

A Happy and Prosperous New Year To You and Yours.

We feel that in nearing the end of Nineteen hundred and twenty-seven, that we have made many new and warm friends during the year, and that our older friends and patrons have liberally shared with us a large portion of their patronage, for which we are indeed grateful.

It has been an outstanding policy of ours, to give a service to our patrons that is equal to the service found at other filling stations of the higher type, and we are caused to know that our patrons appreciate this service by their continued visits to our station for their needs. This policy will ever be continued here.

We have kept uppermost in our minds the thought that it is more difficult to retain old friends and patrons than it is to get new ones, and we feel that our service to you and our many other friends has been responsible for the closing of another year of success and pleasure, and it is our wish that you might enjoy the New Year as we have the past, and that it will hold for you three hundred sixty-six days of happiness.

Use Amoco-Gas All Through 1928

We recommend AMOCO-GAS to you because we know from past experiences that it will make your car perform better than you now expect it to perform, and because it is real, honest-to-goodness gasoline, giving in return a service all users will appreciate.

GRANTSVILLE.

By G. W. Diefenbach

Heavy Sleet Covers Earth.

One of the heaviest sleets known in this section for years is breaking forest trees, uprooting others and ruining orchards on the higher ground in the vicinity of Grantsville, especially in the Negro Mountain community. On Tuesday of last week a drizzle of rain and fog froze fast to everything that it touched. This accumulation increased rapidly until Friday when telephone and telegraph wires were the size of two inch ropes and trees suffered much damage by being broken off or denuded of limbs. On Keyser's Ridge the telegraph wires and poles along the National Highway were broken down and the wires badly tangled. Meadow Mountain and the Savage Mountain districts also had much sleet, but not to the extent experienced on the Ridge and Negro Mountain. Old residents claim the sleet to be the heaviest they have ever seen and that it has clung longer than most sleets do. However, with all the destruction, it was a thing of beauty to look upon, especially at a distance. Every tree and bush wore wonderful Christmas attire, which, when the sun shone upon it, made a most wonderful sight.

Dr. Davis Injured.

One day last week while engaged at work in the basement at his home in Grantsville, Dr. N. R. Davis tripped over an object lying upon the floor and the resultant fall produced a fracture of one of his ribs which has caused him considerable inconvenience and pain. However, he has been able to take care of his practice.

Injured on Saw Mill

While working near a shaft on a saw mill some distance from Grantsville last Friday, the clothing of Guy Johnson became entangled and as a result he was quickly spun around the revolving mechanism before he was caught by Robert Bowser, another workman who was nearby. Mr. Bowser, with a great effort, succeeded in tearing the clothing of his unfortunate co-worker and thereby freeing him from his perilous position. Mr. Johnson was not seriously hurt, but was very badly bruised, necessitating his laying off for a period. Altho he came through the ordeal without much clothing left on his body, he was most fortunate in not losing his life or suffering serious injury.

A Daughter Born.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bender, who are spending the winter at Haynes City, Florida, announce the birth of an eight pound daughter on December 8th, according to a recent communication received here by friends of the couple.

Christmas Services.

All of the churches of the town celebrated Christmas with fitting services, which were well attended. Special music was rendered and contributed much to the effectiveness of the Christmas festival. The Reformed Sunday school celebrated on Friday evening; the Lutheran on Saturday evening. In the Catholic church the Christmas mass was celebrated on Sunday morning and the Methodist Sunday school held its service on Sunday evening. All of the churches in the outlying vicinity held services appropriate to the season.

Donald Simpson Injured.

While dragging logs near Laurel Run on Monday afternoon, Donald Simpson, of New Germany, received injuries resulting in a fractured leg. He was hurried to Lonaconing where Dr. Henry Hodgson rendered surgical aid. Later he was removed to the home of Arch Cook at Lonaconing, Mrs. Cook being a daughter.

Sunday Church Services.

Services in the Grantsville churches next Sunday will be as follows: Methodist, Sunday school at 10:00 a. m. Reformed, Sunday school at 1:30 p. m. and worship at 2:30. Lutheran, Sunday school at 9:15 a. m. and worship at 10:30. Christian Endeavor at 6:30 p. m. in the M. E. church. The Society will give a special new year program and the annual offering for the A. M. C. Home will be taken.

Alumni Meets.

The Alumni Association of the local high school held an enthusiastic meeting in the school building on Tuesday evening. Harvey Stanton presided. A spirited and earnest discussion was entered into with a view of putting the association at the disposal of the school in a helpful way. Following the business session, a program of readings and music was given, followed by refreshments. There were 24 members present.

The Covent Garden Farm

OPPORTUNITY IS KNOCKING AT SOMEONE'S DOOR.

The location is one of the most pleasant in the entire county. It is an ideal site for dairy or poultry operations. A brook of clear, cold water runs through the entire width of it, in addition to a never-failing spring. A splendid view presents itself to the Eastward, while less than a half mile to the west is the Oakland-Thomas concrete road.

A special feature is the apple and pear orchards of nearly one hundred trees.

A spirit of good neighborliness and hospitality prevails in this community.

The eleven-room house has a concrete cellar and furnace room, natural slate roof, large comfortable living room, library, new porches, kitchen cabinets, bookcases and pipeless furnace.

Barn 56x80 with hay carrier and track complete.

There are poultry houses for two hundred hens, a hog house with concrete floor, garage with concrete floor and work pit and large carpenter shop with enclosed meat house.

Several false reports, in fact malicious lies, have been circulated regarding this property.

First, regarding legal matters: There are positively no liens or mortgages upon it. Consult the land records at the Court House.

Second, regarding a wall under the house: We will give twenty-five dollars to the party who can show us any defect in said wall. Please go and inspect it.

Third, regarding the house roof: Not one drop of water ever came through it in the 22 years that I have lived in it.

Fourth, regarding the land being poor: I raised 45 bushels of oats per acre in 1926; I raised 225 bushels of potatoes on less than an acre in 1924. My corn in 1923 was above the average. This land will produce, acre for acre, with any farm in the community—I except none.

I had some crop failures, due to extremely late planting, which was unavoidable under the circumstances, but not because of soil conditions.

We will sell on easy terms and on the following conditions: If purchaser is not perfectly satisfied at the end of twelve months we will have a committee assess damages done to property (if any) and add rent not to exceed $250, and we will then remit the full amount paid by purchaser and cancel the sale.

God's Christmas Gift To Us and Ours To Him.

Christmas—"a scene upon a tapestry woven of stable straw and starlight." There, in the cattle's feeding trough, lies the first Christmas Gift—a chubby Babe whose birth is the pivot of history, who occupies the focus of humanity's affection and adoration.

"Thanks be unto God for His unspeakable Gift."—II Cor. 9:15.

This is the mystery of the incarnation—God through Jesus giving Himself, leaving the crystal mansions to take up His abode in a stable; laying aside the attributes of divine sovereignty and clothing Himself in the frailty of human flesh and blood; exchanging the ineffable throne of glory for the cross with its unutterable agony and shame.

God's Christmas Gift to us! What shall be our gift to Him? God has given Himself to us through Christ. What shall we return unto the Lord? Surely, nothing less than ourselves.

This is the only adequate expression of our gratitude and love to our heavenly Father, the only suitable Christmas gift from man to God—the dedication of our lives to Him; the consecration of all that we are and all that we have to His service.

Who is wise enough to make this exchange of gifts? We give our lives to Him. Our petty, trivial lives, with all their useless worries and vain strivings, with all their tragedy and futility: these worthless lives of ours we give in perfect self-surrender to Him. And, in exchange, He gives us a new life—Christ in us the hope of glory. He gives us a song for tears, power for weakness, victory for defeat, purity for sin, light for darkness, life for death. The old heart, with its self-cancelling vacillation, with its self-destroying strife, with its jangling discord, He takes away in order to give us a new heart pulsing in the rhythm of the perfect harmony and illumined by the Light which lighteth every man who cometh into the world.

This is the life which is life indeed, which God offers in exchange for our worthless lives.

OLD POLITICAL LINES ARE ACTIVE IN SIXTH DISTRICT

Mr. Lewis's Campaign Will Be Formally Launched Tonight.

The Congressional situation in the Sixth District is becoming rather significant and the following information is leared from the interesting columns of the Frederick Citizen which has been keeping pace with the political minds of this section of the State:

It has been rather definitely decided that David J. Lewis will be unopposed in his candidacy for the Sixth District Congressional nomination next year.

This does not mean that there is not strenuous opposition to Mr. Lewis among the Democrats in the district. There is, and, in some cases, the hostility is so open and so bitter as to warrant the expectation that it will be carried into the general election.

But the odds so strongly favor the election of a Republican in the district and, in this instance, the reelection of Representative Frederick N. Zihlman, that anti-Lewis Democrats have decided not to bother with a primary fight for the nomination.

The Lewis candidacy is expected to get under way on December 29 when he will be the guest of honor and principal speaker at a meeting of the Potomac Club of Hagerstown. Dr. J. Hubert Wade, avowed anti-Ritchie leader, and regarded as the Democratic "boss" of Washington county, is the moving spirit of the Potomac.

Although the Lewis campaign thus gets under way under auspices that may be regarded as anti-Ritchie, and thus anti-organization, nevertheless there seems to be no disposition on the part of the Governor's friends in the Sixth District to be captious about the matter. The political expediency of starting the campaign under such circumstances when friends of Governor Ritchie control the local party organizations in Montgomery, Allegany and Garrett counties, may be questioned, but apparently nobody is going to kick up a row about it. The Ritchie people in Washington county of whom William P. Lane, Jr., is probably the most outstanding, seem willing to go along with Lewis even under the circumstances.

Politicians in the District point out that this does not mean that, if a candidate should announce himself for the nomination against Lewis, the Ritchie group would not back the new candidate. Probably they would. Probably, for instance, if Fuller Barnard, Jr., of Cumberland, who has been suggested as a candidate, would become a candidate, he would receive the support of the organization forces in not only Allegany, but Garrett, Frederick and Montgomery counties as well. In fact, he would probably receive a substantial block of Democratic votes in Washington county.

But there is a great difference between supporting a candidate who goes into the fight of his own accord and bringing one out. In the latter case the organization is bound to support the candidate brought out. In the former, the candidate takes a long chance that he will be all dressed up and no place to go.

The gist of the present situation, however, is that no candidate will be brought out to oppose Lewis and that he will probably have things his own way next spring.

GRANGE IS VERY ACTIVE ON THE U. OF M. CAMPUS

Plays Big Part In Developing Students for Leadership In Community Affairs.

The Student Grange of the University of Maryland is one of the most active organizations on the Campus and also one of the most helpful to the State, for it brings home to students the great value of rural community life. It gives training in organization work and develops ability to become leaders in communities in which students may live after graduation. Many prominent men throughout the State, men well known because of their work and interest in rural betterment are alumni of this organization. In fact, many positions of importance in the counties are filled by these men.

The Student Grange and National Grange are linked closely by joint meetings where the young folk are given a chance to take parts in the programs. They aid in initiation ceremonies or give entire programs which are both entertaining and instructive.

At a banquet given Saturday night for the alumni and new officers the students were addressed by the National Master, Louis L. Tabor, who, making his first appearance in this State, chose for his subject "The Cornerstone of Prosperity," and gave an excellent talk to them. In conclusion National Master Tabor asked the students to cooperate with him in helping to make the National Convention to be held in Washington, D. C., next year a great success.

Also present among the alumni was A. G. Ensor, State Master, and the entire Executive Committee. Homer Remsburg, recently elected a member of the Executive Committee, was a former member of the student grange and was a most welcome guest.

The officers recently elected are as follows: Grand Master, Stanley Stabler, of Sand Springs; Overseer, Merrick Wilson, of Ingleside; Lecturer, Joseph Long, of Denton; Steward, Will Cockerill, of Leesburg, Va.; Treasurer, Robert Gray, of Washington; Assistant Treasurer, Edna Burnside, of College Park; Assistant Lecturer, Anne Mathews, of Worton; Secretary, Anna Price, of Queenstown; Assistant Steward, Henry Whiteford, of Baltimore; Lady Assistant Steward, Grace Maxwell, of Luxe; Ceres, Mena Edmonds, of Hyattsville; Pomona, Grace Lighter, of Middletown; Flora, Edith Burnside, of College Park, and Gatekeeper, Herbert Hoopes, of Belair.
